THE FUN'S ON THE CHIEF

N. Viet Troops Hold South's Buffer Zone

Quang Tri Likely To Fall To Enemy

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese forces today advanced under a heavy cloud cover that cut allied air strikes to virtually nothing and took complete control of a 10-mile strip of upper South Vietnam in what the South Vietnamese area commander termed an invasion.

The South Vietnamese retreated 10 miles back from their northern Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) border with North Vietnam after 48 hours of the heaviest artillery onslaught in the history of the Vietnamese War.

Officers said government troops were retreating in disarray from the DMZ defense wall and were attempting to set up a new forward line at the Cua Viet (Dong Ha) River, 10 miles south of the buffer zone.

The ground offensive, which overran 10 of 12 DMZ bases in short order, was launched by an estimated three divisions of North Vietnamese infantry troops. Government troops were left holding two isolated artillery bases and one city, Quang Tri, where the South Vietnamese army's 3rd Infantry Division is headquartered.

The town of Dong Ha, which had been evacuated by nearly all its 10,000 people during the preceding two days, fell later today.

Later in the day, the North Vietnamese commandos attacked a post three miles north of the city with machinegun and recoilless rifle fire. The post serves as the rear area combat base for Quang Tri, 18 miles inside South Vietnam, and military sources said its loss would pose a major threat to the city.

Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, commander of South Vietnam's 1st military region comprising the five northernmost provinces, toured the front today by helicopter. On his return, military sources quoted him as saying, "The North Vietnamese are crossing the demarcation line to invade Quang Tri province."

Lam said the invasion force consisted of three infantry divisions and three artillery regiments plus antiaircraft units totaling about 48,000 men. There were about that many South Vietnamese troops in the northern five provinces, but not all were in Quang Tri province when the North Vietnamese struck.

(The Nixon administration, which has reduced U.S. ground troops in South Vietnam to less than 100,000, has noted that American forces have been out of active combat since last spring and summer.

(The fighting role has been turned over to the South Vietnamese, and U.S. ground forces primarily are involved in support and logistic operations with only a relatively small number engaged in defense of bases and outposts).

In addition, heavy clouds stopped allied airpower cold. Two squadrons of F4 Phantom jet-bombers were grounded at Da Nang, only 100 miles south of the DMZ, and fighter jets aboard the two U.S. carriers in the South China Sea also were forced to remain behind.

President Nguyen Van Thieu attended a parliamentary reception in Saigon tonight but reportedly canceled plans to spend the weekend out of town in order to stay abreast of the situation in the north.

(In Washington, a White House spokesman said President Nixon was being kept abreast of developments in the battle zone, and that Nixon remained confident the South Vietnamese ground forces could handle the situation on their own.)

Allied officers told UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman at Da Nang—rear headquarters for South Vietnam's northern

Barrows Calls For Relaxing Of Security At The Civic Center

Tight security measures at the Marin Civic Center should be relaxed but not totally eliminated, County Administrator John F. Barrows recommended yesterday.

Barrows's recommendation, to be considered Tuesday by the Board of Supervisors, is a near duplicate of one made last november.

The supervisors, at that time, rejected the proposal because of the upcoming trial of six San Quentin inmates accused in the bloody escape attempt last August.

Barrows, who noted "most of the (earlier) issues remain unchanged," was directed three weeks ago by supervisors to draft the new recommendation.

As in his previous proposal, Barrows recommends that security checkpoints be eliminated at entrances to the Administration Building and the Hall of Justice.

He also recommends that the Administration Building return to its former operating schedule — early morning opening, with closing as late in the evening as public meetings are conducted. (Currently, the hours are from 7 a.m. to 10:30 p.m.) The building would remain open on weekends for library use under the new proposal.

The Hall of Justice, meanwhile, would retain its operating schedule of 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and closed weekends, except to county employees.

West Berliners Pour Through Wall For Joyous Easter Reunions

BERLIN (UPI)—Tens of thousands of happy West Berliners drove and walked through the Berlin wall today to spend their first Easter in from six to 20 years with friends and relatives in East Berlin and Communist East Germany.

For those traveling to Weimar, Rostock, Dresden, Magdeburg, Leipzig and other cities outside East Berlin it was the first Easter reunion in 20 years.

East and West Berliners cried with joy as they clasped relatives for the first time since 1966. Even hardened East German border guards were moved at the sight.

The East Germans attempted to use this sentiment and the pull of family ties in a propaganda campaign for ratification of the nonaggression pacts between West Germany and the Soviet Union and Poland.

They told West Berliners flooding through the wall that only ratification of the pacts by the West German parliament could keep the wall open.

Traffic through the nine crossing points in the Communist wall was lighter than on Good Friday, the start of the four-day holiday weekend.

There was no official count, but West Berlin police estimated about 400,000 West Berliners would enter the east over the weekend and perhaps as many as 700,000 during the special pass period that ends at midnight Tuesday.

The East Germans, in what was considered an attempt to influence the West German debate on ratification of the nonaggression pacts, opened the wall for West Berliners on Wednesday.

They said as a "good will gesture" they were letting West Berliners in even though the Big Four ambassadors agreement on Berlin still has not been signed.

The agreement gives West Berliners the right to visit the East a total of 30 days a year.

But both the East Germans and the Soviets say they will not put the agreement in force unless the nonaggression pacts are ratified by the West German parliament, where they face a stiff fight.

"Only ratification can make possible peaceful coexistence" reads the headline on a leaflet distributed at the border.

West Berliners on sightseeing tours were welcomed with the greeting "we hope the visits of West Berliners will not cease and the treaties with Warsaw and Moscow will be ratified."

The speaker of the West Berlin House of Representatives was told during a visit to East Berlin "the pacts must be ratified. Otherwise things will be bad for West Berliners."

FIRST LOOK MONDAY

New Marin City Master Plan

By PAT ANGLE

A newly completed Marin City master plan calling for a preponderence of cluster housing, extensive open space and eventual phasing out of high rise units as public housing in the community will have its first public airing next week.

The proposal, by the planning consultant firms of Kennard and Silvers and Whisler-Patri, will be the subject of a public hearing before the Marin County Planning Commission at 8 p.m. Monday in the Manzanita Center in Marin City.

Focusing on development of Marin City as a socially, racially and economically integrated community rather than on simple physical development, the plan also seeks ways to insure that present residents be given the opportunity to remain.

The plan, drawn with the aid of $50,000 in federal funds, suggests that Marin City be linked with the Richardson Bay waterfront by expanding the redevelopment project to include bay frontage, expansion of the community services district to include that area and development of pedestrian walkways and a road to the bay.

Project manager Michael Kaplan said the plan envisions a 6,000 population for the area — large enough, he said, to support a major shopping center and additional services and recreational facilities.

"One of our aims is to create a community that is completely or relatively self-supporting, rather than totally dependent on the county for support," Kaplan said.

Based on the planners' economic analysis, Kaplan said, "The key to this social and economic change is to substantially increase middle income residents in the community." To this end, the consultants have recommended a high degree of residential development, between 1,200 and 1,500 new housing units.

The proposal, which includes planning for both the approximately 80-acre redevelopment property and the 170-acre ridgeland (owned by the California Development Co.), calls for higher densities than the original master plan, adopted in 1957.

Kaplan said his plan suggests an average of 15 residential

Lindbergh Party Calls For Help

MANILA (UPI) — Charles A. Lindbergh and a party of anthropologists today sent an S.O.S. from the rain forests of the southern Philippines saying their food is nearly gone and they need help.

The U.S. Embassy asked American Air Force authorities at Clark Air Base north of here to fly in emergency supplies.

The anthropologists have been living in isolation with the 24 surviving short, dark-skinned Tasadays for about two weeks, gathering data.

Bomb Explodes In Empty Hearse; Belfast Is Tense

BELFAST (UPI)—A 200-pound time bomb today demolished a hearse stolen with an empty coffin inside and parked in Church Lane in downtown Belfast, police reported.

They said three passersby were slightly injured in the blast, only a few hundred yards from the Abercorn restaurant where two persons were killed and 136 injured in a terrorist bombing last month.

The largest number of British troops yet in Northern Ireland went on the alert for more possible trouble during Roman Catholic parades and other scheduled demonstrations during the long Easter weekend.

A Catholic citizens' association deplored Northern Ireland's nearly three years of sectarian violence—and with it the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA), which claims responsibility for it. Nearly 300 persons have been killed.

"The ghettos are breathing today," said the Central Citizens' Defense Committee of the Falls Road, one of Belfast's Catholic centers and once an IRA stronghold. "Those who now seek to choke them again will be rejected forever."

The army said the estimated 15,100 British troops, including 600 reinforcements brought in Friday by air and sea, were on alert along with police for the weekend, 56th anniversary of the abortive 1916 uprising against British rule by Roman Catholics in Dublin.

Catholic spokesmen said 21 parades and wreath-layings were scheduled for Sunday and Monday. The marches defy a ban by Northern Ireland's Protestant-majority government, suspended Thursday when Britain assumed direct rule.

An army spokesman said the Catholic newspaper Irish News received an anonymous telephone call at 10:55 a.m. Saturday warning the "biggest bomb ever" was about to go off in a parked hearse.

Attack Plans

By U.P. International

Al Fatah, the largest Palestinian guerrilla group, said today it has decided to launch armed attacks against the Jordanian regime of King Hussein in an effort to overthrow the government.

"The organization has decided to launch commando operations against tha Jordanian regime," an Al Fatah newsletter said. "This is in line with our declared objective of toppling the monarchical regime in Jordan."

The Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) which includes representatives of all guerrilla groups, urged the Arab states to take steps to disqualify King Hussein from speaking for the Palestinians.

'71 Fire Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fires in 1971 killed 12,000 Americans, crippled or injured more than 330,000 others and caused nearly $3 billion in property damage.

The figures were listed yesterday in a preliminary report to President Nixon made by the National Commission on Fire Prevention and Control.

The commission is conducting a two-year study of the nation's fire problems to be completed in July, 1973.

In the preliminary report, the panel said the rate of death by fire in the United States is twice that of Canada, four times that of Britain, and more than six times that of Japan.

It also said fire losses are of the same magnitude as crime losses, about $10 billion annually.

At Camp David

THURMONT, Md. (UPI) — President and Mrs. Nixon scheduled a birthday party tonight for their son-in-law, Navy Ens. David Eisenhower, at the presidential retreat which bears his name.

The President and first lady flew by helicopter yesterday to Camp David in the Maryland mountains. They were to be joined for the Easter weekend by Eisenhower and his wife, Julie, the Nixons' younger daughter.

The White House said Nixon planned to spend part of the weekend working on domestic matters.

17th Anniversary

NICOSIA (UPI) — Cyprus today celebrated the 17th anniversary of the start of armed insurrection against British rule with parades and an amnesty for those who still struggle for union of Cyprus with Greece (Enosis).

President Archbishop Makarios officiated at the Te Deum in the Church of Phaneromini, where in 1955 he gave an oath never to stop fighting until the island was united with its motherland, Greace.

Later, the bearded, black-robed president took the salute in a march past of the national guard-the island's armed forces-veterans organization and schoolchildren.

Top Honors

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The Last Picture Show" took top honors yesterday as the best English language film of 1971 in the All-American Press Associates' 14th Annual Movie Bests Awards.

George C. Scott was named the best actor for his role in "Hospital" and Jane Fonda was cited as the best actress for her performance in "Klute."

The awards will be presented at a reception Wednesday. The All-American Press Associates is an organization of 37 foreign and domestic publications.

Still Alive?

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — A member of the family of kidnaped Fiat executive Oberdan Sallustro indicated yesterday the terrorists may not have carried out their threat to kill him and ransom still is possible.

Also Sallustro, 28, one of Sallustro's sons, was asked if the leftwing Revolutionary Army of the People had been in contact with the family since the deadline for his "execution" passed at midnight Tuesday.

"I cannot deny that there may be contacts," Aldo said. "My father is a man of good will with many friends, and it would be impossible to say whether they have initiated contacts with the kidnapers." Sallustro was kidnaped last week.

Chaplain Freed

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Navy Chaplain Andrew Jensen was acquitted yesterday of charges he committed adultery with two Navy wives. He said he would celebrate his acquittal at a malt shop and would not take any action against the women who filed the charges.

"They've been hurt enough," Jensen said. "They got involved in something they really didn't want to be involved in."

"Nobody came out a winner," Jensen added above the bedlam created by his supporters shortly after a Navy captain pronounced the words "not guilty" to end Jensen's two-weeks long trial on charges of adultery.

Children Perish

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Five children, aged 2 through 6, died of smoke inhalation today when a fire raged through three frame houses in a predominantly black area on the edge of Tampa's Ybor City.

Authorities said all three houses, one of them unoccupied, were destroyed by the flames. Cause of the fire was undetermined, but there was speculation that it was ignited by a cigaret.

Borrowed Typewriter Enters The ITT Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Susan Lichtman, a former secretary for the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., has added a new twist to the Senate inquiry into the Justice Department's antitrust setlement with ITT by saying the parts of a memo she remembers typing were done on a borrowed typewriter.

Mrs. Lichtman, now a University of Toronto student who worked for ITT as a temporary secretary for two months last year, said Friday she recalled typing part of the memo from lobbyist Dita Beard concerning an ITT $400,000 contribution to the Republican National Convention.

She specifically remembered typing Mrs. Beard's words: "John Mitchell (the former attorney general) has certainly kept it on the higher level only, we should be able to do the same,"—wondering at the time what Mrs. Beard meant by "higher level."

But Mrs. Lichtman said she had no idea how other passages got into the memo, particularly the ones that linked the convention pledge with government settlement of an antitrust dispute that sanctioned ITT's merger with the Hartford Fire Insurance Co.

She said she had not typed anything of the kind and did not know who did. Furthermore, Mrs. Lichtman said, she was using a typewriter borrowed from another part of the office June 25—the date of the disputed memorandum.

Her typewriter was put aside in a room next door and the new one was brought in so she could type invitations to the Vincent Lombardi Memorial Golf Tournament, she said.

Through a series of tests, the FBI has been able to trace the memorandum to an IBM model typewriter with "documentary style type," and it was even able to ascertain that the memo had the same left-hand indentations and typewriting ink as other documents that came out of the ITT Washington office between June 25 and June 30, 1971.

But because of the typewriter switch, it may be impossible to trace the memo—which Mrs. Beard has denounced as a "forgery"—to one individual.

During hr short period with ITT, Mrs. Lichtman said she was "shocked" by the favors members of Congress asked of the corporation. She said Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., once asked use of one of the company's jet planes and she advised his office that the company's fleet was in use.

A spokesman for Hartke said he could find no record of such a request.

Toll Is Waived

ELIZABETHTOWN, Ky. (UPI)—Traffic was so heavy at the intersection where the Blue Grass Parkway feeds into the Kentucky Turnpike Friday that attendants waived the 10-cent toll to unsnarl the jams.

McGovern Hits Nixon On 'Deals'

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)— Sen. George S. McGovern said today that President Nixon's "political money deals" demand a public disclosure and in the waning days of the Wisconsin primary challenged all candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination to debate before the voting begins Tuesday.

Radiating the confident mood of a winner, McGovern pointed out that only Sen. Henry M. Jackson, among the Democratic candidates, has refused to disclose the financial backers of his presidential campaign.

Then, in a statement, McGovern said that Nixon also has refused to make a public disclosure and charged that "his political money deals are the most suspicious of all."

He also accused Nixon, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and Jackson of refusing to make public their personal finances and said that all the candidates on the Democratic ballot have spurned his overtures for a debate.

"I made a pledge for an open campaign and that pledge has been kept," McGovern said. "That is one practical way all candidates can act now to exhibit the same kind of faith and confidence in the people that we are asking of them in return."

The observance of Good Friday curtailed the campaigning for Wisconsin's 67 Democratic delegate votes and the psychological boost of winning the key midwest primary, the fourth of the year.

But all the candidates embarked on ambitious schedules today, concentrating mostly in heavily-populated areas, before once again slowing down for Easter Sunday.

Four of the candidates descended on a Friday night fish fry at Serb Hall in Milwaukee's Southwest Side, irritating waitresses who could not move through the crush and antagonizing some regular diners who had no taste for a politician for dessert.

Humphrey came into the spacious, overheated hall first, shaking hands along the way, and then sat down for a dinner of fish and white wine while television crews and reporters ringed his table.

Humphrey tried the bowling allyes with little luck, prompting the comment from one man on the next lane that "it's a good thing he doesn't have to bowl for that White House job."

McGovern and John V. Lindsay arrived at the same time and the New York mayor greeted the South Dakota senator with a request for an automgraph and comment, "Gee, you look great, George."

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie arrived after the three others had departed and slowly worked his way through the crowd of diners, shaking hands, pausing to speak and signing autographs.

With three days left until the primary there were these developments:

—McGovern picked up the backing of Sen. William Proxmire, Wisconsin's best vote-getter and probably most popular politician in the state.

—Muskie proposed an $18 billion cut in the defense budget by returning to the pre-Vietnam war figures.

—Humphrey went after the labor vote, telling unionists that taxes are the major issue in Wisconsin and added "practically everyone is on the bandwagon now, but your friend, your senator led the way."

—Studiously avoiding a confrontation with other candidates and campaigning only after dark, Wallace held another in his series of southern-style rallies.

—Jackson revealed that he spent $400,000 in the Florida primary—where he finished third—and his presidential candidacy has cost around $800,000 so far.

Reagan Sets Press Conference

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan will return to California next week after an Easter week vacation in Arizona and address a luncheon Friday at the Lafayette International Ballroom in Long Beach.

In announcing the governor's schedule for next week, Reagan's office said he has scheduled a Capitol news conference Wednesday morning. On Monday, Reagan will make brief remarks to a State Chamber of Commerce conference on solid waste management.

Reagan and his wife, Nancy, spent their holiday vacation at the home of Mrs. Reagan's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Loyal Davis, in Phoenix.

Yorty To Visit His Home State

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Mayor Sam Yorty, who announced he would limit his active campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination to California, heads for his home state of Nebraska Sunday where his name is on the May 9 primary ballot.

In a two-day round of appearances, Yorty's tour includes news conferences in Lincoln and Omaha and meetings with the editorial boards of three newspapers.

Yorty attended grade school and high school in Lincoln where he worked as a newsboy for the Lincoln Star.

The mayor's trip is sponsored by a large Nebraska retailer to promote a California Fair exhibition in his stores.

Yorty announced March 15 he would limit his campaigning to California because of a lack of time and money. But he said he would try to make a few appearances in other states where his name was on the ballot.

THE HOT DOG FAVORED BY PEKING DELEGATION

NEW YORK (UPI) — The chef who cooked for the Chinese United Nations delegation for five months says the Chinese prefered American food, including hot dogs for breakfast, during their stay at the Roosevelt Hotel.

"I had been trying to make Chinese delicacies for them," said Claude Sanz, executive chef at the Roosevelt Hotel, "but it was no use competing with them on their own ground. They said they wanted American food, and we were happy to give it to them."

Sanz said the Chinese once saw a street hot dog vendor and asked Sanz if they could try what the man was selling.

"We had to special order them and after that they ate almost nothing but hot dogs for three days," Sanz said. The chef said the Chinese especially like them for breakfast in place of sausage or bacon.

Sanz said he prepared the delegation's "last breakfast" on Tuesday, just before their move to permanent headquarters in the former Lincoln Square Motor Inn.

"I will miss them," Sanz said. "It was a tremendous challenge to have them here. In fact, I would call it the experience of a lifetime."

Line Being Held On Meat Prices

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Some supermarkets have announced freezes or projected decreases on meat prices, but many others from coast to coast are holding the line on prices despite administration jawboning and reports that food costs in February reached a 14-year peak.

Most food chain executives interviewed by United Press International in a nationwide survey Friday indicated that any price decreases were caused by declines in wholesale costs of meat.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally and Mrs. Virginia K. Knauer, President Nixon's consumer affairs adviser, met Wednesday with executives of 12 major supermarket chains—Acme Markets Inc., Allied Supermarkets Inc., First National Stores Inc., Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., Grand Union Co., Jewel Tea Companies Inc., Kroger Co., Lucky Stores, National Tea Co., Safeway Stores Inc., Stop and Shop Companies Inc. and Supermarkets General.

Grand Union announced an immediate freeze for 30 days. Safeway's middle Atlantic distribution area cut meat prices 7 per cent, but other distribution areas for Safeway said prices were in constant flux.

C.A. Bradburn, Safeway division manager in Seattle, said, "In the last three weeks there has been a slight decline in meat prices to the cattlemen and our store prices reflect that." But a Safeway executive, who asked not to be identified, said flatly in Dallas that "our prices aren't changing" despite the Connally meeting and "static" from customers.

In Boston, a First National Stores spokesman said the chain did not plan to freeze prices. "That depends on what the market does. If the wholesale prices drop, ours will too."

And in Columbus, Ohio, a Kroger spokesman said there would be no freeze, but that "we're looking at lower beef prices."

Bill Newby, public relations director for Jewel food stores, said in Chicago that meat prices began to fall toward week's end.

There was less hope from Arnold Necham, owner of a string of M & W Markets in Boise, Idaho, who saw nothing to justify "nonsense" of the talk about reducing meat prices.

Scott Detrick Sr., owner of a supermarket chain in Louisville, Ky., was wary that prices can not "come down too much because of the built-in cost factor to both the farmer and the processor." And spokesmen for Big Bear and Delchamps supermarkets in Montgomery, Ala., said there had been no downward movement, but some was expected soon.

Fred Cantrell, executive vice president of Alpha Beta Markets with 191 outlets in San Francisco and Southern California said prices have dropped and "will continue to be lowered as our costs are reduced."

AIRPORT OPENS NEW SHUTTLE PARKING LOT

Marinites using San Francisco International Airport can save money, composure and time at its new parking lot north of the terminals. Free shuttle buses make the four-minute trip to the terminals every five minutes between 5 a.m. and 1 a.m., and every 20 minutes in the early morning hours.

Motorists southbound on Highway 101 reach the lot by turning off at the "airport shops" exit. Fees are 25 cents an hour and $1.75 per 24-hour period, compared to 50 cents an hour and $2.75 per day in the covered parking lot in front of the terminals.

INJUNCTION ORDERED

New York State Employees Strike

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—The union representing two-thirds of New York state's employes, ignoring a law forbidding strikes by government workers, went on strike today, immediately triggering a manpower shortage in mental institutions.

Although the state obtained an injunction blocking the strike Friday afternoon, officials of the 120,000-member Civil Service Employes Association (CSEA) said they had not been served with the court order by this morning.

Spokesmen for Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who was vacationing in the Virgin Islands when the strike began at 12:01 a.m., said the injunction had been amended to allow it to be dropped off at the home of the union's president, which they said had been done.

While immediately affecting mainly the state's mental institutions, the strike by mental health workers, clerks and blue-collar workers eventually could hit prisons and welfare, social services and vehicle licensing.

Although prison guards belong to a separate union which has agreed not to walk out for at least one week, CSEA members set up pickets at several jails including Attica, scene of last September's bloody rebellion. Most prison guards already had started their shifts when the strike began.

Reports soon after midnight indicated that some guards were honoring picket lines set up by CSEA workers who work in nonsecurity positions in the jails.

Most state offices were closed for the weekend, and only between 8,000 and 10,000 CSEA members were scheduled to work then.

If the strike—the first major one by state employes in New York's history—stretches into next week, however, there is the possibility that welfare checks and driver and vehicle licensing may be delayed and a host of other government functions could be severely curtailed.

Soon after the strike began, state officials said "nearly 100 per cent" of the workers were on the job. However, reports from throughout the state indicated that picket lines were being honored.

Police in several locations reported instances of rock throwing and bomb scares.

Emergency strike plans went into effect at mental hospitals, narcotics addiction control centers, youth facilities and health department institutions. Supervisors were called on to work 12-hour shifts.

At Willowbrook State School on Staten Island, personnel director Jarvis Tabor asked those parents who could do so to take their children home. If they could not, Tabor asked the parents to report to the hospital to help care for the children.

At the Pilgrim State Hospital in West Brentwood on Long Island, DR. Henry Brill, a director, said patients "were suffering as a result of the pandemonium." About 150 pickets were outside the hospital. Some stones were thrown there, police said.

Altogether, CSEA said picket lines had been set up at more than 40 institutions around the state, including mental hospitals, prisons and the state office building in Albany.

The strike violates the state's Taylor Law, which states that public employes can be fined two days pay for each day on strike and can be put on probation for one year without tenure. The Supreme Court recently upheld Mayor John V. Lindsay's invocation of that law to halt a police strike in New York.

The workers seek a better contract than the one offered b the state. That—at first accepted then rejected by the union—offered a 4 per cent pay raise with the increases not collectable at least until next year because of the state's fiscal problems.

Pollution Hearing Ends—The Obvious

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Two federal boards wound up a week of study Friday by announcing the obvious: the environment in California is deteriorating and something should be done about it.

Spokesmen for the President's Water Pollution Control Advisory Board and his Air Quality Advisory Board made the statements after hearings here and in Los Angeles this week.

They said they had nine conclusions and 13 recommendations to take to the President. The recommendations urged such things as stronger land-use controls, closer working relationships between environmental agencies, more research, and wider dissemination of scientific information.

A. James Barnes, special assistant to Environmental Protection Agency Administrator William Ruckelshaus, admitted that his and other federal agencies "did have differences" with the Senate over the weakened water pollution control bill passed by the House in Washington Wednesday.

Proposed Senate amendments would impose federal controls on timetables for industrial dumping of wastes in waterways, would give all citizens the right to enforce the law through lawsuits, and would require an end to all polluting discharges by 1985.

Barnes said that under present technology 1985 was too soon and complying with the deadline would mean disposal of wastes by burning or landdisposal. He said these methods would result in other kinds of pollution.

Hearing Postponed

Monday's resumption of a hearing into the firing of Fairfax Police Chief James R. Orr has been postponed a week to April 3 at 3 p.m., according to City Clerk Eileen L. Foster.

She said Frank L. Lawrence, a member of the city board of review hearing Orr's appeal, could not attend Monday, forcing the postponement.

Meany Suggests New Profit Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Escalating his quarrel with the administration over its economic policies, AFL-CIO President George Meany has asked that employers be required to pass on to consumers "windfall profits" resulting from government cuts of negotiated wage increases.

Meany said in a formal request to the Price Commission Friday the trading of lower prices for wage increase cutbacks would be a "matter of simple justice." He again charged that President Nixon's Phase II economic program was a failure.

But two administration officials struck back at organized labor. Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, speaking in Atlanta, said powerful labor leaders had helped create inflation and described the walkout of four union presidents from the federal Pay Board last week as "a sorry sight."

At Tacoma, Wash., Pay Board Chairman George H. Boldt said charges the regulatory board was unfair to labor were "baloney."

Meany indicated he did not believe his proposal would get a sympathetic response from the Price Commission because the commission twice had "totally ignored" AFL-CIO recommendations on price controls.

"The failure of the Cost of Living Council, the Price Commission and the Internal Revenue Service to implement our recommendations of Nov. 9 and our executive council proposals of Feb. 18 are written in the failure of Phase II," Meany said.

He said among suggestions the administration had ignored were the closing of loopholes in price regulations, mandatory posting of base price lists, creation of adequate enforcement machinery, the elimination of secrecy on the processing of complaints, and development of a more realistic system of penalties.

Butz said in Atlanta labor should use its power to help control soaring food prices.

"The power of labor leaders had willingly helped create inflation," Butz said. "The same power should have the will to help correct inflation." He termed the controversy over who is responsible for high food prices a "witchhunt."

Boldt said in Tacoma he believed the work of the Pay Board had been "a success." He said labor had been in the minority in only 13 of 54 major board decisions and that this illustrated the board was not unfair to labor.

Trio Nabbed For Weapons, A Live Bomb

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—Three young men were arrested Friday when they entered a garage near the University of California campus where police had found a variety of weapons and a live bomb.

City police and U.S. Treasury agents said they seized "rifles, shotguns, a machine gun, explosives of the nitrate family and an explosive device ready to go."

Police were called to the apartment house garage Thursday afternoon by a neighbor who smelled the odor of gas. Officers found several rifles and shotguns and a machine gun, and "an explosive device ready for use, its components and explosives containing nitrates." The munitions were removed and the garage placed under surveillance.

The three suspects were arrested after they entered the garage about 3 a.m. Friday. Officers said three loaded shotguns, apparently carried into the garage by the men, were found inside after the suspects obeyed police orders to emerge with their hands up.

Those arrested were Paul Rubenstein, 22, University City, Mo., William Harvey Barrows, 24, Berkeley, and Michael Alexander Bortin, 23, San Francisco.

How Many In Front Seat?

How many persons may be carried in the front seat of a vehicle?

Section 21700 states "no person shall drive a vehicle when it is so loaded or when there are in the front seat, such number of persons as to obstruct the view of the driver to the front or sides of the vehicle or as to interfere with the drivers control over the driving mechanism of the vehicle."

Four persons may be seated in front if there is sufficient room in the vehicle to prevent crowding of the driver and obstruction of his vision to the right.

If the driver has to slide to the left to make room for the passengers in the front seat, then there are too many persons there.

Younger Asks Tribunal To Review Death Penalty Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The U.S. Supreme Court was asked Friday to review a California Supreme Court decision banning capital punishment in the nation's most populous state.

California Attorney General Evelle J. Younger asked for the review, describing the state court's Feb. 18 decision as "an unseemly rush to judgment."

The U.S. Supreme Court already has refused to stop the California ruling from going into effect. But it has been asked to rule on the constitutionality of the death penalty in four othar test cases and is expected to make a ruling before the end of the term in June.

Younger argued in his appeal that the U.S. Supreme Court "is not bound to accept the California Supreme Court's selfserving characterization of its opinion as being premised upon an independent state ground."

"The question squarely presented by this petition is whether the highest court of a state may defeat the jurisdiction of this court to review vital federal constitutional issues by purporting to decide the issue on the basis of an identical provision in the state constitution," Younger's brief said.

Tape Player Stolen

Gregory P. Dexter, 4 Alpine Terrace, San Anselmo, told San Rafael police yesterday that a stereo tape player and an alligator case containing 24 tapes were stolen from his car while it was parked at the rear of 521 Francisco Boulevard. The loss was estimated at $230.

15 Named To Novato Airport Study Group

Fifteen members have been appointed to Novato's airport study committee, an advisory group to the Novato City Council, according to City Mgr. Charles A. Brown.

The committee, formed to study joint civilian-military aviation use at Hamilton Air Force Base, was appointed this week.

John A. Trumbull, Novato Chamber of Commerce; Joseph A. Forest, Marin Conservation League; William A. Gnoss, Marin County Aviation Commission; Col. Vermont Garrison, Hamilton Air Force Base.

James Rusch, operator of Spectrum Air Inc.' Richard Duste, operator of Marin Aviation Inc.' William Hoey, Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau; B. Kenneth McKenzie, San Rafael Chamber of Commerce; Joyce Applen, North Marin Federation of Homeowners; R. K. Madgett, Novato Community Congress.

Susan Stompe, H. F. Bergis, Arthur T. Knutson, Gerald C. Cullen and Frank Needham, all members of Novato neighborhood committees working on revisions to the city's general plan.

School Panel To Be Considered

The Rohnert Park City Council will consider establishing a city-school coordinating committee at its meeting Monday at 7 p.m.

The Cotati School District board has called for the formation of the committee, which would include school board members, city councilmen and planning commissioners from both Rohnert Park and Cotati to coordinate residential growth in relation to school capacities.

The council also will hear a report on a recent classification and salary survey of city employees.

Auto Fatals Climb

MANILA (UPI) — Sixty-five persons were killed in a rash of road accidents in February, up 27 per cent over the death toll in January. The Philippine News Service accident scoreboard showed the road accident rate last month topped that of the preceding month by 73 per cent.

Forest To Leave Post For Private Law Job

Joseph A. Forest, senior deputy county counsel for seven years, has announced he will enter private practice next month with the Novato firm of Carrow, Jones and Applen.

The 39-year-old attorney said yesterday he will specialize in environmental and municipal law.

Forest, who resides at 50 Mistletoe Lane, Black Point, is a 1955 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy and of Stanford University Law School.

With the county counsel's office, he has been assigned primarily to legal matters for the public works and, planning departments and the county flood control district.

In 1970, he ran unsuccessfully against Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, on the Democratic ticket.

He is past president of the Marin County Legal Aid Society, past director of the Marin County Bar Association, past director of the Marin Council for Civic Affairs and is a member of the Marin Conservation League and the Sierra Club.

The word "carat" meant the weight of a carob tree seed, used long ago to weigh diamonds, says National Geographic.

Fatter Budget Is Sought By Rec Officials

The San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission has recommended the city council give it a 1972-73 budget about $40,000 above this year's figure.

The commission Thursday approved an administration budget of $40,001, up $415; a parks budget of $195,389, up from $178,372; and a recreation budget of $183,974, up from $165,370, according to Andrew J. Snyder Jr., director of parks and recreation.

He said the increase in the recreation budget would be met by more program fees.

Most of the increase in the parks budget represents adding a groundskeeper for $7,900 a year and a $5,000 increase in utility cost estimates, he said.

Woodacre Woman Dies In Accident

A 25-year-old Woodacre woman died today when she was thrown from her car which ran off Sir Frances Drake Boulevard in Kentfield, according to California Highway Patrol.

Reports said Vivian Lois Liston of Fern Avenue, Woodacre, was westbound on the boulevard at about 2:30 a.m., east of Rosebank Avenue, when her car swerved on the roadway and ran into a field. She was thrown from the careening auto, striking her head on the ground, according to reports.

Miss Liston was taken to Marin General Hospital, where she was pronounced dead on arrival. The fatality was the ninth in Marin County this year, compared to five at this time last year.

Miss Lston worked as a waitress in the Refectory Steak House at the Bon Air Shopping Center in Greenbrae.

She is survived by her mother, Lois Carter, of Roseburg, Ore.

Funeral arrangements are pending at the Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo.

New Marinite Is Testing Vote Plan

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A new Marin resident's attempt to register to vote in the June 6 primary is the basis of a suit filed yesterday asking the state Supreme Court to declare voter residency requirements illegal.

Jeffrey A. Young, who moved to San Rafael on March 10, and Ernestine E. Isaac, who plans to move to Pacific Grove in Monterey County during the last week of April, are plaintiffs in the suit, filed by Public Advocates of San Francisco.

The suit asks the court to declare illegal state requirements that a person must be a resident of the county where he votes at least 90 days before an election and of his voting precinct 54 days before an election.

Attorneys J. Anthony Kline and Robert L. Gnaizda asked the court to order Monterey and Marin Counties to allow the two persons to register in time for the June 6 statewide primaries.

Both petitioners said they tried to register but county officials refused them.

California's League of Women Voters, the Mexican-American Political Association and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People joined in the action.

It was based on a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision outlawing Tennessee residency requirements because the United States is now a "mobile society."

BELFAST

in the stolen vehicle, "was certainly not the biggest bomb ever," the spokesman said.

The Falls Road citizens' committee statement came as part of a declaration of solidarity with the opposition Social Democratic Labor party's call for an end to violence and abolition of internment of suspected IRA men without trial.

"Support for violence, even toleration of it, by the people has gone," the statement said. "It is possible for IRA army council leaders in the (Irish) Republic to have a very different attitude. They omit, however, from their deliberations the critical content of having lived through the last three years in the ghettos of the North."

In another development, about 132 men aboard the British prison ship H.M.S. Maidstone in Belfast Harbor refused food for the second day in protest against conditions on board and demanding release of all interned men.

Tam High Board Sets Closed Session

The Tamalpais High School District will meet in closed session Tuesday at 6 p.m. at the home of Supt. Wilber D. Hawkins, 21 Hillside Avenue, Kentfield, to discuss employee contract negotiations.

The regularly scheduled Monday meeting of the board will not be held.

Free Parking To Be Studied

The Petaluma City Council will consider a resolution providing free parking in the A Street parking lot at its meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Downtown businessmen asked the council last week to remove all parking meters and provide more off-street parking. The council said it would consider the request and might begin by removing meters in one lot.

The council also will open bids on sale of the old Standard Oil building and land on Lakeville Street and hear a proposed ordinance regulating garage sales.

Freeway Plan Drawing Fire

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—About 30,000 residents of South-Central Los Angeles could be dislocated if a proposal for a new freeway and industrial park in the area is adopted, the Urban Coalition Black Caucus warned Friday.

A spokesman for the group said the city Planning Department's proposal shows a "complete disregard, neglect, and insensitivity of the city for the black, low and moderate income people who live in the area."

Arnold Johnson, a Black Caucus official, said the plan is for three new freeways and an industrial park in the Watts area.

quarter—that retreating government troops were "scattered all over. They're badly mauled."

U.S. and South Vietnamese helicopters and warplanes were called in, but in many cases were unable to distinguish fleeing government soldiers from advancing Communists, the officers told Kellerman.

At least one U.S. adviser was killed as American helicopters attempted to evacuate one of the battered bases, the officers said.

The officers said there was no way to tell how many casualties were suffered by either side during the fighting and air attacks.

The morning Communist offensive quickly overran the showpiece government DMZ bases of Alpha 1, Alpha 2, Charlie 1 and Charlie 2.

By nightfall, the North Vietnamese were in control of the area, but hundreds of South Vietnamese troops were trying to make their way through to Dong Ha and the relative protection of the Cua Viet River.

The North Vietnamese set up antiaircraft guns in Cam Lo village, a district capital eight miles south of the buffer strip. U.S. helicopters were barred from returning the fire because of the likelihood that many civilians remained in the village.

American C130 Hercules cargo planes were pressed into service to fly shuttles from the DMZ area to Da Nang to rush hundreds of wounded South Vietnamese to hospitals. Fierce fighting was reported all across Vietnam, with numerous rocket and mortar attacks.

Kellerman said U.S. Army medics and nurses were riding the flights, treating the wounded soldiers and civilians, and helping load them into ambulances.

SECURITY

checkpoints, Barrows estimated that eight sheriff's deputy positions could be eliminated — through attrition — for a savings next fiscal year of $100,000.

"All other internal and external patrols would be continued at their present level," Barrows said.

While acknowledging that some employees prefer the security, which was imposed in October 1970 after a bomb exploded in the Hall of Justice, Barrows said he prefers to see it relaxed.

"It is my own feeling that government of Marin County would function a little bit better if the checkpoints were eliminated," he wrote. "It is also my feeling that the civic center would be a little bit better place to work . . ."

Barrows's recommendation gained support from County Planning Director Werner von Gundell, who said he finds the high level of security "unnecessary and overdone."

He said during a visit Thursday by 30 German architects and planners that he "greeted them outside the building and tried to prepare them mentally for the security check which they had to pass."

"In spite of my introduction . . . it was a somewhat embarrassing procedure. Some of them 'beeped' and were subject to the customary body search. It all seemed so unnecessary and overdone," he said.

The new recommendation was criticized, however, by the county's superior court judges.

In a letter to the board, Superior Court Judge F. Warren McGuire said the Judges oppose any relaxation at present. McGuire said security measures must be maintained to insure the safety of jurors and witnesses called to the Hall of Justice.

He added that the overwhelming majority of employees support the tight security restrictions now imposed.

Hearing Postponed For One Week

Monday's resumption of a hearing into the firing of Fairfax Police Chief James R. Orr has been postponed a week to April 10 at 3 p.m., according to City Clerk Eileen L. Foster.

She said Frank L. Lawrence, a member of the city board of review hearing Orr's appeal, could not attend Monday, forcing the postponement.

PLAN

units per acre, as compared to two to three units per acre in the old proposal.

While the old plan called for a preponderance of single-family lots throught the community, Kaplan's proposal calls chiefly for multi-family dwellings and single-family attached townhouses, with a minimum number of detached single-family homes on terrain not conducive to cluster development.

The 1957 proposal recommended that approximately 25 per cent of the existing 216 undeveloped residential-use land be left in open space. This plan suggests that slightly more than one-third of the ridgeland and 75 per cent of the lower development acreage be developed.

"That is our preferred recommendation," according to Kaplan, "but in order to give flexibility in development, our plan calls for a maximum development of 135 acres." (Development of Marin City will be under the auspices of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency when and if the new master plan is adopted.)

The Tamalpais High School District owns approximately 30 acres of land in the redevelopment area and the Sausalito School District also owns acreage. Both had once planned to build schools there, although this new looks unlikely, Kaplan said.

While the old master plan showed those properties reserved for schools, the project manager has recommended that the land could, as an alternative, be declared residential if the districts sell it back to the community or seek to develop it on their own for other than educational purposes.

In the way of commercial development, which many residents believe is one of the community's most pressing needs, the plan calls for a neighborhood shopping center with supermarket, a discount department store, a motel and an auto repair training center in conjunction with the Marin City Boys Club.

Child day care centers also are proposed, along with formation of a community corporation that could participate in development of Marin City.

"If possible, the planners would like to see the 300 units of public housing phased out and their residents located in small groups of low and moderate income housing through the community. Isolating low income people geographically is a very poor idea, both from social and planning standpoints," Kaplan said. "Low and moderate cost housing, and particularly leased housing, should be developed throughout Marin City through various state and federal programs geared to provide it."

The master planners also have recommended that present high rises e converted into "market rate" apartments for middle income families.

In the meantime, the plan suggests that public housing tenants be provided job training, homemaking, financing and consumer education to "integrate them" into the middle economic stream.

The master plan also recommends:

1. Development of an intracommunity minibus transportation system and expansion of intercounty transit available to residents.

2. An extensive network of bike and pedestrian paths.

3. Additional community centers throughout Marin City.

4. Expansion of the Marin City Community Services District to include control of police and fire services, establishment of a volunteer firemen's program and a police-community relations program.

5. Secondary access roads into Marin City from Sausalito and Tamalpais Valley.

6. An outpatient medical and dental clinic for the community, possibly developed as part of the commercial center.

Girl Treated

Laura Collens, 16, of 51 La Cuesta Drive, Greenbrae, was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for head and lip cuts suffered in an auto accident at 5 p.m. in San Rafael. Police had no details of the crash.

'Monster' Turns Out To Be Joke

INVERNESS, Scotland (UPI) —The latest "monster" hauled from the chilly waters of Loch Ness was officially dismissed today as "just an April Fool's joke."

"It's a hoax," said police superintendent Inas McKay, whose area includes the famed home of Nessie, the legendary Loch Ness monster.

"It's just an April Fool's joke." He said the latest "monster" was brought here from England.

It worked for a while. Police officially barred the transfer from Scotland of the carcass of an animal found Friday on the shores of the Scottish lake.

A marine biologist from Edinburgh Zoo was called in to examine the seal-like creature, which weighed a ton and a half and was 15-1-2 feet long. The biologist still was going to take a look later today just to make sure.

British newspapers had a field day with what one of them called the "Son of Nessie." But people here, who have lived through countless Loch Ness hoaxes, were not really taken in.

Previous monster hoaxes have included "the monster's foot" which proved to be an elephant's, a "monster bone" discovered to have been a whale bone and an entire "model monster" built by students.

But at first many persons, including some zoo officials, thought the monster was legitimate and even had the police take action to keep it from being removed.

"A hoax?" asked Terry O'Brien, 45-year-old zoo animal psychologist and educational officer. "If the zoo had anything to do with this, they certainly didn't tell me and I am being made as big a fool as anyone. We are taking the creature back for a post mortem."

The carcass bore some similarities to a seal, "the fins and tale flukes, but there it ends," O'Brien said. "It's as far apart from a seal as a monkey or an ape to a human being."

Then Dunfermline police stopped the transfer to England.

"Whoever is responsbile, you've got to hand it to them for the best Nessie hoax of all time," said Patrick Murray, 65, who said he fished Loch Ness for 35 years. "It's a real seal of some kind, but what a whopper!"

A number of seagoing fishing boats entered Loch Ness in recent days and John MacKay, another Loch resident, said a fishing crew may have dumped the carcass as a joke.

"If it wasn't the zoo people who dumped it in the Loch, then there's a fishing crew having a good belly laugh tonight," MacKay said.

I-J Errs In Marin City Vote

In a story Thursday on the Marin City Council election scheduled for Tuesday, the Independent-Journal incorrectly reported that all Marin City residents 18 and older could vote, whether or not they are registered voters.

In order to cast ballots in the election, persons must be registered voters, according to council chairman Samuel L. Banks Jr.

OBITUARIES

Steven J. Hebel, 24, Succumbs

Mass will be held Monday for Steven J. Hebel, 1964 student body president of Marin Catholic High School, who died in late March in Colorado of cancer.

Hebel, 24, had been ill for nearly 18 months and died in Colorado Springs, Colo. where he had gone to live. He had lived in Marin County until nine months ago and first came here in 1951 from his native Chicago.

He attended St. Vincent's School for Boys, Marin Catholic High School and San Francisco State College, where he received a bachelor's degree in psychology. He worked for a time at the Youth Guidance Center in San Francisco as a counselor.

Hebel is survived by his parents, Raymond and Kathryn Hebel of 104 Golden Hinde Boulevard, San Rafael; four brothers, Mark of San Rafael, Michael and Joseph Hebel of San Francisco, David Hebel of King City, Monterey County; a sister, Susan Hebel of San Rafael, and a grandfather, Joseph Jasczak of San Rafael.

Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Monday in St. Isabella's Church, Terra Linda, with burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Memorial contributions are preferred to St. Vincent's School for Boys, San Rafael.

FRANK BROWN

Memorial service for Frank Brown of San Anselmo, real estate man and former clothing manufacturer's representative, will be held at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday at St. John's Episcopal Church, Ross.

Brown, 63, died Wednesday in a San Francisco hospital after a short illness.

Born in Decatur, Ill., Brown was a 45-year resident of Marin, living in Kentfield before moving to 105 Calumet Avenue, San Anselmo.

He was a decorated Navy veteran of World War II, serving in both the Atlantic and Pacific theaters. He achieved the rank of lieutenant commander.

Brown was a manufacturer's representative for many years before entering the real estate business with the Hunter Investment Co. of San Anselmo. He was a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, earning a bachelor's degree in economics.

Survivors are his wife, Bernice; a daughter, Bernice Marie Honeychurch of San Francisco, and two grandchildren.

Memorial gifts are preferred by the family to St. John's Episcopal Church or the Marin County Heart Association.

EDWIN BAUMANN

Funeral for Edwin Baumann, 86, of Novato, a retired farmer and landscaper, was held today in Novato.

Baumann died Thursday at a Novato convalescent hospital after a long illness. He was born in Niles Center, Ill., and worked most of his life as a farmer and as a landscaper for the town of Skokie, Ill.

Baumann, of 102 Palm Drive, had lived in Novato for five years.

He is survived by his wife, Marie; three daughters, Erma Johnston and Gloria Weber of Novato and June Cunningham of Los Angeles; four sons, Orville Baumann of Skokie, Ill., Edwin Baumann Jr. of Morton Grove, Ill., George Baumann of Glenview, Ill. and Willard Baumann of Minnetomka Ill.; a brother, Arthur Baumann of Bloomington, Ill.; a sister, Lydia Sherwood of Grants Pass, Ore.; 18 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Burial will be at Lutheran Cemetery, Skokie.

DORIS LANN

Requiem Mass for Doris M. Lann, 64, of San Francisco, sister of Claire V. Molenkamp of San Anselmo, will be offered at 9 a.m. Monday at St. Boniface Church, San Francisco.

Miss Lann died Wednesday at a San Francisco hospital after a long illness. She was a native of San Francisco and had worked as a clerk for the state Public Utilities Commission.

Miss Lann was a member of the State Employees Association.

Recitation of the Rosary will be tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Comisky-Roche Funeral Home, San Francisco. Burial will be at Holy Cross Cemetery. Contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

20/20 Vision: Ability To See Certain Letters From 20 Feet

What is 20/20 vision? It is the ability to distinguish a letter of a certain size 20 feet away. If at 20 feet the person can barely read a letter twice normal size, his vision is 20/40. This actually means that at 20 feet, he can see a letter that a person with normal vision can see at 40 feet. The size of the letter a person with normal vision sees clearly at 20 feet is based on the complex studies of Hooke, an astronomer who lived three centuries ago. The standard Snellen chart utilizes various letters (FLOTDEXC) approximately 3/8 of an inch high and wide and 1/16th-inch thick. It is used to determine vision for distance.

A 20-FOOT-LONG room is not necessary, because mirrors may be used to halve the required distance. Charts also may be proportionately reduced for use in smaller areas. Illiterates and preschool children are tested by charts made up of numbers, pictures, variations of the letter "E," or Landolt's broken rings. In the "E" test, for example, the child points in the direction of the "E" with the finger of a hand-held wooden "E." In the broken-ring test, the child points to the break in the ring.

Near-vision charts are designed to be read at 14 to 16 inches. These utilize the smallest type that can be read at the distance at which the card is held. There are many different test cards containing printed paragraphs, words, music, pictures, and numbers.

HIGHLY sophisticated equipment is available for determining refractive errors of the eye so that proper glasses can be prescribed. One is a projector with slides (with Snellen test letters, numbers, "E," dots, etc.) Various lenses are inserted into trial frames to determine the best lenses for comfortable working and reading. The phoropter is a more complicated device, but is preferred because it offers the ophthalmologist speed of exchange of lenses and a completely enclosed lens housing. An entire set is mounted on a circular wheel so that each lens can be brought before the opening by the turn of a dial.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

NAILBITING AND PINWORMS

Mrs. D. writes: Since my child became infested with pinworms, she has become a nailbiter. Do you think that two are related?

REPLY

No. Years ago, nailbiting and other bad habits in children were blamed on pinworms. Pinworm infestation may make the child nervous and restless, which possibly could lead to biting the nails.

SPLAY FOOTED

S. T. writes: Should anything be done about a Charlie Chaplin walk in a 1-year-old baby?

REPLY

Most children of this age are just learning to walk and the majority keep the feet apart to maintain balance. Walking with the toes out is a variation, but if it continues, a small wedge on the bottom of each shoe will encourage turning in of the feet.

HOUR-GLASS STOMACH

L. writes: What is a cascading stomach?

REPLY

This term is used when the stomach has an hour-glass appearance.

NEGLECTED VARICOSITIES

R. O. Writes: What is the danger of letting varicose veins go on and on? Ice bags relieve pain and swelling for awhile.

REPLY

The consequences are painful ulcers and unsightly discoloration. In addition, the enlarged veins may become infected and set the stage for a dangerous blood clot. These complications are not common, but are worth avoiding. Furthermore, varicose veins are disturbing the local circulation and detract from the appearance of the leg.

BLOOD SUGAR LEVEL

F. L. writes: How high can the blood sugar level go without proving fatal?

REPLY

It is not the height of the sugar in the blood, but the severity of the associated acidosis that counts most.

Japanese Survey On Human Rights

TOKYO (UPI)—Nearly four out of every 10 Japanese believe children who fail to provide for their parents in old age are guilty of violating human rights, according to an official survey among 2,496 persons over 20 years old.

A majority of those surveyed also said violations of human rights include police search of individuals, dismissal of union strikers, air pollution and circulating irresponsible rumors.

Trial Set In Burglary Case

A jury trial has been set for the week of May 15 in Marin Superior Court for Michael Earl Frank, 20, of Forest Knolls, who is charged with burglarizing the San Geronimo Golf Club March 9.

He was arrested by sheriff's deputies who said they found him inside the club when they answered a burglar alarm.

Frank was armed with a kitchen knife and a cleaver when arrested, according to deputies.

Nazi 'Final Solution' And That Of Rome

SO LONG AS some of those who escaped Hitler's "final solution of the Jewish question" remain among us, we will continue to hear new stories of how it was in those terrible times.

Doctor R was a public health physician in Munich when the Nazis rose to power. Nazi leaders arranged for a portrait to be painted of Doctor R because he embodied all of the physical characteristics which Hitler attributed to his imagined Nordic super-race.

Doctor R's portrait showed him to be tall, handsome, full-bearded, powerful looking. When his approval was sought for the use of the portrait for "educational" purposes, Doctor R readily granted approval, on one condition: under the picture it must say plainly that Doctor R was a Jew.

This cost Doctor R his job and his property. It could have cost him and his family their lives, had they not fled their native land.

That was long ago. Doctor R is dead. But his daughter lives among us here in the Bay Area today.

HERR S WAS a successful banker in Munich when Hitler rose to power. For generations, Herr S's ancestors had been bankers in Munich.

In business and in his personal life, Herr S was regarded by many as an oppressive tyrant. He was harsh and unfeeling in his dealings with employees and family.

Herr S was especially unreasonable when it came to matters affecting his personal comfort. He was the terror of waiters, innkeepers, laundresses, housekeepers, tailors and nearly everyone else with whom he came in contact. None could perform to his satisfaction.

It is likely that the Nazis took special delight in consigning him to the rigors of a concentration camp.

Camp guards must have taken special delight in the prospect of seeing him complain when they shut off the hot water in the midst of winter.

Herr S surprised all. He was first into the icy shower without a shudder. He emerged as if it had been an enjoyable, warming experience, staring stiffly at his tormentors. Herr S became the unflinching example for all his fellow Jews in the concentration camp.

Fortunately for Herr S, he was sent to concentration camp long before the "final solution" was instituted and it was still possible for some to gain release. He fled to Britain and lived the rest of his days alone, working as a humble cloth cutter. Today he is remembered by those who knew him not as a hateful tyrant, but as the brave, unflinching leader who stood up to the concentration camp guards. He is remembered especially by a niece who lives today not far from San Rafael.

THOSE OF US who saw the rise and fall of Hitler's Nazi reich from afar believed what he wanted the world to believe: that his nation and its people were solidly behind him to a man.

If you read Albert Speer's "Inside the Third Reich," you know that such was not the case. If you read "The Order of the Death's Head," you know that even the dread SS was torn by a thousand schisms.

The stories of those who escaped the "final solution" confirm many of Hitler's supporters had private reservations.

When Doctor R had to leave Munich, he went to a lawyer known for Nazi sympathies for legal advice in connection with property disposition.

After the war, when Doctor R's family returned to Munich, they discovered that the papers prepared by the Nazi lawyer contained provisions which insured the rights of the R family to their property when Jewish oppression was ended.

Who helped hide Herr S's second wife, a Jewess, from the Nazis? None other than Herr S's divorced first wife, a good German gentile.

NEITHER DOCTOR R nor Herr S was a wholly committed, orthodox Jew. Herr S's family, in fact, were Christian protestants.

Today's survivors of those families will tell you that Hitler's persecution of Jews had the ultimate effect of strengthening Jewry and the Jewish faith.

To those of us with even a casual acquaintance with the Old Testament, this should come as no surprise. The Israelites, God's chosen people, went through one calamitous situation after another for thousands of years and always survived — with strengthened faith in God.

Christianity has had comparable experience. At its inception, it was banned and outlawed. Its followers were put to death. It survived and became stronger.

The great reformer Martin Luther once observed that a strong Christian church could endure only about two centuries before falling into impotency and error. Only after a period of travail and oppression would it emerge strong again, he observed.

Yesterday, Good Friday, we commemorated the Romans' "final solution to the Christian question." They crucified Christ, at the instigation of the Jewish establishment of that day.

Tomorrow we commemorate the resurrection of Our Savior who triumphed over that "final solution" 2,000 years ago.

Christians who perceive all this will feel greater kinship with Jews who escaped Hitler's "final solution."

Christians and Jews worship the same God. Obviously He has seen to it that His people survive no matter what worldly adversity and persecution they face.

Adversity turns out to be a tempering process; those who survive are stronger.

Christian churches in America today face mounting problems. These problems probably will get much worse before they get better; but in the end we can be sure that Christianity will emerge stronger than ever.

That is one message contained in Christ's triumph over crucifixion which we can ponder on this Easter eve.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Ex-Warden Duffy Responds To Questions

In your letter to the editor section of your March 28 issue, J. J. Kentzel of San Rafael asks me some questions.

Q — When did Mr. Duffy decide he was opposed to the death penalty?

A — I have ALWAYS been against the death penalty. I have never changed.

Q — Did Mr. Duffy decide that executions were "very gruesome" before he was appointed warden, after he was appointed warden, or after he was appointed to the Adult Authority?

A — From my childhood I learned from my father and other officers that hangings were very gruesome. When I went to work at San Quentin Prison in 1929 and was required to accompany the then warden during hangings I personally learned that hangings were gruesome in all respects. When I was appointed warden I learned that the lethal gas chamber was equally as gruesome and brutal.

Q — Why did I accept any of these appointments?

A — I liked every phase of my jobs, including the warden, except the executions. Just about every job in the world has a bit of something about it that the holder does not like. They do not quit, they try to change that part to the better. That is what I have been doing all these years. I do not believe Mr. Kentzel quit whatever job or jobs he held because he did not like a certain part of them. I hope he stuck with them and made the necessary changes.

I base my belief on the abolition of the death penalty on several areas. The most important one is that "it is wrong to kill." I have never upheld killings or any other crime. I believe in punishment but not corporal punishment or executions. Two wrongs do not make a right. When the state or federal government carries out an execution they have, in my way of looking at it, premeditated another murder. Our prisons are well equipped to take care of those committed to their care. Many must die in prison, some can be released.

You've Gotta Be A Loser To Win In The Primaries

WASHINGTON — One of the hardest things the American people have to do for the next four months is interpret the results of the Democratic presidential primaries. The only thing that you can be usre of is that they don't appear to be what you think they are.

This seems to be what is going on every time you turn on the TV set:

"SEN. EDMUND MUSKIE won the Lethargy State primary today by 35.8 per cent. This was considered by most political observers here as a defeat for the Muskie forces because they had predicted that their man would win by at least 41.5 per cent.

"Runner-up in Lethargy State was Sen. Hubert Humphrey with 18.4 per cent of the vote. Humphrey announced he had actually won the race because the polls had given him only 15 per cent. 'If it hadn't been for what happened in Chicago in 1968,' Humphrey said, 'I would have got 65 per cent of the vote.' He added, 'I am very satisfied with the showing and the fact that so many people are still behind me.'

"Sen. George McGovern got 9 per cent of the vote, which he said was a moral victory for him, the sixth moral victory he has won since the New Hampshire primary. He told reporters that Muskie and Humphrey had failed to sustain any drive in Lethargy State, and he suggested they both drop out of the race.

"Mayor John Lindsay also received 9 per cent of the vote, which he said was enough to make him stay in. 'We figured we would be lucky to get 5 per cent,' Lindsay told his supporters at a victory party in the Hotel Boredom. 'Nine per cent is a triumph beyond our wildest dreams. I accept this as proof that the people want true political reform.'

"GOV. GEORGE WALLACE of Alabama got 8 per cent of the votes, which he said makes him the only victor in the state. 'Mah 8 per cent in a state which wouldn't put me on the ballot in 1968 can only be seen as a victory for mah stands on busing, bureaucracy and slavery. People say that ah am running in the Democratic primaries only so ah can run for President in a third party. Wal, ah want to tell those people something. When you get 8 per cent of the vote in Lethargy State, there is no reason to start a third party because ah'm the only winner the Democrats have.'

"Sen. Henry Jackson got 5 per cent of the vote, which he said was much better than he had expected, considering the fact that no one in Lethargy State knows who he is. 'I'm sure if they knew me,' Senator Jackson said, 'the results would have been different. But despite my showing here, I still will not reveal the names of the people who have donated to my campaign. The issue of this election is trust, and the people who gave me money trust me.'

"Former Sen. Eugene McCarthy came in with less than 1 per cent of the vote. When asked by our reporter how he explained this, he said in surprise, 'I didn't even know I was running in the primary.'

"Asked if he would still remain in the campaign, McCarthy replied, 'Ok course. I didn't get into politics to read poetry.'

"SO THERE YOU have it, ladies and gentlemen, the results of the Lethargy State primary. As we see it here in central control, this has been a major defeat for Humphrey since he came in second, George McGovern and John Lindsay by not improving their percentages are still holding their own, Gov. George Wallace refuses to start a third party yet, Scoop Jackson by getting 5 per cent of the vote is beginning to make people sit up and take notice, and Gene McCarthy with less than 1 per cent of the vote seems to have come out of this primary a sure winner."

Hussein's Peace Plan Draws Public Denunciation, Private Study

We have watched with fascination the way Arabs and Israelis have balanced their denunciations of King Hussein's proposal for a new start toward peace in the Middle East. The Israelis have apparently been most careful to sound just a little more disapproving than do the Egyptians, and this is precisely why we think that some good may come of all this.

Needless to say, a kind word for King Hussein from Israel could all too easily have ended both the new peace move from Jordan and even the king himself. The hardest part of King Hussein's task is to persuade fellow Arabs to recognize and accept the possibility that they themselves will be better off from a settlement with Israel than from going on with the pretense that someday they are going to conquer it. They aren't.

THIS IS THE KEY point in a change in Arab attitude which could make a big difference. King Hussein himself understands this, as well he might. During his last round of fighting with the Palestinian guerrillas he was the beneficiary of the military power of Israel and its ally, the United States.

There was for the king a grim moment when Syrian tanks crossed the frontier into Jordan to help the guerrillas. At that moment the Israelis moved their own armor up to the frontier and the United States Sixth Fleet steamed toward the eastern Mediterranean to give air cover.

A lot has been said about changes in the balance of power in the Middle East, but the combination of Israeli tanks and planes from the big carriers of the U.S. Sixth Fleet was a lot more power than anything else in that part of the world. The Syrian tanks went back into Syria. Things have been just a little different in the Middle East ever since.

That story is why King Hussein is completely correct when he says now that the present situation in the Mwddle East rules out the use of force against Israel. The power simply isn't there which could overcome the combination which drove the Syrian tanks back into Syria last year.

Hence King Hussein proposes a settlement which would formalize what is actually happening right now. Informally, trade and people are now moving freely among the three political elements of what was once Palestine — Israel, the West Bank, and Jordan. There is de facto "common market." The problem is how to make it legal and formal.

THAT IS REALLY what he was proposing, with trimmings.

But if Israel had promptly bestowed a blessing, the plan would have been smothered. It had to be denounced from Israel, which Prime Minister Golda Meir did, with impressive enthusiasm.

Which clears the way for quiet, private, and serious negotiations about the precise terms of an arrangement under which Israel would obtain a safe, open, and friendly frontier along the valley of the Jordan. The value to Israel of such a safe frontier with Jordan would be enormous. So Israel is likely to give the matter more friendly consideration in private than would be prudent to show in public.

President Plays Two Tunes In Welfare Reform Proposals

By RICHARD L. STROUT
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Nixon has sometimes pushed his sweeping welfare-reform program as a humanitarian measure to benefit the poor (and thus appeal to liberals) and sometimes as a tough measure to scour the rolls of cheaters, save cost, and make recipients take jobs (which appeals to conservatives).

The President now returns to welfare matters with one of the strongest messages to Congress of his career, declaring that "the American welfare system is a national disgrace" and terming his own proposal "the most important single piece of social legislation to come before Congress in several decades."

This recalls Mr. Nixon's original all-out presentation to Congress in August, 1969, when Daniel Patrick Moynihan was at the White House.

In effect, Mr. Nixon now challenges the Democratic Congress, seven months before the election, to pass the program or take the onus for failure.

ONE RESULT of what critics called the hot and cold approach is that the President's plan is attacked by militants of both factions.

Elements of the right call it socialistic and communistic: militants of the left, last week end, staged a protest in which 20,000 to 30,000 participated. Many children carried banners saying "Nixon doesn't care," and leaders denounced the proposed minimum income of $2,400 for a family of four and the requirement that mothers with children over 6 years old either work or register for work.

Mr. Nixon seems to approach welfare reform both from the right and left with an appeal for compassion, but also with a hard-boiled determination to hold down the costs and cut back chiselers.

Whether he can get a coalition in Congress that unites elements from both sides in a majority remains to be seen.

MR. NIXON STRESSES the extraordinary growth in welfare rolls: "Welfare costs have skyrocketed from $6.2 billion in 1969 to an estimated $9.4 billion in 1971 — a 51 per cent increase in just two years."

The case load, he says, has risen from 9.6 million in 1969 to 13.5 million today, with the prospect of 17.3 million by 1974.

He would, in effect, federalize the welfare system, and "place a floor beneath the income of all American families not able to adequately support themselves."

An official chartbook on poverty for the year 1970 just issued by the Office of Economic Opportunity says that over one person in eight now is poor (13 per cent), amounting to 26 million; of whom 10 million are children. Whereas the number of poor "fell steadily throughout the sixties," it rose by 1.2 million between 1969 and 1970.

Welfare rolls rose simultaneously. The hope that welfare costs can be lowered by forcing chiselers to go to work seems to be reduced by analysis:

Of the poor, about 34.4 per cent are children under 14, the OEO reports; 18.2 are elderly (65 and over); 4.7 are ill and disabled; 6.6 are in school, and there are only 12.3 per cent between 14 and 64 who don't work. Of these, 11 per cent are females, presumably many of them looking after children.

This leaves 1.4 per cent available males who don't work.

The definition of "poor" by the government are those under a poverty line of $3,970 for a non-farm family of four, headed by a male.

Mr. Nixon's basic floor to put under all families would be $2,400 for a family of four with no other income. This is about $1,600 below the poverty line. A family, however, would be allowed to earn $720 and still receive the $2,400 benefit without reductions.

A TRAGIC FEATURE of the welfare "mess" is that two-thrids of the poor do not get welfare. A family may earn so little as to be in poverty but ineligible for welfare. For the first time the Moynihan-Nixon program would include the working poor.

On Dec. 28, 1971, Mr. Nixon signed one welfare reform measure stressing the compulsory work feature of his program. It requires all able-bodied adult welfare recipients to take jobs or sign up for job training. This takes effect July 1.

The bill is hailed by conservatives and severely criticized by welfare officials.

So far Mr. Nixon and Congress have fought what amounts to a scoreless tie on the bigger issue of comprehensive social welfare reform.

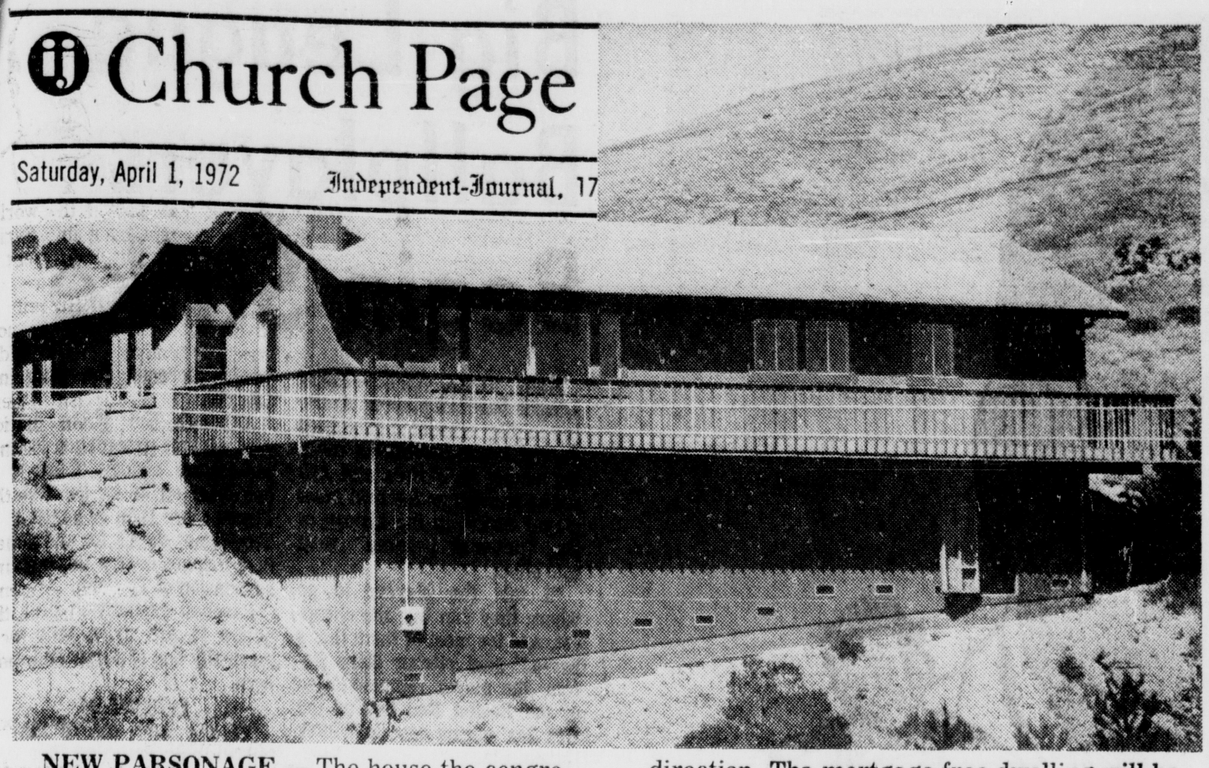
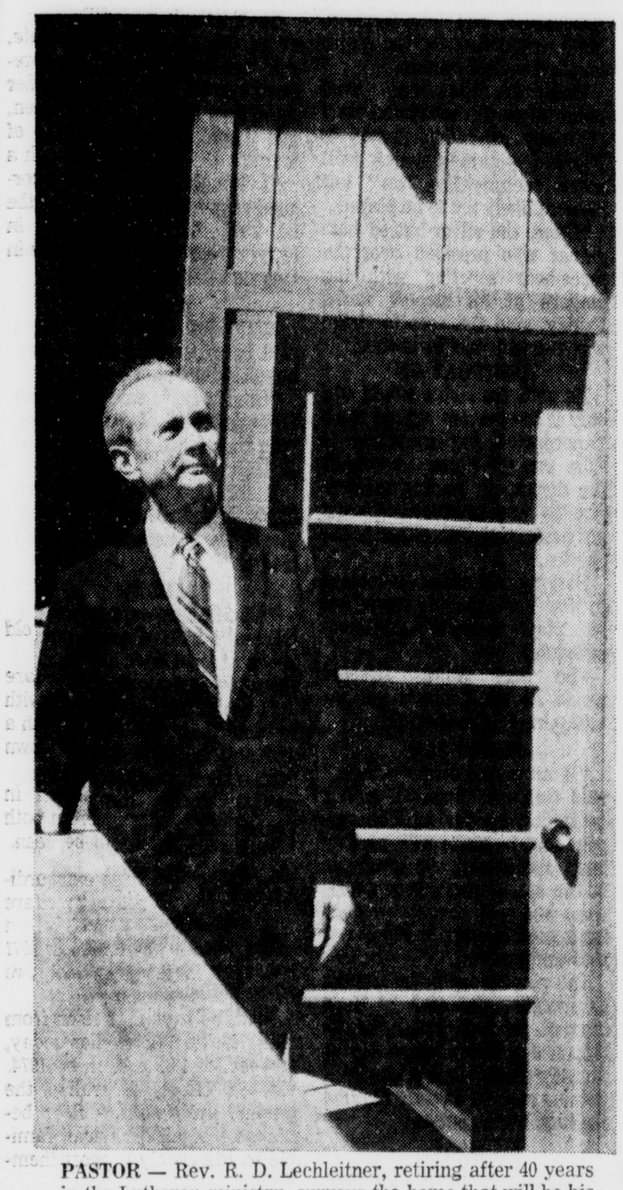
WORTH SAYING AGAIN

If once the people become inattentive to the public affairs, you and I and Congress and assemblies, judges and governors, shall all become wolves. — Thomas Jefferson.

Unless man has the wit and the grit to build his civilization on something better than material power, it is surely idle to talk plans for a stable peace. — F. B. Sayre.



NEW PARSONAGE — The house the congregation built for its pastor stands balconied on a Tiburon Peninsula hillside, a view in every direction. The mortgage-free dwelling will be dedicated tomorrow.



PASTOR — Rev. R. D. Lechleitner, retiring after 40 years in the Lutheran ministry, surveys the home that will be his successor's in a few short months.

New Parsonage Awaits Minister

When a new pastor arrives at the Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church in Tiburon sometime in the next few months, he'll be able to move into a new parsonage — one that's debt free.

The new building, which cost more than $30,000 to build, will be dedicated tomorrow following the 10 a.m. service by present pastor R. D. Lechleitner.

He's retiring, he said, and as soon as a new pastor is selected he can move into the three-bedroom, two-bath home. Lechleitner, pastor at the church for 18 months, has been a minister for 40 years.

He said construction of the new parsonage, at 9 Shepherd Way, began about three months ago. The church already owned the land, he said, but he estimated it would cost $15,000 to $20,000 if it had to be bought today.

Money for the building program was raised by the congregation partly through donations, he said, and partly through sale of other land owned by the church. The church still owns enough property to treble the size of its present 10-year-old church if it is necessary, he said.

The house, according to Lechleitner, "is so positioned as to take advantage of an unexcelled view on one side of San Francisco Bay and on the other side of Richardson Bay and from a third side a complete panoramic view of Mount Tamalpais."

It is finished in redwood to adapt to the scenic beauty of the site.

It has a room used as an office, a large living room and dining room combination and a large family room, one end of which can be made into a library.

Lechleitner, now 67, before coming to the Tiburon church, spent 23 years as director of the America Missions of the American Lutheran Church both before and after it combined with other Lutheran denominations.

He served for 12 years as minister of the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd in Los Angeles, then moved up to the missionary director's position and went to Columbus, Ohio. The last 11 years as missionary director were spent in Minneapolis, he said.

THE EASTER SEASON

A Very Significant Time

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

To a generation that has rediscovered Jesus, Easter has a special significance.

As an event unique in history, the resurrection is God's warranty to mankind that Jesus was on the level: He was what he claimed to be —not some kind of a nut.

Those are really the only alternatives, in my view. Or as the late C. S. Lewis said, it is "patronizing nonsense" to speak of Jesus as a great human teacher.

Consider some of the things he did and said. He claimed power over nature —power to heal sickness, calm storms, turn water into wine. He blithely told people, "Your sins are forgiven," outraging pious Jews who considered this a blasphemous usurpation of a right belonging solely to God. He spoke of God as his Father, and used an Aramaic term, "Abba," which has the same familiar, intimate, tender overtones as our English term, "Pop."

He said: "I am the way; I am the truth; and I am the life; no one comes to the Father except by me."

Shortly before his arrest and crucifixion, one of his disciples, beginning to feel nervous and doubtful, pleaded for a vision of God to bolster his sagging faith.

"Have I been all this time with you, and you still do not know me?" Jesus replied. "Anyone who has seen me has seen the Father. Believe me when I say that I am in the Father and the Father in me; or else accept the evidence of the deeds themselves."

A man who says things like that cannot be categorized as a great human teacher. Either he was paranoid —clean out of his head —or he was, in fact, the Most Special Messenger ever sent from God to man.

Since we're sometimes arrogant enough to think skepticism is an invention of our generation, and that men of all previous cultures are hopelessly naive and gullible, it is important to note that Jesus' disciples were by no means sure, when they saw him nailed to the cross, which alternative to believe. In fact, they must have leaned toward the cynical one, for they fled into hiding to save their own lives.

Yet, three days after they saw him dead, they saw him alive —not a ghost, but a living person with a recognizable body, capable of doing such very mundane things as eating a piece of broiled fish, one whose wounds could be touched and examined.

If it really happened —and the eyewitnesses cheerfully endured martyrdom rather than deny the reality of the event they witnessed —its significance is clear. It was not just a stunt proving that God can resuscitate a corpse: no First Century Jew doubted that possibility.

The significance lay —and lies —in the fact that God saw fit to do so —IN THIS ONE INSTANCE.

It is not the believability of the Resurrection, but its hard-to-believe uniqueness that ought to be stressed at Easter. For it was in the Resurrection, as the Apostle Paul said in his letter to the Romans, that Jesus was "declared Son of God by a mighty act."

THE TRIUMPHANT ENTRY

Tomorrow will herald the dawning of the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the cross. Last Sunday — Palm Sunday, celebrated his triumphant entry into Jerusalem. Youths at the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael recreated the scene last Sunday with Jim Armington (center) portraying Jesus. Others are (left to right) Curtiss White, Andrea Davis, Steve Lussier and Eric Van Genderen.

Are you a Unitarian without knowing it?
1. Do you believe the Bible to be an inspiring human document, rather than the literal "word of God"?
2. Do you believe that man is not condemned by the doctrine of "original sin," but is inherently capable of improvement?
3. Do you believe the development of character to be more important than the accepting of religious creeds?
4. Do you believe the purpose of religion is to help us live this life nobly and constructively, rather than to emphasize the preparation for an after-existence?
The Unitarian answers are affirmative. Join with other religious liberals who insist upon individual freedom of belief and the use of reason in religion.

You and church.
Every time you see someone as perfect as God made him, every time you dissolve a friend's fear with love, you are a living example of church.
Church means reaching out with compassion to all mankind. It is working to see God's goodness realized in everyone's life—proving His power to heal any problem. It is something you can practice every day.
We invite you to learn more about what church is, and to hear a simple Christian service. Won't you come?

Ali Jabs Decision Foster

TOKYO, Japan (UPI)—Scoring repeatedly with left jabs, Muhammad Ali Friday waltzed to a unanimous 15-round decision over outclassed Mac Foster in a non-title heavyweight bout.

There were no knockdowns in the first bout between ranking heavyweights ever staged in Asia.

Ali, who entered the ring carrying a placard reading "Five R" failed to deliver on his pre-fight prediction of a fifth round knockout, though he tried his best in the fifth with looping lefts and right uppercuts.

Referee John Crowder, a U.S. Air Force sergeant stationed in Japan, scored it 73-65, while Japanese judges Hiroyuki Tezaki and Takeo Ugo had it 74-65 and 75-67, all for Ali.

The UPI card had it 74-64, also for Ali.

Ali, 30, entered the ring at 226 pounds, the heaviest weight for any fight in his career. Foster, the world Boxing Association's No. 9 heavyweight, weighed in at 211 3-4 pounds.

The fight drew a crowd of 15,000 at Tokyo's Budokan Auditorium, built for martial arts events in the 1964 Olympics.

Far too fast for the game but plodding Foster, Ali took charge in the first round, scoring repeatedly with fast left jabs to the face.

The second round was even, with Foster scoring with body punches. Ali kept up the steady drumfire of left jabs and right uppercuts to the head to take the third, fourth, fifth and sixth rounds.

Foster had his best round in the seventh when he drove Ali to the ropes and pounded him repeatedly with short, piston-like body punches. They were even in the eighth when Foster cornered the former champ again and delivered a jolting series of body blows.

The body punishment failed to take the steam out of Ali, who was still dancing briskly in the later stages of the fight.

Shooting hard lefts to the jaw, Ali took the ninth and Foster startd bleeding from a cut on his forehead.

The 10th round was even, and

SOME KEY WARRIORS

Big League Ballplayers Begin Strike

NEW YORK (UPI) —Major League baseball players, spurning to play scheduled exhibition games, began leaving the training camps in Florida and Arizone Saturday as the first mass player strike in the history of the "national pastime" went into effect.

"I told the players to go where they can live the cheapest, and for most of them that's home," said pitcher Gary Peters, the player representative of the Boston Red Sox at the Red Sox' spring base in Winter Haven, Fla.

A 4:30 p.m. EST meeting was scheduled in New York between Marvin Miller, executive director of the Baseball Players Association, and John Gaherin, chief negotiators for the major league baseball owners.

However, that was three hours after the scheduled start of many exhibition games in Florida —games which still were technically "on" but seemed likely not to be played.

Miller, the silver-haired bargainer who presided over the three-hour meeting with the players at an airport motel Friday, said the vote to strike was 47-0 with one abstention.

ARBITRATION

He said the strike would end only if the owners agreed to an "appropriate settlement," or if "the owners agree to submit the dispute to binding arbitration by any prominent person not associated with either of the parties."

Barring a morning settlement in New York, players vowed not to play today's exhibition schedule.

The first games affected would be six contests set for 1:30 p.m. EST in Florida.

SUSPENSION

"If an actual strike occurs," said Gahrein, "then all games beginning Sunday will be suspended. The clubs will, as they have throughout, be available to the association's representatives and will bargain in good faith with respect to the issues that are involved."

The players want the owners to increase the size of their current pension plan by $850,000, which the players say is already available because of a surplus amount already put into the fund by the owners.

INCREASE

Club owners have said they would increase the plan by $400,000.

Although the strike action was without precedence in major league history, there was one brief strike by the Detroit Tigers more than 50 years ago. The Tigers struck for one game in a dispute over a three-game suspension of Ty Cobb.

Baseball executives' first reaction to the strike vote was generally one of anger and concern.

ONE TEAM

"If one team out of the 24 fails to play Saturday then the owners will shut down baseball on Sunday," said Houston Astro General Manager H. B. "Spec" Richardson.

Stu Holcomb, general manager of the Chicago White Sox, said his team's minor league farm system could not function more than 10 days without revenue from the major league team.

"I thought we had a pretty good rapport with our players," he said. "But they have a lawyer representing them and they do what he wants."

ALLYN

White Sox owner John Allyn said he expected a long strike, but would not elaborate.

"Obviously," said Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, "the losers are the sports fans of America."

Miller said that during Friday's meeting "all developments were discussed at great lengths."

ALL 24

"All 24 clubs were represented, and I believe every person spoke at least once and most of them two or three times.

"I would just like to point out to you that this is the first strike in history. There have been strikes by other organized groups down through the years."

Miller said, however, the player's association has no strike fund.

MINOR EFFECT

The players' vote had a minor effect on a night exhibition game in Houston Friday.

Minnesota players were already in the dugout in preparation for the game with Houston when word of the strike vote reached them. They immediately left the dugout and held a team meeting in the locker room.

Minnesota Surges By Seals, 2-1

OAKLAND (UPI) — Danny Grant and J.P. Parise scored third period goals for Minnesota Friday night to break up a scoreless game and give the North Stars a 2-1 victory over the California Golden Seals in a National Hockey League game.

Reggie Leach of the Seals spoiled Minnesota goalie Gump Worsley's bid for a shutout when he backhanded a fivefooter through the goaltender's pads with 1:20 remaining to play while California had a man advantage.

Through the first two periods, Worsley and Gary Kurt, the Seals' goalie, were superb, turning back frequent attacks. Then at 14:32, Grant got his 18th of the season following a goal-mouth pass from Dennis Hextall for the North Stars' first goal and at 16:40 Parise scored his 19th when he tipped in Bill Goldsworthy's shot from in front of Kurt.

Leach's 13th of the year came with North Star Charlie Burns in the penalty box and Worsley was down on his knees when the puck bounced off him and trickled over the line at 18:40.

Minnesota won the season series 4-1-1 and the secondplace West Division North Stars concluded their regular season play in Vancouver on Sunday. The Seals, eliminated from a playoff berth, play Saturday night in Los Angeles to wrap up their season.

Score by periods:

IN OAKLAND

Warriors, Bucks Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) —To hear Larry Costello tell it, his Milwaukee Bucks will have no trouble in winning their best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series against Golden State, but Warrior guard Jeff Mullins has other ideas.

"We're not discouraged," said Mullins of their 118-103 loss to the Bucks in Milwaukee in the second game of their Western Conference matchup. "We only wanted one win in Milwaukee, and we got it." That came last Tuesday when the Warriors posted a 117-106 victory behind the sensational second-half performance of Jim Barnett.

"If we can't beat them in Oakland, we can't beat them," Mullins said. "No one expects to win three of four on the other guy's court."

Costello, the Bucks' coach, does not seem concerned that his club will have to play the next three games in Warrior territory, beginning tonight, 8 o'clock at the Oakland Coliseum. Each club has won one game.

"There's no doubt in my mind we can beat the Warriors," he said, "if we play our game.

"The Warriors are tough," he added, "but I'm not sure we couldn't beat them even if they won the first three games. We have a lot of pride and ability and we should win."

Warrior coach Al Attles, not so talkative but still confident, is concentrating on ways to stop two key Milwaukee players — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Curtis Perry.

Warriors' center Nate Thurmond was successful in containing the towering Jabbar on Thursday, holding him to only 12 of 27 shots.

But the surprising Perry scored 22 points against the Warriors in the Thursday victory.

Perry was the key for them," Attles said. "He's the guy we have to contend with."

Attles told his Warriors to "cool it" but Jim Barnett, star of his team's first playoff victory over Milwaukee, is miffed at Bucks coach Larry Costello.

Barnett, who scored 30 points in last Tuesday night's victory over the Bucks in Milwaukee and then slipped to only 10 in a runaway loss Thursday, was miffed at Costello for disparaging remarks directed at him.

After his Bucks routed the Warriors 118-93 Thursday night, Costello said of Barnett "He's not a 30-point player—not even against older men."

"Did that jerk say that?" Barnett asked.

"I didn't ask for all that publicity for having some success the other night," said the usually mild mannered Warriors guard. "I did what's supposed to be my job. I didn't want a big splash because I know you may feel like a jackass the next time out.

"But if Costello had that to say about me, he'd better realize that my second game performance wasn't my kind of game either. I'd like to think I can play somewhere in between.

Giants Reveal Rotation

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI)—Unless a baseball strike puts things in a different light, the San Francisco Giants are anxious to get on with regular season play and their final three exhibition games will just be for the record.

Barring a strike, the Giants were to play the San Diego Padres here today and Sunday and then next week the same two teams in a four-game series in the opening of the regular National League season.

More than likely, Don Carrithers, Juan Marichal and Sam McDowell will see service this weekend in final tuneups for the regular season with John Cumberland set to pitch against Santa Clara University in the final exhibition game next Monday.

The four are the pitchers manager Charlie Fox will go with as his starters, at least for the first month of the season. With numerous breaks, Fox may need only three pitchers, and they would be Marichal, McDowell and Cumberland.

These are the dog days of the spring when the players, anxious for the regular season to start,

Fox, as all managers, is aware of the situation but he wants to keep everyone sharp for the start of the long campaign, so all the regulars will be in the starting lineup this weekend, with the reserves taking over as soon as possible.

Fry The Winner

Ron Fry of San Francisco was the winner of last weekend's Professional Central California Bowlers association tournament at Nave Lanes in Novato. A story Thursday said the winner was Gary Campbell of San Jose. Campbell was second.

Boat Safety Free Course Set Monday

United States Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 14 will present a free Safe Boating course starting Monday, 7:30 p.m., in San Rafael High School's Room LA 101.

The 12-lesson course running two hours on Monday nights will cover: Safeway To Boating Enjoyment; Sailor's Language; Boat Handling; Legal Requirements; Rules of the Road; Aids To Navigation; Charts and Compass; Marine Engines; Knot Tieing; Sailboats; Weather; and Radio Telephone Usej

The program will be augmented by slides and movies.

Marin 'Cats Lose

Mitty High School of San Jose jumped out to an early 7-1 lead and held off a late Marin Catholic rally for an 8-6 victory yesterday in the second round of the Soquel Boosters baseball tournament in Santa Cruz. Don Bianchini was the losing pitcher.

4 Marin Swimmers Stand Out

Four young Marin Aquatic Club swimmers placed in six events last weekend in the Alameda Relays in Alameda.

Lisa Pasquinelli, Kate Stewart, Allison Hyde and Jeanine DeMont earned two firsts, two seconds, one third and one fourth place in racking up 52 team points.

The firsts for the girls came in the 100-yard breaststroke and 100 backstroke relays for the 8 and under age group.

Coach's Mark

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Florida University basketball coach Tommy Bartlett entered the 1971-72 season with an overall won-lost record of 75-55 for a .577 average.

Hendrick Homers Twice In A's Win

MESA, Ariz. (UPI)—George Hendrick is endearing himself to Oakland A's manager Dick Williams every time he gets a chance to play.

The young outfielder got another opportunity in an exhibition game against the San Diego Padres Friday and all he did was drive in three runs with two homers as the A's won, 8-0.

Jim Hunter, the likely opening day pitcher for Oakland next week, went the first seven innings and gave up seven hits, one walk and struck out two.

Mike Epstein and Bert Campaneris chipped in with homers as young Bill Greif went all the way for the Padres.

Hendrick's first homer was a solo smash in the first inning. It gave Hunter all the help he was to need to nail down the victory. Epstein's homer was a two-run blast and he hit it in the fourth. Hendrick followed with his second homer in the seventh and Campaneris closed things out with a three-run jolt in the eighth.

If the question of the major league players' strike is settled, the A's will host the Milwaukee Brewers today and then play the same team Sunday in nearby Tempe.

New Mexico Wins

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI)—New Mexico won both its games Friday in the Fresno State College baseball tournament, defeating Gonzaga 10-8 and taking the Bulldogs 9-2 in the second game.

OAKLAND FAVORED; GIANTS UNDERDOGS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)— The Oakland A's are favored; the San Francisco Giants are not.

If there is a baseball season in 1972, the Pittsburgh Pirates, Los Angeles Dodgers, Baltimore Orioles and Oakland Athletics are favored to win their respective division titles.

The defending world champion Pirates are listed as 5-2 choices to repeat in the National League East, according to Harrah's Lake Tahoe Race Book, with the Dodgers listed at 3-1 to win in the West.

Baltimore, a seven-game loser to Pittsburgh in the 1971 World Series, is an overwhelming 3-5 favorite to repeat as champion in the American League East while the A's, despite the absence of ace pitcher Vida Blue, are considered 2-1 choices in the West.

However, the future of the 1972 season was left somewhat in doubt Friday night when the players voted to strike.

Here are the complete odds for the coming season as listed by Harrah's:

American League East: Baltimore 3-5, Detroit 6-1, Boston and New York 15-1, Cleveland 80-1, Milwaukee 100-1.

American League West: Oakland 2-1, Minnesota 6-1, Kansas City 10-1, California 12-1, Chicago 20-1, Texas 100-1.

National League East: Pittsburgh 5-2, Chicago 7-1, New York and St. Louis 8-1, Montreal 50-1, Philadelphia 100-1.

American League West: Los Angeles 3-1, Cincinnati 7-2, San Francisco 5-1, Atlanta and Houston 12-1, San Diego 100-1.

Mike McCormick's Farewell To Game

YUMA — Mike McCormick no longer is with the San Francisco Giants. The 33-year-old southpaw won't be with any other major league club, either. From now on McCormick's career will be as an account executive with a stock broker's firm.

It was precisely 9:15 a.m. Wednesday in the clubhouse of the Giants at Phoenix Municipal Stadium that McCormick's 16-year major league career ended.

Charlie Fox called McCormick into his office at that time. They remained closeted for seven minutes. When McCor-mick came out he first went to Leo Hughes, trainer of the team, to get some pills for a nasty cold that made him slightly hoarse.

THEN, McCORMICK went to his locker and began cleaning it out. It was obvious that the manager of the Giants had told McCormick that he was unsuccessful in his comeback attempt since receiving his unconditional release last year, first by the New York Yankees and then the Kansas City Royals.

"It's disappointing, very disappointing," said McCormick to a baseball writer who had been watching the clubhouse scene. "Maybe I let the pressure get to me too much. But it's just one of the facts of life and I can live with it.

"NO, I WON'T make any try with any other club. I couldn't have asked for a fairer shake than Igot from the Giants. They all were great — and I mean from the president, Horace Stoneham, down to the bat boy.

"I knew Mr. Stoneham and Charlie Fox, too, were pulling for me to make it. It didn't work out but I'll always be grateful for the opportunity they gave me. And I'll always remember Mr. Stoneham's encouraging comment at Casa Grande on the first day of spring training that I might be the surprise of the spring.

"I STARTED my baseball career with the Giants and it ended with them. They are a first class outfit — first class all the way."

McCormick is a first class fellow himself and the manner in which he spoke proved it once again. At least, there was some compensating reward for McCormick in his comeback try. He found out that his back no longer will plague him as it once did.

"I never felt better," he said. "This spring was the first time in years that I was free of pain when pitching."

McCORMICK decided to make his comeback bid following an operation last summer to correct a slipped disc.

It was ironical. For the first time in as long as he could remember, McCormick was free of pain on a major league mound but, at 33 and after a year's inactivity against competitive bats, the ball no longer would go where the southpaw tried to pinpoint it.

ONE CHAMPION PINS ANOTHER

Two-time world champion Hideaki Yanagida of Japan pinned Guatemalan Olympian Arturo Fuentes in the first round last night during the United States Wrestling Federation National Tourney at Stillwater, Okla. Both wrestlers weighed in at 125 pounds.

Baltimore, Atlanta Win

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

"There's No Place Like Home" was sung by a chorus of dribbled basketballs Friday night in Baltimore and Atlanta.

The Bullets and the New York Knicks confronted each other in another playoff struggle and what happened was like what happens every time these two teams meet. They come together like cats on a hot tin roof.

The scratching and clawing went into overtime, the hissing was for Earl Mlonroe and Archie Clark emerged as the top cat with 38 points in a 108-105 Bullets victory.

The win extended the Bullets' home court hex over the Knicks to six straight playoff victories.

The Hawks checked Boston's fast break and beat the Celtics, 113-104, for the first time this season. Boston had won five straight meetings between the two clubs, four in the regular season and the first playoff game on Wednesday.

Clark had a tremendous night, hitting on 15-of-32 from the floor and eight straight at the foul line, including a clutch pair with 39 seconds remaining in the extra session to give Baltimore the lead for good at 106-105. Jack Marin added the final points of the game on another pair of three throws with three seconds left.

Clark's tenacity and the booing of the standing-room only crowd of 12,289 upset the poise of former Bullet Monroe, who was hit with three quick charging fouls and scored only five points in 15 minutes of action.

Walt Frazier scored 31 points and Dave DeBusschere added 24 for the Knicks, who will try to even the Eastern Conference series at 1-1 Sunday in New York.

Lou Hudson scored 41 points to pace the Hawks, while John Havlicek of Boston led all scorers with 43 points. The third game of the series shifts to Boston on Sunday.

Indiana, Virginia Triumph

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

The Indian Pacers and Virginia Squires have jumped off to early advantages in the American Basketball Association playoffs.

Roger Brown and Bob Netolicky teamed for 52 points to lead Indiana to a 102-96 victory over the Denver Rockets Friday night while rookie Julius Erving scored six of his 32 points in overtime to lift Virginia to a 114-107 triumph over the Floridians.

Both games were on the opening night of the ABA quarterfinal playoffs, which resume today with a full slate of four games. In addition to the Floridians meeting Virginia at Hampton and Indiana hosting Denver in the second games of those respective series, the defending champion Utah Stars will begin their quarter-finals at home to Dallas and New York will be at Kentucky.

Brown led all scorers at Indianapolis with 28 points and Netolicky added 24 as the Pacers overcame a nine-point deficit just after halftime. Denver still managed to hold a 90-89 edge with just five minutes left to play, but Pacer Captain Freddie Lewis and Mel Daniels keyed the winning Indiana spurt.

Ralph Simpson led Denver with 26 points and rookie center Dave Robisch had 25.

Erving put the Squires ahead for good after 14 seconds of the overtime after Willie Long of the Floridians had forced the extra session by converting a jumper with 45 seconds left in regulation to tie the score at 99-all.

Long and Warren Jabali led the Floridians in scoring with 22 points each.

Twitty Wins College Golf; Leach In 4th-Place Tie

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

SANTA CRUZ — Howard Twitty shot a two-under-par 68 yesterday for a record-breaking 54-hole total of 205 yesterday, giving him the individual championship and leading Arizona State University to the team title in the 26th annual Western Intercollegiate golf championships.

Brigham Young University golfer Ray Leach, a Novato native, shot a 74 for an even-par total of 216 and finished tied for fourth with Tom Keelin of Stanford. Roger Maltbie of San Jose State was second at 209 and Mitch Voges of U.S. International third at 214.

Twitty's 205 erased the record of 214 set last year by Rick Sims of Long Beach State. Arizona State's team total of 867 was also a record.

Basketball

LOS ANGELES — In the face of a report that he is the No. 1 candidate to become head coach of the National Basketball Association Portland Trail Blazers, Bob Boyd says he plans to return to University of Southern California next season.

NHL ROUNDUP

Toronto Sets Playoff Bid

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The fourth and final playoff berths in both divisions of the National Hockey League could be decided tonight as the regular campaign enters its final weekend.

The Toronto Maple Leafs, holding down fourth place in the East by two points over Detroit, can assure themselves of a place in the Stanley Cup playoffs by either beating or tying the New York Rangers. However, if the Leafs lose on their home ice, they could wind up out of the picture if they also lose at Boston while Detroit wins at Chicago on Sunday.

Even though both teams then would wind up with 78 points, the Red Wings would earn fourth place on the basis of most victories.

In the West, the Philadelphia Flyers lead fifth-place Pittsburgh by two points and can clinch fourth by beating the Penguins at home tonight. On Sunday, Pittsburgh is at home to St. Louis while Philadelphia travels to Buffalo.

Two meaningless games, as far as the final standings are concerned, were played Friday night. In these, the Minnesota North Stars edged the California Golden Seals, 2-1, and Ralph Backstrom's goal with 55 seconds left in the game gave the Los Angeles Kings a 4-4 standoff with the Vancouver Canucks.

Allen Arrives In Chicago Camp

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Now that the spring training season apparently has been halted, Dick Allen has come out of hiding.

Allen, who has been incommunicado with the Chicago White Sox' management since March 14, showed up mysteriously at the team's Sarasota, Fla., spring training camp Friday night just one hour after the player representatives in Dallas had unanimously agreed to strike today against baseball's owners.

Allen arrived from Philadelphia with his agent, Alfred Morris, and talked contract with White Sox' General Manager Stu Holcomb for about an hour. The two men did not reach an agreement but were to meet again today.

Allen, who reportedly spurned a $120,000 contract earlier this spring, has not worked out once with the White Sox but may not find himself too far behind the others should the strike go on for any length of time.

"You can throw spring training out the window if the strike lasts five or six days," says White Sox' Manager Chuck Tanner.

The strike takes form today with players expected not to show up for games at 12 exhibition sites. The remainder of the exhibition schedule will be suspended by the owners if the players strike today.

In what may have been the last exhibition games of the season Friday, Texas edged Montreal, 3-2; Cincinnati whipped Kansas City, 10-1; Oakland blanked San Diego, 8-0; the Cubs beat Cleveland, 7-3; Detroit downed Boston, 6-2; and Houston nipped Minnesota, 3-2. The White Sox' game with Pittsburgh and Baltimore's contest with the Yankees were rained out.

Tony Perez hit two homers and Denis Menke one in the Reds' victory.

Doug Rader's ninth-inning single scored Rick Renick and gave the Astros a victory over Minnesota and rookie catcher Terry Humphrey dropped outfielder Boots Day's throw at the plate in the ninth inning to allow the winning run to score as the Rangers nipped the Expos.

The Pittsburgh Pirates placed veteran second baseman Bill Mazeroski on the 21-day disabled list with a back injury and the White Sox put outfielder Jim Lyttle on the 21-day disabled list with a recurring knee injury.

Bowler Weddell Rolls 705

Former San Rafael fireman Mike Weddell blazed to the Marin County bowlers' forefront this week.

The Santa Rosa resident bowled a 705 at Country Club Bowl, the top series recorded this week. His 222, 266 and 215 combined topped San Rafael's Ed Henry who bowled a 677 that included his first 300 game. Henry, a plumber, recorded his mark at Greenbrae Lanes in the Merry Mixers League Wednesday night.

BASKETBALL

Kentucky Selects Coach Hall

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI)— Young Joe B. Hall took command of a new basketball regime at the University of Kentucky, where the nation's most successful coach was forced into retirement, with a touch of Southern gallantry.

"I will not attempt to replace coach Adolph Rupp, as I feel he will be a part of Kentucky basketball forever," said Hall, 43, after his appointment Friday as the Wildcats' new head coach.

Hall, Rupp's assistant for the past six years, only hinted that he might do things a little differently — like recruiting more black athletes—in his soft-spoken promise "to continue the Kentucky style of basketball."

His selection by the University of Kentucky's athletic board surprised no one, since Hall was so solidly considered to be Rupp's heir-apparent that no other coach applied for the job. A four-year contract takes effect July 1.

On that same date, Rupp—Kentucky's coach for 42 seasons —begins a life of leisure forced on him by the athletic board. He reached the mandatory retirement age of 70 last September and, although he talked about running for Congress, the legendary "Baron of the Bluegrass" decided instead to spend his retirement years running a myriad of business interests.

"It was very evident from the first that he was the overwhelming choice for the job," said Dr. Otis Singletary, who had insisted Monday night that no commitment had been made to Hall, who played under Rupp in the late 1940s.

Hall, a native Kentuckian from Cynthiana, was a substitute on Kentucky's 1948 and 1949 national champions teams before transferring to Sewanee College in Tennessee, where he was a starter for two years.

Ali won all the rest. He had his best round in the 11th when he battered foster with a series of lefts and rights to the face, and appeared to have the former Marine from Fresno groggy.

Foster rode out the storm and had enough left for a brisk but ineffectual try for a knockout in the 15th.

Ali concealed himself for half an hour behind a curtain in his dressing room before meeting newsmen after the fight. Foster joined him for the press conference.

Ali's modesty contrasted sharply with his pre-fight boasting.

"I gave up trying to knock him out although I had predicted I would finish him in the fifth round," Ali said. "I couldn't knock him down because he was too great. Anyone who lasts 15 rounds with me is great."

Foster called Ali "the number one fighter," and said:

"He had extremely good jabs. I wanted to get in close during the fight but I couldn't. Also he had a good right hand. I'm glad that he gave me the opportunity to fight him, while the others have not given me such a chance. I'm not sorry to lose."

Golfer Rodriguez Not Fazed By Rain

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI)— Not even a soaking rain, which washed out the second round of the Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament, could dampen the spirits of Chi Chi Rodriguez.

"It doesn't bother us," said the talkative Puerto Rican Friday. "We just expect rain here and bring along our rain gear."

The second round of the $200,000 tournament was rescheduled for today with Julius Boros, J. C. Snead and Tucson Open winner Miller Barber sharing a one-stroke lead. The fate of the third and fourth rounds, however, remained in doubt.

Jack Tuthill, the PGA's tournament director, said a decision on the final 36 holes would be made after the course is examined today.

Two rounds could be played Sunday or the fourth round could be carried over to Monday, part of the Easter weekend holiday in North Carolina.

Boros, Snead and Barber turned in five-under-par 66's in Thursday's opening round over the 7,032-yard Sedgefield Country Club course before an all-night rain turned the fairways to mud.

A stroke off the pace were Australian Bruce Crampton, young Allen Miller, Deane Beman, Ken Still, Bob Lunn and Rod Curl.

Two strokes back in a bunch at 68 were Rodriguez, Lee Trevino, Gleason Classic champion Tom Weiskopf and San Diego Open winner Paul Harney.

Arnold Palmer, wearing contact lenses for the first time in tournament play, was in a group of 15 at two-under-par 69.

Only a couple of threesomes got on the course Friday before tournament officials decided shortly after 8 a.m. to put off the second round.

The decision was hardly a surprise for the tournament, which has suffered rainouts for two of the last three years.

A spring snowfall soaked the short Bermuda fairways last weekend and a Wednesday downpour worsened course conditions to the point where winter rules had to be invoked.

Lacrosse Game Set

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The Northern California Lacrosse Association will be up against international competition for only the second time in its seven-year history today when the All Stars host the Australian national team at City College. In their first game with the Aussies in 1967, the All Stars beat them 14-13.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Try this quiz on the April 1 birthday of Otto von Bismarck (1815-1898), Prussian statesman:

T F 1. The son of a Shonhausen blacksmith, this man was destined to have his birthday celebrated as a national holiday 80 years later.

T F 2. A brilliant university student and skilled diplomat, Otto was chosen at 47 by King William I of Prussia to lead his armies in a war on Russia.

T F 3. Bismarck's dream was to build a German Empire out of numerous kingdoms and principalities and to accomplish this he provoked one European war after another.

T F 4. When German states fought together in defeating France in 1871, it made them a new nation and Emperor William I made Bismarck his chancellor.

T F 5. A foe of socialism and a lifelong conservative, Bismarck nevertheless was the prince who gave Germans their accident, sickness, and old-age welfare programs.

ANSWERS

1. FALSE — Otto's parents were well-to-do and his father no blacksmith.

2. FALSE — The King sent Otto to Russia as an ambassador, not a general.

3. TRUE — Bismarck built armies by conscription at home and by treaties abroad.

4. TRUE — His victory also made Bismarck a prince.

5. TRUE — Under Bismarck, Germany got social security but little freedom.

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Nines And Eights Prove Useful In Borderline Bidding Decisions

Now and then somebody will advise you to bid more than you're inclined to because your hand is rich in eights and nines. An eight or a nine sometimes wins a trick that you couldn't take with a deuce or a trey. You can't tell about this kind of trick in advance, but when you have a borderline bidding decision, be optimistic when you have eights and nines; be pessimistic when your low cards are very low.

FIRST ACTION

Declarer took the first trick in dummy with the ace of clubs, drew two rounds of trumps with the ace and king and thendiscarded the queen of clubs on dummy's ace of spades.

Diamonds were now South's only problem.

Declarer led a low diamond from the dummy, and East played the seven, South promptly finessed with the nine of diamonds — winning the trick!

NO PEEKING

Don't get suspicious. South had not peeked at anybody's hand. He had simply made the right safety play to assure his slam.

If West could win that first diamond trick, only two diamonds would remain out, and South could surely capture those two diamonds with his ace and king. The finesse with the nine was necessary to guard against all four diamonds in the East hand.

POSSIBLE SAVE

East could not have saved himself by putting up the ten of diamonds. South would win with the king and would see West's discard. South would return a low diamond to the eight, forcing out East's jack. Then declarer would get to dummy with a trump to lead another diamond through East for a finesse.

Just put the nine of diamonds in East's hand, and where would South be?

DAILY QUESTION

Partner bids one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - None
♥ - A Q J 8 6 4
♦ - A K 9 6 2
♣ - Q 5.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

This hand is worth a jump response if partner opens with any suit but spades. Opposite a spade opening bid, however, a nonjump response is preferable.

New members of the Jack and Jill Branch of Marin General Hospital Volunteers will be among the honored guests at a luncheon Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Lee Brand in Greenbrae.

New members of the branch that raises funds for the pediatrics department of the hospital are Mmes. Rudy Tulipani of Ross, Erin Linder of Mill Valley and Donald Geddes Jr. and Keith Grady, both of San Rafael. Other guests will be George Folsom, president of the board of directors of the Marin Hospital District; Ray K. Bolinger, Marin General Hospital administrator; Mmes. Harriet Klock, director of nursing services; Barbara Johnson, pediatrics nursing supervisor; Mario Pellegrini, chairman of the council of volunteers, Constantine Carpou, branch liason chairman; and Mary Miller, coordinator of volunteers.

MEMBERS OF the Marin County Legal Secretaries Association will elect officers Wednesday at a meeting which will follow a cocktail hour beginning at 5:30 p.m. and a buffet dinner at the Bank of Marin meeting room in San Rafael.

Reservations chairman is Jane Swall of Kentfield.

MEMBERS OF the Novato Branch of the American Association of University Women are sponsoring a luncheon and house tour Friday from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Lunch will be served between noon and 2 p.m. at the Novato Community House.

Tickets are available from AAUW members.

THE SAUSALITO Woman's Club will elect officers at its meeting Thursday at 1:30 p.m. following an 11:30 a.m. board of directors meeting.

Tea will be served at 3 p.m. by Mmes. James Redmond McCarthy, Richard F. Grambow and James J. MacLaird. Other committee members are Mmes. Kenneth Logan, Lennart Ekman and David Freedheim.

A NOON luncheon on Friday at the Holiday Inn in San Francisco will be sponsored by the Women's Division of the San Francisco and Marin Democratic State Central Committee. It will feature Petaluma Mayor Helen Putnam and two other Bay Area elected officials speaking on the needs for legislation designed to improve the quality of life.

Mrs. Troy Lewis of San Rafael and Mrs. Harold Cutler of San Francisco are chairmen.

Mrs. Putnam will discuss the pressures of the growing society from a suburban point of view, San Francisco Supervisor Roger Boas from the urban view, and Assemblyman Leo McCarthy of the 19th Assembly District will discuss state issues.

Reservations chairman for the luncheon titled "The Delicate Balance" is Mrs. Lewis.

FRANK MICHELFELDER will speak at the Novato Federated Women's Club meeting Thursday in the Community Room of the Novato Library.

Preceding the talk at 11:15 a.m., will be a business meeting at 10:30 a.m., and coffee will be served by Mrs. Larry Beagle and her committee.

Michelfelder, owner of a drapery cleaners in San Rafael, will discuss the care and choosing of draperies for today's homes.

ROLE OF FOOD

Christian Doctrine Class Observes Jewish Passover

Carrying out the idea that the Passover of the Jewish religion has a significance for Christians, Mrs. Woodrow W. Robarge of Novato observed the Passover Seder Thursday afternoon as a part of the teaching for her Confraternity of Christian Doctrine class of children.

Blanche Robarge said that her family has been observing the custom followed in a number of Catholic homes of participating in a paschal ceremony based on the Jewish Seder on Holy Thursday.

SHE SAID that the connection was raised by Pope John XXIII between the Passover and the Last Supper, and she began to follow the custom after reading how it has been carried on in an article in the Catholic Standard of Washington, D.C., in 1966.

This year she decided to create the ceremony and foods for her CCD class.

She said that the key to the ceremony is the significance of the various foods — the paschal lamb bone, moror (bitter herbs), matzo (unleavened bread), parsley (the green vegetable signifying spring), boiled eggs, charoses (apples, raisins and nuts marinated in wine and spiced with cinnamon), and salt water.

The ritual begins with the lighting of candles by the woman of the house, praying that the light of God's countenance will bless the home. The father then blesses the wine and answers the question asked by the youngest participant, "Why is this night of Passover different from all the other nights of the year?"

THE STORY of the exodus is told and the symbolism of the meal given. Matzos symbolize the unleavened bread taken in haste by the ancient Jews fleeing from Egypt. The roasted shanbone recalls the sacrificial lamb, the egg the second offering brought to the Temple on Passover, the moror recalls the bitterness of slavery, the saltwater the tears, and charoses the mortar of bricks made by Jews to build the Egyptian cities during captivity. Wine is taken four times to recall the four-fold promise that the Lord made to the Israelites in Egypt.

Christians, she said, recall the institution of the Holy Eucharist and the Holy Orders at Christ's last supper, a departure, of course, from the Jewish Seder. One Christian family includes singing of hymns and reading of Psalm 16, and reading an account of the Last Supper by a child. The ritual ends with a recitation of the traditional Jewish grace said after meals.

Ashley, Williams Nuptials Exchanged

Christ Presbyterian Church in Terra Linda was the setting for the wedding of Maureen Anne Williams and Dr. Ronald Paul Ashley.

Colleen Williams was the only attendant for her sister at the Saturday morning ceremony. Dr. Lance Rasmussen of Larkspur served as best man.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Howard Williams of Marinwood.

After a wedding trip to Sun Valley, Idaho, the couple will live in Larkspur.

Maureen is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and the College of Marin Dental Assisting Program. She has been employed in Doctor Ashley's orthodontic offices in Marin.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Ashley of Atlanta, Ga. He attended college in Alabama and dental school in Chicago.

Missionary Society Picks New Officers

The Women's Missionary Soiiety members of the Bethel Baptist Church in Novato have elected Mrs. George Van Diepen president.

Eleanor Van Diepen, a native of Iowa, became a member of the organization four years ago when she and her husband moved to Novato. Van Diepen is an equipment specialist at the Presidio in San Francisco.

"Home and church are my main interests," Mrs. Van Diepen said. Sharing Bible study in the home and encouraging others in Bible study through personal contact are favorite pastimes, she said.

Club projects and activities are sewing and collecting clothing for a children's orphanage in Mexico and holding devotional studies at the Novato Manor Convalescent Hospital.

Other officers elected to serve with Mrs. Van Diepen are Mmes. Gerald Barnett, missionary chairman; James Hill, secretary, and Milford Carroll, treasurer.

Novatans Mark 50th Anniversary

Fifty years ago today a young intern and a senior nurse at a Milwaukee, Wis., hospital took the day off from work and were married.

Now Novatans, Dr. Robert Cunningham of Cadott, Wis., and the former Helen Fessenden of Edgerton, Wis., are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary tonight at the Officers Club at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Dr. Cunningham is a fifth generation doctor. He began his general practice in Cadott, but after 10 years of practice, he became the doctor for the Indian Service for the Apache Indians in San Carlos, Ariz.

"We thoroughly enjoyed our 10 years of life on the reservation," Mrs. Cunningham said. "The doctor sometimes had competition from the medicine man."

But she said their years with the Indians were perhaps the happiest of their life. They attended many of the Indian functions such as the wedding and snake dances.

Their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Cunningham, and grandson, Donald James, all of Van Nuys; and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Kaiser of Campbell and their children, Scott, Barbara Jane, Steve and

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Graduation Invitation Can Be Solved By Graduate Himself

DEAR RAP:

My nephew is graduating in June from high school and I am planning a family party for him. My sister (his mother) doesn't have a big enough house.

She is divorced from the boy's father and still bitter. She insists that only he (her ex) can get an invitation to graduation services (and my party), but not his wife. Of course he won't come under those circumstances.

I hear the wife is a lovely person — she didn't break up the marriage, but met him afterwards. The son thinks a lot of them both.

Is it ever proper to invite one of a couple and not both? My sister is making it so that her son's father won't see him graduated and I think this is a terrible shame. Don't you? — CAUGHT IN THE CROSSFIRE

DEAR CAUGHT:

We do. We do!

The graduation invitation should read "Mr. and Mrs. . ." As for the party afterwards, the couple will probably make no more than a token appearance, so why hassle it?

If your sister argues, tell her it's her son's special evening — and he should decide who gets invitations. She can't fault that! — HELEN AND SUE

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

My sister is into this natural-beauty-helps trip. You never know whether what's in the refrigerator is something for her face, or my stomach.

A guy wrote about his wife, who smeared herself with avocado. My sister even rubs it into her hair — along with beaten eggs. And then she rinses it with beer. Which I'd rather drink!

Now it's cornmeal. She washes her face in it, spilling it all over the bathroom. Gritty floors and scratchy soap I don't buy!

What's your opinion of this "back to nature" stuff, you two? — BROTHER

HELEN SAYS:

I lump "natural beauty aids" and organic health foods in the same bag —and figure it's filled with at least 50 per cent hot air.

These back-to-nature things make people feel worthy because they must work so much harder for results. But they don't produce miracles: Users seldom become appreciably more beautiful, vibrant, healthy, glowing — all those goodies true believers promise. — HELEN

SUE'S VIEWS:

I can't believe it: My mother, the world's greatest "Try it, you might like it" tester, going lukewarm on experiments! Look, Ma, you never followed a recipe or read a pattern instruction sheet in your life, so give the "naturals" a chance.

A cornmeal facial is great for oily skin and it might help remove blackheads too. Egg, lemon, avocado, bananas, etc., may not turn a dog into a fox, but they do a job on hair and complexion. And beauty operators use beer for rinses.

These aids are cheap, fun, and besides, anything close to nature can't hurt you. —SUE

LAST WORD FROM HELEN: . . .Unless "Sis" gets cornmeal in her eye —or spills it in her brother's beer.

Look, kid, I know several things close to nature which can hurt you. That's why I caution, "Don't go all out on trendy stuff, even though experiments are fun."

LAST WORD FROM SUE: Okay, Mother dear, I promise never to recommend poison ivy baths if you'll try a tomato puree-and-avocado facial. 'K?

LAST GASP FROM HELEN: Couldn't I eat it on a piece of toast? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A year ago I had a baby out of wedlock. The father wanted to marry me, but I refused. Then I met Joe, and the children (I have three) and I moved in with him.

I love Joe very much, but he isn't as good to us as at first. He's always yelling at the girls and everything has to be perfect. Yet he won't give me the security of marriage. He's separated from his wife, but not divorced, and isn't planning to be.

After all this time, the other man still wants to marry me. Call him Tim. He makes good money, will buy us a home, loves my two other girls as much as his own daughter, and is very kind. I respect Tim, but don't love him. I love Joe but am beginning not to respect him. Is it wise to marry just for the sake of your children and security? — S.K.W.

DEAR S.:

Such a marriage might be wise — for you and the children — but it wouldn't be fair to the man! Get Joe out of your life first, and you may be surprised how fast respect for Tim turns to love. — H.

Robert have invited 60 guests to the buffet dinner at Hamilton. Among the guests will be many of their Indian friends, Mrs. Cunningham said.

During World War II, Dr. Cunningham was called into the service and served 39 months in the South Pacific. During that time, Mrs. Cunningham worked at Fort Miley in San Francisco. Dr. Cunningham also served as medical director for the 12th district, Civil Service Commission before his retirement. The couple moved to Novato in 1956.

"Being of the same profession probably helped us to understand one another as did my realizing the unexpected calls that a doctor receives," Mrs. Cunningham said.

When asked what his hobby is Dr. Cunningham answered, "To stay alive." Mrs. Cunningham plays bridge occasionally and is a member of the Order of Eastern Star and the Novato Garden Club.

They both said that they have had a great life.

"We weren't bored ever, and we still are not bored," Mrs. Cunningham said. "We are enjoying every minute of our retirement."

Polyester Fabric Interfacing Tip

By EUNICE FARMER
(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)

DEAR EUNICE,

I am so confused about the correct interfacing to use for polyester fabrics, both knitted and woven. There are so many on the market, and every fabric store seems to suggest a different type.

Mrs. N.E.E.

DEAR MRS. N.E.E.,

There is never just one product that will do the trick. That is perhaps the reason you are confused. This often becomes a matter of individual preference. Even the teachers on my staff disagree.

We all agree on one type that always works, however. This is a featherweight, all bias, nonwoven type interfacing. It isn't bulky, washes beautifully and never loses its shape. It seems to give just the right amount of body to the areas that require permanent shaping. It is also dry-cleanable. However, when a garment is to be dry cleaned and never washed, I generally prefer a woven type interfacing.

MRS. FLOYD Randolph, Lafayette, La., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing tip for ladies' pants and shorts:

After stitching the center front and back seams of your slacks, which should be a continuous stitching done after the leg seams have been stitched individually, place a strip of one-quarter-inch cotton twill tape on this curved seam. Restitch on the same stitching line, catching in the twill tape. This will prevent the crotch seam from stretching after pants are worn. It also strengthens the seams. They won't pull apart after many wearings and washings.

DEAR EUNICE,

I recently completed a course of lessons in learning to fit a pair of knitted slacks perfectly. I was so delighted with my class and the results that the time and money spent paid off quickly.

However, I just cut out a pair of slacks from woven fabric, using my tried and true slack pattern, forgetting completely that this pattern was worked out to be used only for knit fabrics. How can I correct my "goof," because I can't squeeze into the pants as they are?

MRS. S.S.

DEAR MRS. S.S.,

There is an answer to your problem. This would also work beautifully for any of you who have gained in measurements during those winter months. Rip out the side seams and add one of those very attractive decorative braids to both side seams. You'll probably end up liking the slacks better now than you did originally. You could also use the same trim for a belt or as an accent to the collar, or pockets or a matching top.

Sometimes our mistakes turn out to be a blessing. Instead of fretting about them, since that doesn't help the matter, turn your creative mind to a correction. With home sewing, there is seldom a complete loss.

DEAR EUNICE,

Unfortunately, I'm not a pro at home sewing, but I feel this is a question that must plague every woman in the world. Our pet peeve is having to replace a whole set of new buttons (invariably eight or 10) on a double-breasted garment when one is lost. Why can't the manufacturers include an extra button? It would sure save consumers a lot of money and trouble. The most frustrating part about this is that they can never be matched at a fabric shop.

MRS. T.M.

DEAR MRS. T.M.,

Yes, this is an unfortunate situation. I couldn't agree with you more. At least the woman who makes her own clothes wisely buys an extra button, which is the cheapest insurance you can get.

Another solution is to remove the buttons that are simply placed as a balance and aren't functional. In this way, you would have an off-center closing, a look that is done purposely in ready-to-wear and in patterns.

Since double-breasted garments never have buttonholes under this second row of buttons, it is possible to remove them without changing the appearance of the garment. This might work for you, especially if you have worn the garment many times and are trying to get by without the added expense of an entire new set of buttons.

Every Jangle Could Bring Joy To A Child

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—The telephones ring constantly in the small office of Mrs. Lou Bacon. Every jangle is encouragement for the former family court judge who has started Parents Anonymous.

Parents Anonymous provides aid to parents who abuse or neglect their children. The help can come simply from having that understanding stranger at the end of the line who will listen, if a mother or father feels that things are getting out of hand and that the children may be victimized as a result.

Or, the help is available at two evening meetings each week in which the abusers or potential abusers talks things out—the group therapy idea.

And it comes also from a pledge to read and re-read daily a ninepoint "Guidelines for Achievement."

THE FORMER judge drew them up after she visited Los Angeles, where a Mothers Anonymous is helping the abusive parent, and to Denver which is pioneering in child abuse centers.

All are patterned after the methods of Alcoholics Anonymous and Gamblers Anonymous—"which have done such terrific jobs," said Mrs. Bacon. She would like to see the idea spread and said, "I will go anywhere to help set it up."

The guidelines start with "We recognize and admit to ourselves and other PA memers that child abuse and neglect is a problem that exists today in our homes and we will set about an immediate course of constructive steps to stop any further abusive and neglectful actions in our homes."

The final point is, "We admit we must learn to control ourselves and once this is accomplished, we will achieve harmony in our home and earn love and respect for ourselves, our family and our society."

MRS. BACON, mother of two and grandmother of three, set PA into action with her own money eight weeks ago. Then she had one telephone line. Now there are three lines with Hortense R. Landau, a volunteer, helping her man them and an answering service to take messages some of the hours, for PA is a 24-hour, seven-day week helping hand. As word of the free service spreads, Mrs. Bacon hopes for more volunteers.

The courts, enforcement agencies, legislatures, doctors including psychiatrists and pediatricians, all are giving new attention to an age-old problem which Mrs. Bacon feels may be getting added stimulus from frustrations and tensions in our urbanized society and "the way we encourage violence."

"IT FRIGHTENS me," said Mrs. Bacon, "the way children are growing up accepting violence."

Gertrude M. Bacon, wife of a manufacturer and importer, holds bachelor and law degrees from Fordham University and for 15 years was on the staff of the Legal Aid Society where she said she was known as the "DDE"—for domestic difficulties expert.

She served nearly four years as a New York Family Court judge but resigned out of frustration —" We were all well-intentioned," she said, "but there was so little we could do.

"Sometimes I'd handle 40 cases a day ... now you know how little you can really accomplish with that kind of case load."

FILM REVIEW

Bogdanovich Does It Again In Comedy 'What's Up, Doc?'

By LOUISE SWEENEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

"What's Up, Doc?" is Peter Bogdanovich's funny valentine to old Hollywood movies.

Director Bogdanovich, who proved his talent for nostalgia with the '50s reverie of "The Last Picture Show," has done it again. This time he's made a wacky, sweet comedy patterned on the screwball comedies of the '30s, but spangled with bits of other fond movie memories. It stars Barbra Streisand, Ryan O'Neal and four red plaid suitcases.

There's more than a little bit of the '30s romp "Bringing Up Baby" in this film. "Baby" had Katharine Hepburn as a charming mobile disaster area in love with scholarly museum type Cary Grant (in glasses).

"Doc" has Miss Streisand as another kind of charmer on a collision course with everything in life. That includes Mr. O'Neal (in glasses) as the scholarly musicologist she falls instantly in love with at a music convention in San Francisco. He has this theory about prehistoric rocks and music and she is really trying to be helpful: "You could get Leonard Bernstein to conduct an avalanche."

In the course of helping him she rips up his jacket and his engagement to a generalissimo of a girl named Eunice and generally messes up his life, including his try for a foundation grant to test his theory about music and rocks.

The rocks are in one of the red plaid suitcases, fiancee Eunice's clothes in the second. But two of the others contain top secret documents and a dowager's dazzling jewel collection. So there's a madcap mix-up involving a secret agent, a house detective, a fantastic San Francisco car chase that's a cross between "Bullitt" and Buster Keaton, and a wild, improbably "here-comes-the-judge" ending.

In between, in a sporadically hilarious screenplay by Buck Henry, David Newman and Robert Benton, are some delightful gags about "The Caine Mutiny," "Looney Tunes," "Casablanca," "To Have and Have Not," the Marx Brothers, and "Love Story" (watch for the zinger at the end).

Miss Streisand, who comes on like a mix of Bugs Bunny, Cleopatra, and Baby Snooks, is wonderful. O'Neal proves himself a deft comedian, at times more Jack Benny than Cary Grant but always a marvelous straight man for her.

The rest of a fine cast includes Madeline Kahn as a devastating Eunice, Austin Pendleton, Sorrell Booke, Stefan Gierasch, Mabel Albertson, Kenneth Mars, and Graham Jarvis. But it is really Bogdanovich's film all the way, a zany, pell-mell farce that's sometimes improbable but nearly always funny.

Berrigan Drama In Mill Valley

By KAY KSANDA

Political winds don't often blow in the theater, but the current play at the Mill Valley Center for The Performing Arts is hot property.

"The Trial of The Catonsville Nine" by Rev. Daniel Berrigan is a two-act dialogue of the court trial held in Baltimore in May 1968. Daniel, his brother, Phillip, also a priest, and seven others, including two nuns, burned 378 Selective Service records. It seems that they charged into the Catonsville, Md., draft office with napalm and set the filed afire as a protest to the war in Vietnam. This play is the edited court transcript of their trial.

If this doesn't strike a cord in the old memory, the past performance of Phillip Berrigan (and others) pouring blood over similar files in Baltimore the year before might clear the picture. Furthermore, the same Phillip is part of the Harrisburg seven, now awaiting a jury's decision in a conspiracy that allegedly included a plot to kidnap Henry Kissinger.

To straighten the whole entanglement out, the well-informed cast adds an epilogue. After the play, the excellent courtroom set is turned into a seminar on current civil disobedience: the who, what, when, where and why of political conspiracy.

The show itself is pokey, repetitious, and in a few spots reminiscent of valedictory addresses. However, the cast is excellent and truly believable. One is delighted at the spunk of nurse Mary Moylan, played by Ann Ayers, and the passive martyrdom of Phillip (James Haran.) The individual characterizations are alive and different enough to keep the show going.

It's not a play that everyone would want to see, as it is not told as a story but as an account of something that happened. It has little of the familiar drama, and is more in the manner of the new factual theater. The drama is within the sermon, and if you dig the politics, you'll love the play.

J. Edgar Hoover has declared Daniel and Phillip Berrigan the two most dangerous men in America today, and requested an additional $2 million to employ additional surveillance of their activities.

Therefore, if the theme, the politics, or the protest is of interest, the play is a perfect experience as the production is quality.

Performances run through the month of April every Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. (with the exception of next Friday night) at 267 Buena Vista Avenue.

Seven Students To Be Concert Soloists

The College of Marin Music Department will present its third annual free Concerto Concert by the College's Community Orchestra at 8 p.m. April 9 in the Fine Arts Theater.

Featured will be seven student musicians performing various solo roles. David Poteet will play the first movement of Mzart's Third Violin Concerto; Kevin Omi, the first movement of the French Horn Concerto No. 1 by Richard Strauss. Circket Waldeck will sing Micaela's aria from "Carmen," and Mary Helen Weinstein will play the third movement of Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto.

Steve Salgo will play the first movement of Hummel's Trumpet Concerto in E Flat; Robin Willat, the Concertino for Flute and Orchestra by Chaminade; and Carol Krueger, the first movement of Kabalevsky's Third Piano Concerto.

John H. Myers will conduct the orchestra.

Hike To Laguna Ranch To Open Month's Agenda

A Monday hike to Laguna Ranch, Point Reyes National Seashore, will begin the Marin Audubon Society's program for this month.

The group will meet at 9 a.m. at the Mill Valley Safeway or at 10 a.m. at trailhead parking lot at the seashore headquarters, Olema.

Bill Germeraad, ranger naturalist, will lead the hike.

Other trips on the society's calendar include:

April 9 — A trip to study chaparral on Mount Tamalpais led by Dr. James Sweeney. Meet at 10 a.m. at the parking lot for Bootjack Campground.

April 10 — Canoe trip down the Petaluma River to Mira Monte Marina.

April 17 — Bike trip to Bear Valley Trail and cave exploration.

April 23 — Traditional spring trip to Farallon Islands to view birds during breeding season. Meet at 6:45 a.m. at the Blue Horizon pier in Sausalito, behind the Spinnaker Restaurant.

April 30 — Joint trip with the Golden Gate Audubon Society to the Farallon Islands. Meet at 6:45 a.m. at Blue Horizon pier in Sausalito, behind the Spinnaker Restaurant.

Modern Dance Classes Slated

The Rohnert Park Recreation Department will begin modern dance classes for children and teen-agers on Friday.

The class for children between first and fourth grades will be offered on Fridays from 4:15 to 5:15 p.m. at the recreation center. Rhythm and coordination will be stressed.

The teen dance classes will be held Fridays from 3 to 4 p.m. at the center. Instructor will be Claire Porter, a dancer with the David Lober Repertory Dance Company and a Sonoma State College student.

Consumer Guide Is Being Offered

The state Department of Consumer Affairs has published a guide for unhappy consumers telling them what agencies to approach to resolve their complaints.

The guide, called "A Handy Consumer Reference," may be obtained by writing the department, 30 Van Ness Avenue, Room 2100, San Francisco 94102.

Quentin Show Slated In May

San Quentin's third annual spring art show will be held May 20 at the college center of the College of Marin in Kentfield.

The show will include more than 1,000 water colors, oil paintings, pastels, drawings and crafts for sale by inmates.

Converts Launch A Recycling Plant

WEST UNIVERSITY PLACE, Tex. — Warner and Sharon Strang have opened a recycling center — financed by a city impressed by their arguments and some practical reasons.

Councilman Fred Hughes said the Strangs asked about setting up a center in the community. Hughes not only got them permission but $500 and a building to use.

"Landfill is too expensive to fill with garbage," Hughes says. "The city spends 27 cents of every tax dollar to collect and dispose of trash. With the recycle center, the life span of landfill increases and the money earned can be recycled for library books, parks and anything that will benefit the city."

The Strangs, who moved back to the Houston suburb recently, had been converted to recycling while studying in Palo Alto. They were shocked to find West University Place had no such facility.

"We wrote to other centers to find out how they did it," Warner Strang says. "Then we presented our plan to the city. They thought it was a good idea and we were in business.

"We want to show other communities recycling can be at least a break-even proposition. And at least some of this garbage won't have to go in the incinerator." (Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

Only One Conviction In Burglary

A jury in Marin Superior Court yesterday convicted one of two Los Angeles men accused of burglarizing a Strawberry clothing store in December, but failed to reach a verdict on his companion.

Found guilty of second degree burglary was Willie James Hill, 32. He is to be sentenced May 5.

The jury has hung on the guilt or innocence of Laurence Alexander Lishey, 30.

The two were captured Dec. 16 on the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge at the end of a bullet-punctuated chase in the early morning hours.

Sheriff's deputies, police and California Highway Patrol officers chased a getaway van, in which they found about 200 suits taken from the C. Partan clothing store.

Hill was driving the van and Lishey was a passenger in the back.

The van was peppered with bullets and one tire flattened, but no one was hurt.

Lishey is to return to court April 10 for setting of a retrial date.

"I don't think there is any question but that junior colleges are going to continue to grow," says Ernest H. Berg. "People are recognizing more and more that junior college offers a high quality education and . . . the most economical form of higher education in the state."

By FRANK FARRARA

Ernest H. Berg is a college president without a college building to call his own.

The 51-year-old Canadian-born educator is president of Indian Valley Colleges, which currently has a 330-acre campus near Novato, a master plan and students attending borrowed classrooms in Novato.

A patient man, Berg is working diligently toward the day when the cluster of colleges, referred to as "the north campus" of the Marin Community College District, will be bustling with activity.

WAITING ISN'T a new experience for Berg, who was named president-designate of the College of Alameda in the Peralta Community College District in 1966, but didn't become president until it opened two years later.

Seated in his modest office in a portable building on the Kentfield campus of the College of Marin, Berg commented on recent alarm over reports that Indian Valley Colleges was being planned for 10,000 students.

"All of us believe that a junior college should not go above a 5,000 enrollment," he said. "After that point you have too many to serve efficiently as a community-oriented college."

A REPORT IN June, 1970, from the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education declared the optimum size "from 2,000 to 5,000," Berg noted.

The district is planning for 5,000 students, but under state rules, the district, nevertheless, must show provision for a potential of 10,000 students, Berg explained.

"More and more it is being recognized that size alone is an inhibiting factor in the relationship between the student and the college," Berg said.

LARGE COLLEGE enrollments result in individuals becoming alienated and "are partly the cause of a very high dropout rate," he commented.

Berg, a graduate of Provincial Normal School in Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, which had an enrollment of about 500, was reared in the Canadian wheat belt town of Leader, Saskatchewan, in the middle of the depression.

"There wasn't a crop from 1929 to 1937 and the only thing people had was the relief check," he said. Dust storms were devastating and people had to seal window edges to keep the dust out of their homes, he also recalled.

HIS FATHER WAS a Lutheran minister, but rather than follow that calling, Berg decided to go to the normal school and become a teacher, "one of the few jobs for which openings were then available."

After one year, he was teaching, and he has been in the educational field ever since. He later graduated from the United College of the University of Manitoba with a major in economics, earned his Master's Degree from the University of Wisconsin, and won his doctorate in education from the University of California at Berkeley.

LOOKING TOWARD the future, Ernest H. Berg, president of Indian Valley Colleges, explores the beautiful 330-acre campus of rolling hills at the end of San Jose Boulevard, near Novato, with map in hand, locating in his mind's eye where the campus buildings will be constructed.

Berg also expressed his personal concern with large classes in colleges and said. "Once you go beyond 60 you might as well have 1,000 students in a classroom."

THE PROBLEM IS that the funds that would make smaller, optimum classes possible aren't available, he commented.

There has been some pessimism in the American Assn. of Community Colleges that holds there has been a loss of public confidence in education. And there has been a "drying up of individual grants," but this is possibly because of the recession, Berg said.

Schools are now financed by property taxes and although there have been moves to shift to a "less visible" form of taxes such as a sales tax, it is basically "just a shifting of taxes," Berg maintained.

THE ALTERNATIVE to more funds is more productivity, which could be achieved by instructors carrying more classroom hours or having larger classes, he said.

A community college teacher normally has classes for 15 hours a week, except those in laboratories, physical education, arts or vocational shops, who have longer classroom hours.

An instructor also holds office hours about five hours a week to confer with students. And he participates in college government, prepares teaching material, evaluates student work and is available to speak to community groups, Berg pointed out.

IN STATE COLLEGES and universities, the classroom lecture loads for instructors are lighter, Berg said.

Berg, former supervisor of the junior college credentials program at the University of California and veteran in the junior college field, forecasts a continuing boom in junior colleges in California.

"I don't think there is any question, but that junior colleges are going to continue to grow," he said. "There are now 28 new colleges in some planning stage. People are recognizing more and more that junior college offers a high quality education, and parents realize it is the most economical form of higher education in the state."

EVIDENCE IS that junior college students do "as well or better" in the first two years of higher education as those attending colleges and universities, Berg claimed, and added: "There is a growing feeling that all lower division education should be conducted at junior colleges."

Another factor in the trend toward junior colleges is that "many young people today see less and less value in a degree itself as a ticket to a job," Berg commented.

"The drive toward upper mobility is not as valid as it once was" and young people are thinking more "of living the kind of life they want to live," he said.

YOUTHS ARE looking for vocational and technical courses, and vocational enrollment is increasing, he observed. "After all only 10 per cent are going into the elitist professions."

Berg expects that in a couple of years or so Indian Valley Colleges will be in operation on North Campus, and he has a home nearby where he, wife Catherine and 15-year-old son David, a Novato High School student, live.

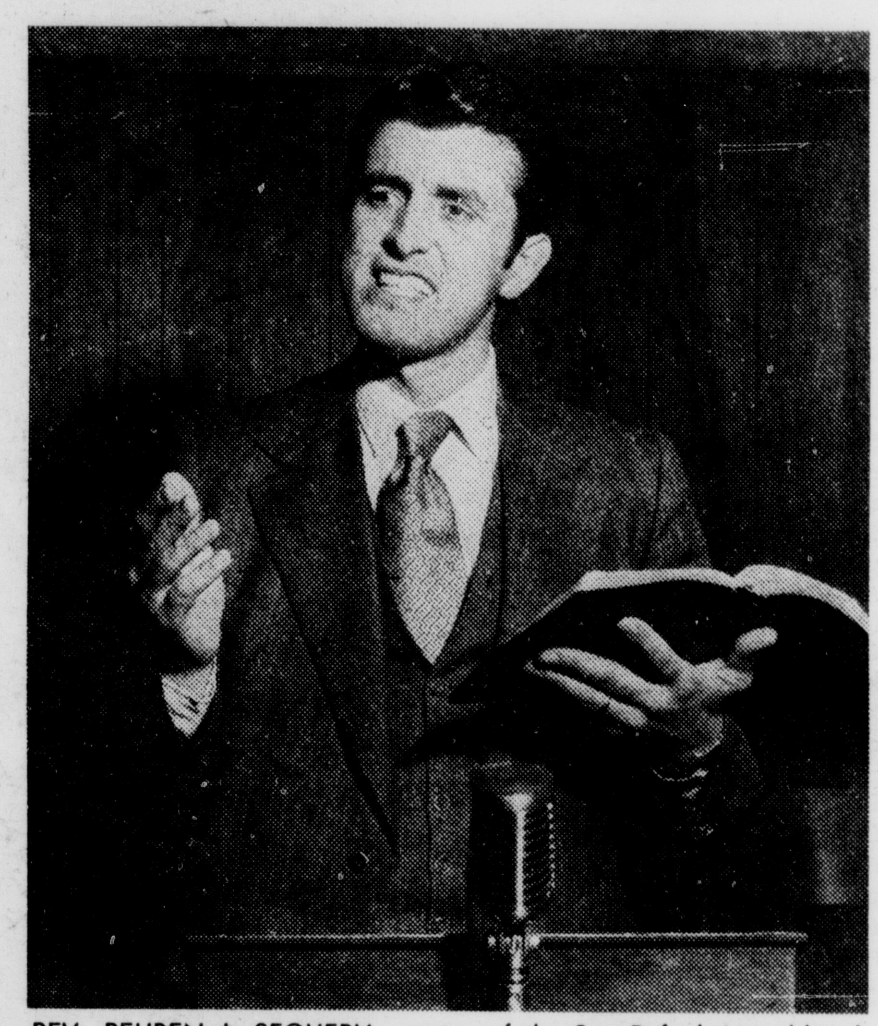
An Easter Message For Our Readers —

"The risen Christ is the Christian's hope. Death is just a passage into the final realization of eternal life. His body will be changed to accommodate eternity and be with Christ eternally. We too declare the risen Christ with certainty."



REV. REUBEN J. SEQUERIA, pastor of the San Rafael Assembly of God Church, 517 D St., is a native of the Azores who came with his parents to the United States during World War II. The son of a clergyman, he is a graduate of Bethany Bible College and the Oral Roberts Graduate School of Theology. He became pastor of the San Rafael church in July, 1969, and also serves as a contract chaplain at Hamilton Air Force Base, as a Marin Juvenile Hall chaplain, and as chaplain for Chi Alpha at the College of Marin while attending the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary part-time.

(Editor's Note: It is the custom of the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine each year at Easter time, and again at Christmas time, to bring to its readers a holiday message written by a member of Marin County's clergy. Today's Easter message is from Rev. Reuben J. Sequeira, pastor of the San Rafael Assembly of God Church.)

In the Bible, Job wrote: "If a man die, shall he live again?" This haunting question of the ages continues to plague man.

No amount of nuclear research, agricultural advances, or socio-economic or political philosophy can choke out this one basic question of man: What of the future? Is there life beyond the grave? Can man know for sure?

There can be no room for speculation. If there is life after death, and the soul is immortal, then how can I receive the assurance that my life will be spent eternally with the Creator and Sustainer of the universe?

IT IS NO wonder that the world is full of the pessimistic and unbelieving when only man is considered. Jean Paul Sartre, a French existentialist, said, "There is no exit from the human dilemma."

Donald Kalish, chairman of the philosophy department of UCLA, stated, "You are mistaken to think that anyone ever had the answers. There are no answers. Be brave and face up to it." Ernest Hemingway remarked, "There is no remedy for anything in life," while William James, the eminent psychologist, commented concerning the possibility of absolutes, "Damn the absolutes!"

What a picture! All seems lost and hopeless as the statesman, economist, politician, sociologist, psychologist and educator look to man alone to find the answers of the ages.

JESUS CHRIST breaks through all the pessimism, all the gloom, all the hopelessness, doubt, fear, racism, anxiety, purposelessness and despair of humanity with the answer, "I AM THE WAY, THE TRUTH, AND THE LIFE." Can anything be more plain? Can Easter by made any clearer than from the Person who has made Easter a reality?

While at the graveside ot Lazarus, Jesus responds with the clarity and authority of deity, "I AM THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE. He that believes in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."

Easter — the celebration day of the literal Resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ. Otherwise, Easter becomes a singing jingle, the ever-loving bouncing bunnies, and the harrowing colored egg-hunt. Let us examine the significance, historicity and experience of the Resurrection.

QUESTIONS ARE still being asked as to the validity and deity of the person of Jesus Christ. The same question plagued Jesus during His earthly ministry.

There were the continual sign-seekers . . . are You really the Messiah, the Son of God? Jesus replying to their constant inquiry said, "For as Jonah was three days and three nights in the fish's belly, so shall the Son of Man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth." Again Jesus reiterated His future, "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up . . ."

The Biblical narrative continues, "He spake of the temple of His body . . . when therefore He was risen from the dead, His disciples remembered that He had said this unto them."

The significance and crux of Easter and therefore the Resurrection rests in the validity of the Person of the Lord Jesus Christ. It determines if He truly was God incarnate in flesh. To relegate any other proposition to the evidence of the Resurrection is to cast doubt on Him and repugn His testimony, the testimony of the prophets, the Scriptures, and the living witnesses of the present.

THE ISSUE before us is this: If the Resurrection is true, then Christ is the Son of God on His own admission. The abundant prophecies concerning Him in the Old Testament and the sufficiency of supporting evidence indicates that He did really and truly rise from the dead.

The second point of consideration is this: If He is the Son of God, the Savior of the world, then what He said becomes authoritatively conclusive and significant. He made some inescapable statements that rest on His character and personage . .

"Except ye be born again, ye cannot enter into the Kingdom of God . . . I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life; no man comes to the Father except through Me. . . He who believes in the Son has eternal life; but he who does not obey the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God abides on him."

One can see that the necessity of belief preceds Biblical conversion.

BEFORE WE endeavor to embark on the road of evidence, let it be said that any evidence, no matter how preponderate, involves a decision on our part . . . a moral decision of whether to believe and accept His Person and work on the cross, or to discredit it as mere fallacy or speculation.

Hugh Schonfield, in the "Passover Plot," proposed that Jesus fabricated His own death and "Resurrection."

Without further elaboration on this premise, we must ask the question: Could Jesus have controlled an angry mob, directed Roman guards, persuaded a reluctant Pilate, instigated Judas' final betrayal, and initiated the Jewish Sanhedrin? As to the possibility of the disciples stealing the body, the question needs to be asked: Would the disciples have died for a stolen body? What of the guards that we placed there? What of the empty tomb sealed by a wheel of granit, eight foot in diameter, one foot thick, rolling on a groove and weighing more than four tons? And what of the grave clothes that were left behind? Would His followers who stole the body refuse to deny the Resurrection under persecution?

Such was never the case!

BUT WHAT IF the enemies stole the body, some might query? If that were the case, why would they give rise to the Resurrection? Why would they not prove it false when the disciples began to preach and teach a risen Christ? The perponderance of evidence is simply the reverse. Strauss, a famous Biblical critic and an unbeliever, denies the theory of Jesus being in a "swoon," holding it to be incredible.

Still others claim that the Resurrection was just an hallucination . .. that what more than 500 people saw was just a figment of the imagination.

However, experts in the field of psychology tell us that hallucinations occur only when expected under prolonged situations and in prime circumstances. This evidently was not the situation as Christ appeared 10 different times under varied circumstances, to very different people, and to those who were definitely unprepared and unwilling to see a dead Christ raised from the dead.

THOUGH THE minds of men still ponder the credibility or non-credibility of the Resurrection, the evidence for it continues to abide . . . the tomb is still empty! The records are credible, substantiated by honest men who were first-hand witnesses. Along with their testimony is their moral transformation that establishes abundant evidence for this historic event . . . from timid and backward men who forsook the Lord to bold and stalwart proclaimers of the Truth they initially refused to believe.

The testimony of Josephus is also important. He states in his "Antiquities of Josepheus" (18:3,4), "He appeared to them alive again the third day, as the divine prophets had foretold these and ten thousand other wonderful things concerning Him."

Here a Jewish historian, who was definitely opposed to such truth, could do no less but record this momentous occasion. Sunday became the Christians' day of worship . . . and for the strictly orthodox Jews, which most of the disciples were, this change had to come about because of a radical event. It did . . . Christ rose from the dead. The Church's existence and message is a direct result of a risen Christ.

ON CONCLUDING the historicity of the Resurrection, we quote former Lord Chief Justice of England Lord Darling:

"We, as Christians, are asked to take a very great deal on trust; the teaching, for example, and the miracles of Jesus. If we had to take all on trust, I for one, would be skeptical. The crux of the problem of whether Jesus was, or was not, what He proclaimed Himself to be, must surely depend upon the truth or otherwise of the Resurrection. On that greatest point we are not merely asked to have faith. In its favor as a living truth there exists such overwhelming evidence, positive and negative, factual and circumstantial, that no intelligent jury in the world could fail to bring in a verdict that the Resurrection story is true."

Can "evidence" prove the Resurrection? The Apostle Paul, that legalist, intellectual, writer, and strict Jew of the Sanhedrin sect, who went about jailing Christians for their faith in the risen Lord, became the dynamic progenitor of the living Christ.

What happened? Six years after the resurrection, Jesus appeared to him on the road to Damascus. Paul experienced this living Christ for himself and left being called "Paul the Persecutor" to become Paul the Apostle."

FRANK MORRISON, a British lawyer who went about to disprove the "theory of the Resurrection," wrote a book entitled "Who Moved the Stone." The first chapter is entitled, "The Book that Refused to be Written." Due to overwnelming evidence he too experienced a living Christ and became a believer and outstanding disciple of Him.

The risen Christ is the Christian's hope. Death is just a passage into the final realization of eternal life. His body will be changed to accommodate eternity and be with Christ eternally. We too declare the risen Christ with certainty.

Yes, the Resurrection is a past event of nearly two thousand years. However, life begins when Jesus comes in. One can know by personal experience, not a dead Savior, but a living Christ Who promises forgiveness, peace, security, joy and salvation in Him. All of nature responds at springtime to the Creator and Source of Life.

Let this Easter be the new beginning of this new type of life — abundant and eternal — found and guaranteed in Christ alone!

IN THE ancient city of Jerusalem, almost 2,000 years ago, there took place one of the great episodes in Christian history — the Passion Week events that culminated in the Resurrection of Jesus Christ. The photograph on the right is a scene from one of the most famous of the re-creations of those historic and sacred events, "King of Kings," the classic Biblical silent motion picture made by Cecil B. De Mille and released in 1927 with H. B. Warner in the role of Christ. The motion picture is to be shown on Easter Sunday on KBHK-TV (Channel 44) starting at 7 p.m. In the story on these pages, New Testament scholar Dr. Fred L. Fisher of the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary faculty describes the place, past and present, where Jesus suffered crucifixion and then was resurrected from the dead.

Scholar's Impression Of Easter Scene

Many descriptive titles have been given to the ancient city of Jerusalem in Israel. One is "City of Peace," which is somehow ironical yet appropriate for a place that has seen conquerors come and go, but her battered people yet rising again.

Israel has been a nation — this time — only since May, 1948. That was a modern miracle. Then came the six-day war in 1967 when the Israelis recaptured the Old City of Jerusalem from Jordan.

Its fortresses and walls would indicate anything but a city with a history of lending itself to peace. Her people are still threatened, yet inside her limits the virtues of three faiths — Judaism, Moslem and Christian — are expounded. Churches, religious orders, and holy shrines abound in the city "of magnificent differences" left by her many conquerors over the centuries.

PERHAPS THE name "City of Peace" can be attributed to a promise of peace made almost 2,000 years ago by a Man who claimed to be the promised "Messiah" the Jews had been seeking for centuries. That claim and promise continues to draw Christians to this ancient spiritual haven.

Millions of people look toward this ancient capital city of Judaism and Christendom during the Easter season to recall the events of Passion Week, when Jesus Christ, according to Biblical accounts, was crucified and resurrected from the dead.

Among the countless Christians who have visited Jerusalem and walked the very routes many claim to be the paths taken by Christ to His crucifixion has been Dr. Fred L. Fisher, professor of New Testament Interpretalion at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary on Marin's Strawberry Point.

FISHER JOINED the faculty of Golden Gate in 1952 and this year is commemorating his 20th anniversary at the seminary. The trip to the Holy Land in 1964 was taken with Mrs. Fisher, and was part of a sabbatical-study tour during which he studied at the University of Zurich in Switzerland.

He recently completed his sixth book titled "Jesus and His Teachings," 1972, Broadman Press, Nashville, Tenn. The book is an up-to-date study of the person and teachings of Jesus, as presented in the three gospels of Matthew, Mark and Luke in the New Testament.

A well-known scholar on the New Testament, Fisher personally regards visits to the Holy Land as more of an eductional experience than a spiritual pilgrimage.

"I'M NOT OVERLY sold on holy places as such," he said in his office at the seminary.

He continued, "I don't think it really matters whether we can put our finger on a particular spot and say here is where Jesus was buried, and here is where He arose.

"The important thing, to be a Christian, is to believe that He died for our sins and, through His death, believe that salvation has been made possible. It's important to believe that He actually did arise from the grave and by His arising proved that His salvation for us was complete and full."

There has been an over-emphasis upon what are called the "sacred spots of the Holy Land," Fisher believes and this overemphasis is basically "unchristian," he said.

But this doesn't mean that going to these places is not helpful and inspiring, he added. "Even in modern times, by just being there in the Holy Land, you get a feeling of the land and of the life of the people.

"THIS WAS especially true before the Arabs and Jews fought in June, 1967. At that time most of Jerusalem was under Arab-Jordanian rule. The Arabs have not advanced as much in modern culture as have the Israelis, and while we may eschew that fact, the Arab culture does preserve the same kind of sense and feeling that you get from the Biblical records."

Looking at Jerusalem from the hills then, one would see it encircled with its massive walls that rise from the terrain then disappear at other points.

As interesting as the shrines and historical sites in the Old City are the hordes of people who crowd the old city's bazaars, Dr. Fisher recalled. "It is said that standing in the narrow streets amidst the city's Saracenic architecture, a person may see "more history in the passing races and faces than could be acquired from scholarly guide books."

Travelers testify of their fascination of hearing the variety of languages spoken in the city.

THE VARIETY of life styles and persuasions are evident as one has only to look at the black-cloaked, bearded priests of the Greek Orthodox Church, contrasted with the Sheiks and Mullahs of Islam, indicated in rank by their turbans. There are the black, white and brown robes of the Latin religious orders, spreading white coronets on deep blue of the Sisters of Charity, and the hooded, black-cloaked Armenian priests.

The dress of the average citizen will differ from the flowing robes of the fellahin (peasants) to the veiled faces of Moslem women and the often less discreet informal western styles of dress and manner. This melting pot of cultures mixes in the crowded shops of Jerusalem, where the odors of spices mingle with the smell of carcasses of freshly slain sheep. Cobblers and coppersmiths still tap out their wares, and the market places are alive with the hawkers who vie for the attention of passersby.

The city is an accumulation of contrasts and is doubly more interesting because of its rich historical and religious heritage.

ON THE EASTERN edge of the city stood the temple built by Herod the Great in 17 B.C. King Solomon's original temple had been destroyed in 586 B.C. by the Babylonians.

The Romans destroyed Herod's Temple in 70 A.D. when they razed Jerusalem and the Jews were dispersed. No trace of the actual temple exists in the old city of Jerusalem now; rather the "Dome of the Rock," a Moslem shrine, stands on the site today.

The area in and around the temple is somewhat like the area of the state government in Sacramento with buildings crowded together in one little area, said Fisher. Cities were put together much the same way in Jesus' time, he added. The Temple precincts covered four or five acres and were the center of life for the Jewish community. That was where Jesus stayed while in Jerusalem to teach the people, and where he debated with the religious leaders.

PEOPLE TEND not to congregate around these areas today. The main city of Jerusalem is an area to the west where the shops and businesses are located.

"That is where you will see the people of Israel," said Fisher.

Fisher said he considers the Holy Land — particularly the old city of Jerusalem — to be quite important historically in tracing the beginnings of Christianity.

There are many places in the old city, and within reach of it, that figured in Passion Week, observed by Christians as the time when Jesus drew near to his death and subsequent resurrection, he added.

"If Christ had been killed and not risen again, that would have squelched Christianity from the beginning. Jesus realized he was called of God to be the messiah of Israel and that part of his messianic vocation was to be accomplished by death," Fisher said.

THOUGH HE knew He was going to die, Jesus did not share this knowledge with His disciples until about six months before His death, Dr. Fisher said.

"I think the reason was that according to their (the disciples') messianic hope, the last thing they would have expected would have been that the Messiah would die. It was necessary for their faith to come in two stages."

The first stage was to identify Jesus as the Messiah, which they seemed to have done completely at the great confession of Ceasarea, Philippi, recorded in Mark, Chapter 8, when Peter said, "Thou are the Christ . . ."

His disciples found it difficult to understand what the messiahship meant in terms of suffering and to understand their own future vocation in the world. The disciples didn't even remember or believe, at least, that Christ was to rise from the dead, until it happened and they saw with their own eyes, as recorded in the Gospels of Matthew, Mark and Luke, Fisher added.

THE FINAL DAYS in Jerusalem before Christ's death on the cross and his disappearance from the tomb, actually began for Jesus and His disciples in an upper room on a Thursday where they commemorated the Jewish Passover and instituted what Christians call the Lord's Supper or the Communion. This room was somewhere in the area of the Temple, about two blocks away, Fisher said.

The exact site of the "Last Supper" is not known, but tour guides in the old city point out a two-story stone building in the old aristocratic section of the city claimed by many to be the house where Christ ate the "Seder" feast of the Passover with his disciples.

That same night Jesus was betrayed by one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot. The setting was the Garden of Gethsemane meaning "oil press" between what is now the Moslem mosque on "The Dome of the Rock," and the Mount of Olives to the east where Jesus often retired at night with his disciples. Jesus had gone to the garden to pray.

There are still a number of olive trees in the area, and one is said to be the tree under which Jesus prayed.

"IT COULD VERY well be the one, because it looks big enough to be that old," Fisher recalled. There is now an interdenominational "Church of All Nations" built on the spot, which serves as a house of prayer, he said.

That was where the Jewish soldiers came at night, and Judas betrayed Jesus with a kiss.

Jesus was then taken under guard about three or four blocks from where he was arrested to the palace of the high priest where a preliminary hearing was held. The Church of St. Peter "du Gallicantu" ("At the Crowing of the Cock") stands there today, northeast of where the temple was.

Christ was declared to be a blasphemer, a charge worthy of death under Jewish law. The Sanhedrin, the Jewish rabbinical court had no authority to sentence and execute, so the next morning (Friday) Jesus was taken to Pontius Pilate, the Roman governor who had come to Jerusalem to watch for possible disturbances during the Passover season when Jerusalem was filled with pilgrims.

AT TOP, the Mount of Olives rises through an archway to the east of where temples, built by Kings Solomon and Herod the Great, once stood. The Garden of Gethsemane, where Jesus was betrayed by Judias Iscariot is just beyond the center arch at the foot of the hill. The Church of All Natjons now stands on the garden site. The view is from the present location of the "Dome of the Rock," a moslem shrine on the old temple grounds. At right, the Damascus Gate, on the northern side of the walled city of Jerusalem is a landmark on one of two routes, over which Jesus is said to have been led to be crucified. The Gate is about two blocks from Gordon's Garden Tomb," one of two sites believed to be the place of Jesus's crucifixion and burial.

The Places Where The Events Of Passion Week Took Place

BIBLICAL HSITORY records that Pilate examined Jesus and sent him to King Herod, who tried to get the accused man to perform miracles. Jesus would not, and Herod sent Jesus back to Pilate. Pilate and Herod became fast friends from that day, according to accounts.

Tradition holds that Pilate was residing at the time in the Antonia Fortress, at the site of the "Arch of Ecce Homo," ("Behold the Man"), near the temple grounds on the northeast boundaries of the city. Christ had already been spit on and mocked by the religious leaders of Jerusalem, and was scourged by the Romans and a "crown of thorns" placed on his head.

It was at this site that Pilate asked the people what they wanted done with Christ, and gave them a choice between the insurrectionist and murderer Barrabas or Jesus. The mob demanded Jesus's death by crucifixion and Pilate submitted to them. Christ then began the walk from Pilate's residence in Jerusalem down the Via Dolorosa (Way of the Cross).

Mark's Gospel records, "And they bring him unto the place Golgotha, which is being interpreted, the place of a skull . . . ." (Mark 15:22) The route is steep and downhill to the west and comes to Solomon Street, where pilgrims tracing the steps of Christ may turn either to the right or left to sites said to be Golgotha and the tomb where Christ was buried.

ONE OF THE routes turns left from Via Dolorosa onto Solomon Street. The path veers downhill to the left through the United Greek chapel and the tomb of St. Veronica, to another cross street, then right about one-half mile where the Church of the Holy Sepulchre stands on the spot said by many to be Golgotha, where Christ was crucified.

Processions follow this route daily in the company of a priest, tracing the Catholic Church's "Fourteen Stations of the Cross."

Another site believed to be a possible site for the crucifixion and burial of Jesus is Gordon's Garden Tomb. If this is accepted as the site for Christ's crucifixion and burial, then Jesus would have been led to the right from Via Dolorosa, going north, up Solomon Street and out through the Damascus Gate. The procession would have proceeded about two blocks outside the gate to a side street corner.

It was on this street that Golgotha may have been.

THERE ARE NO crosses on either site, not even for the benefit of tourists, Fisher said. He added that history records that Christ was nailed to the cross as a criminal would have been.

Fisher said many people debate whether the cross was T-shaped or X-shaped. "I'm not sure that anyone could say what shape the cross actually was. In my own mind, I simply picture it as a T-shaped cross, with a cross piece on an upright piece. Some people insist that the cross was just an upright stake, but there is no way to prove or disprove what shape the cross was."

After Jesus had died, Joseph of Arimathaea, a secret disciple, asked for the privilege of burying Jesus in Joseph's own tomb. It was quite common then for people to prepare their tombs for their families, while they were all still alive. Joseph was a rich man who had a tomb, but no one was buried in it, and so he was allowed to take the body of Jesus down and to lay it in the tomb.

The women who had been followers and friends of Jesus followed to see where the tomb was, but no one actually believed that Jesus was going to rise from the dead. His enemies were among the few who remembered He had predicted His resurrection and asked Pilate to place a guard of soldiers over the tomb so that no one could come and steal the body, then claim Christ had risen from the dead.

CHRIST'S OWN disciples thought that all was lost, Fisher said.

Two disciples with whom Jesus talked on the way to Emmaus after His resurrection were recorded in the Gospel of Luke as saying they had hoped "this was the Messiah." Luke put the statement into the past perfect tense, which meant that their hope was dead and over.

The tomb was sealed with the Roman seal, and it was against the law to break it without authority.

There is still a round stone at Gordon's Tomb that is said to be the same stone rolled over the entrance to Jesus tomb. This stone is about four feet in diameter, Fisher said.

"One man could move it if he was strong and used a pry pole. Most women would have trouble moving it." The tomb was simple a cave with benches hewn in the side to lay bodies on.

The Jews did not embalm their bodies in those days, but wrapped them in clothes with spices to avoid stench of the decaying body and then renewed the spices periodically so the tomb would be fresh smelling. This is what they did with Jesus, Fisher said.

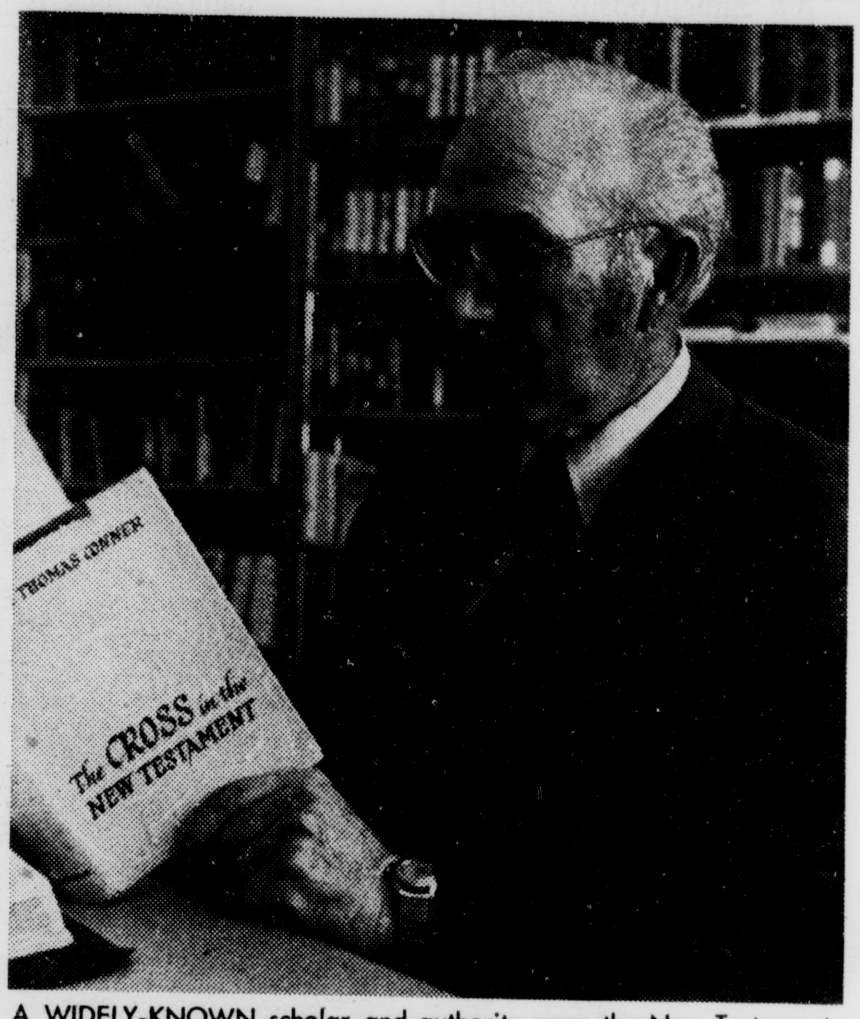
THE WOMEN came back the day after the Sabbath, our Saturday, to finish their job of wrapping him in spiced clothes. On their way they asked who was going to roll the stone away. However, when they arrived the stone was already rolled back.

Matthew records that the Roman soldiers became like dead men, because of the "blaze of glory when Christ arose from the grave," said Fisher. The women found the Resurrection hard to believe.

"I think this is a good reason to believe that you can't explain the Resurrection stories as some have tried to, as creations of the Christians who were trying to palm off a risen Jesus. Christ appeared to his followers in such a way that they recognized him, so that the Resurrection itself has become the primary foundation upon which the Christian religion was built."

Fisher offered three evidences that he said are substantial proof of the Resurrection of Christ.

One was the empty tomb which, he said, has never been satisfactorily explained by the enemies of Jesus or by anyone else who has denied the reality of the Resurrection. Another proof is that an utter change in the disciples took place. From the time of His Crucifixion to the time of Pentecost — a time Christ has promised would come when they would have the "power of the Holy Spirit" of God — they were "skulking cowards," Fisher said. "They became roaring lions and evangelists."



A WIDELY-KNOWN scholar and authority upon the New Testament, Dr. Fred L. Fisher continues to read and to do research that adds to his knowledge of his subject.

"THE FINAL proof to all who love and know Him is the reality of Jesus in our own hearts. We know He is alive because He lives in us. No one could ever really believe in the truth of the Resurrection until he accepts Christ as Lord and unless Christ becomes real in the individual's life."

"That's the reason for Easter and why He came," Biblical scholar Dr. Fisher said. "He died for all of us."

AS SPEECH PATHOLOGIST for the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children of Adults of Marin, Grace Almon works with pre-school children with speech and language problems. And her biggest reward is the look of triumph that brightens a youngster's face when he finds he has successfully pronounced a difficult word which he once dreaded. (Photos by Emme Gilman)

A GUIDING PRINCIPLE of the speech evaluation and therapy program for pre-school children of the Marin Easter Seal Society is that it must be fun — with time even for a lively romp such as the one this small girl is enjoying with Speech Pathologist Grace Almon. Additional Emme Gilman photos on Pages M10 and M11 show other devices and techniques used to make therapy an enjoyable experience for the youg participants.

A Helping Hand For Marin Children From Easter Seals

"Where Did You Go? Out. What Did You Do? Nothing."

Thus ran the title of an essay by Robert Paul Smith, published in 1957 by W. W. Norton and Co.

For a number of Marin County pre-school children, Robert Paul Smith's title might be paraphrased as follows:

"Where did you go? Out. What could you say? Nothing."

These are the youngsters whose speech, unhappily, is unintelligible to their playmates and to others outside their home. Indeed, they are often imperfectly understood within their own families.

THEY ARE BOYS and girls carrying a heavy handicap which, if not corrected, will grow almost intolerable with the start of their school years. Usually they can understand readily enough what is said to them. But in every other way, they are as badly off as if they were foreign children in a country where they do not know the language.

They cannot ask questions, explain happenings or start a friendly conversation.

At this very critical time in their development, just when they should be entering into and getting to know the world beyond their homes, they find they cannot even talk to the "natives."

IT IS these boys and girls handicapped by defective or delayed speech with evaluation and therapy that has been one of the primary functions of the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Marin since 1960.

A paramount premise of the program, under the direction of Speech Pathologist Grace Almon, is that this therapy should be fun for the small participants, as should all learning.

Most of these pre-school children are seen in small groups of three and four for the stimulation they can offer each other. Such stimulation, in turn, encourages a spontaneous, easier flow of speech.

CHILDREN WITH very special needs, however, are accorded the attention of individual therapy sessions.

The Marin Easter Seal Society enrolls between 150 and 170 such children in its speech evaluation and therapy program annually.

"It is important to remember that these youngsters are neither mentally retarded, deaf, emotionally disturbed, nor grossly handicapped neurologically," Mrs. Almon stresses. "But they do require professional assistance in developing the basic tools —speech and language —for social growth and learning."

THE CHILD WHO has mastered speech techniques before entering the kindergarten or first grade classroom is a child far better equipped to cope with that new world than the child unable to express himself. And when the therapy that has enabled him to surmount a speech deficiency has included an introduction to social contacts with other children, and to the fun of group activities, there is an added bonus.

The pre-school speech program is but one of several activities carried on by the Marin Easter Seal Society that also include speech therapy for post-stroke adults, recreation and social development programs for physically and mentally handicapped, an equipment loan program, individual case assistance, information-referral follow-up services, and professional education.

ALL THESE direct service programs rely primarily for their financial support upon the annual sale of Easter Seals, now in thousands of Marin homes.

James W. McClintock, president of the Marin society, in a pre-Easter report, noted that the month-long campaign then was running about even with 1971 returns, but added that receipts equal to 1971 contributions would still leave the Easter Seal Society about 12 per cent short of the $37,000 goal it feels necessary this year to meet the greater costs of providing services for an ever-increasing number of Marinites, young and old, who need the help of Easter Seal rehabilitation programs.

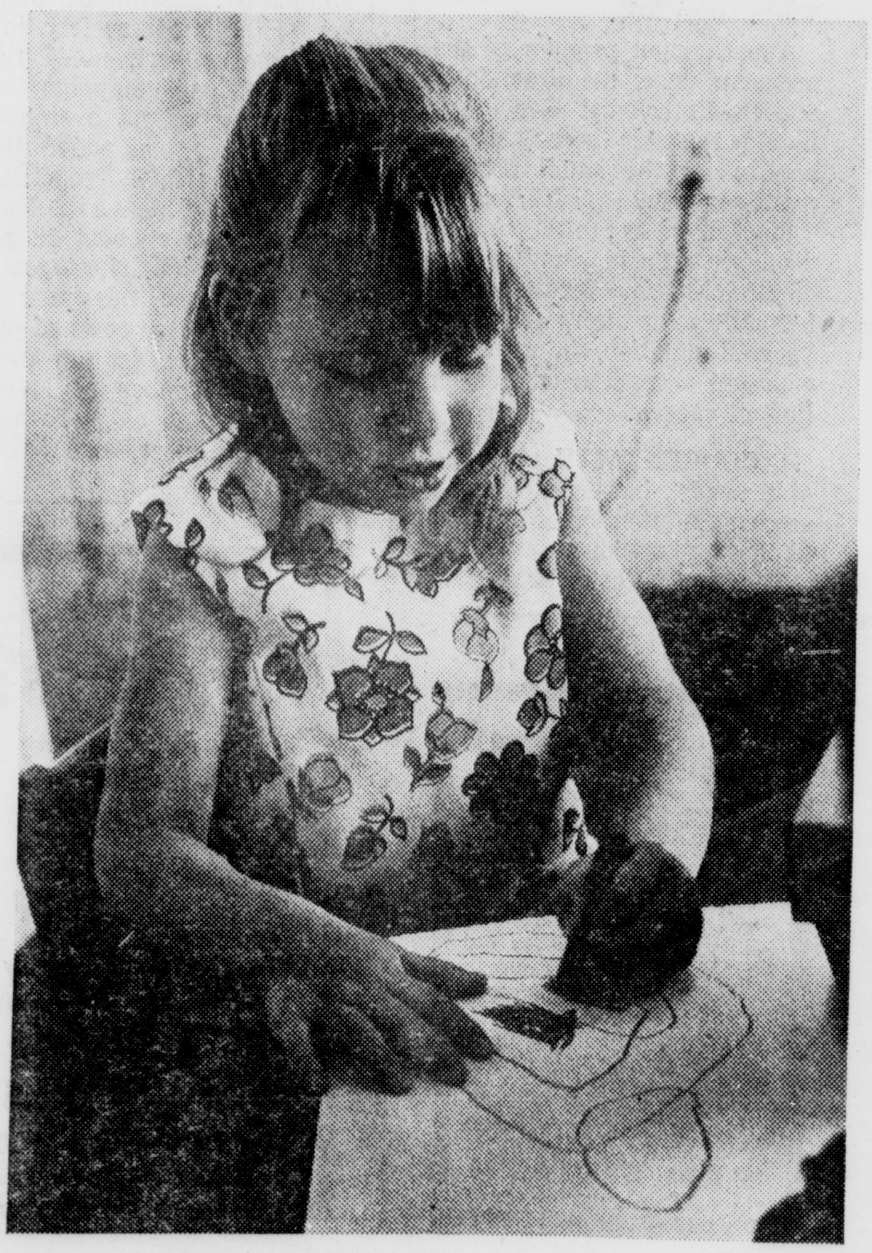
A TEA PARTY, even a make-believe one, requires social conversation. And so these two little girls find themselves speaking frequently and freely as they take part in a lady-like social affair at the Easter Seal headquarters at 1601 Second St., San Rafael.

THE LOOK ON this small boy's smiling face demonstrates the approach that the East Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Marin takes in its work with pre-scho boys and girls with speech problems — that the corrective therapy should be fun for t



AT LEFT, a vital aspect of the Marin Easter Seal speech therapy program for pre-school children with speech difficulties is planning the work to be interesting and fun for the small participants. This little girl is engrossed in a charcoal drawing. And what would be more natural than for her to discuss it with her playmates and with Speech Pathologist Grace Almon, once it is completed? At right, a small boy strives for just the right enunciation as he offers a remark, triggered by his enjoyment of the toy animals before him. The children in the program, Mrs. Almon stresses, are not mentally retarded nor emotionally distrubed, but simply boys and girls who have trouble in making their speech intelligible to others. It is all-important, she adds, that they be rid of this handicap before they begin the great adventure of their school years.

Away From The TV Cameras, Jean Stapleton Is No 'Dingbat'

By JUNE CARROLL
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Jean Stapleton, the irresistible dingbat Edith with the loping trot and glass-shattering voice on "All in the Family" (CBS-TV), lives in a rented pink house in Los Angeles with her husband, theatrical director William Putch, 12-year-old daughter Debby, 10-year-old son John, a cat named Frisky, and a fluffy dog named Rusty.

Rusty just might be a Ttum (mutt, spelled backwards).

As the children and Mr. prepared to leave for a shopping tour, Miss Stapleton doled out the children's allowances, gave a few motherly words of advice, and saw them to the door. They left, and we sat in the sunny living room overlooking the swimming pool.

WHEN I ASKED her about the success of "All in the Family," she attributed most of it to the brilliant writing, direction, and acting of her co-workers.

"We're almost like a little stock company — except we four always play the same parts," Miss Stapleton commented. Norman Lear, the show's producer, saw her in New York and asked her to read for him. She read three different times before she got the part.

"He's a very careful caster," she said and smiled. "I was thrilled at the very first script, of course. It was so fresh and new. We made two pilots and both were dropped by the network. A year and a half later CBS bought the show.

"Now, of course, the pattern of our lives has changed. We spend six months out here while I tape the shows. The children are in school here, and in May, when we finish shooting, we go back home."

HOME, TO THE Putch family, is a comfortable seven-room winterized log cabin in the middle of Caledonia State Park near Gettysburg, Pa. Putch runs the Totem Pole Playhouse, a summer theater a few miles from their home. They have spent every summer there since 1958 when they were married. They became engaged in the box office of the theater when she came to visit him there on her day off from the musical "The Bells Are Ringing," with Judy Halliday, on Broadway.

Their welcome home to Pennsylvania last year was staggering, she said. She had just won the Emmy for her performance on "All in the Family."

A private plane met them at the airport and flew them to the local air strip where they were met with a red carpet, a police escorted motorcade, and a banner proclaiming, "Jean Stapleton slept here," in the courthouse plaza. The high school band serenaded them while planes saluted them from overhead.

"I NEVER realized the enormous impact that television has on the public," Miss Stapleton said. "It really is overwhelming to think that more people see you on a TV show in one night than they do in a whole season on summer stock. Of course, the difference the Emmy made in the attendance at the theater was astounding."

JEAN STAPLETON appears with co-star Carroll O'Connor in a scene in their roles as Edith and Archie Bunker in the popular CBS-TV series, "All in the Family." Off-screen, she's a very different Jean.

Bill Putch's Totem Pole Teater, occupying a former dance hall, burned to the ground in 1969, along with two decades of sets and costumes. For a while he was tempted to return to New York. But neighbors and patrons were so devastated by the loss that they chipped in, and with his help they raised $98,000 for a new concrete-block edifice, two turntables for revolving stages, and a stage 50 feet wide.

Everything was donated by the public, and the new theater was erected in eight months.

JEAN STAPLETON has not made it overnight. She appeared on Broadway in "Damn Yankees" and in "Funny Girl" with Barbra Streisand. She toured with Frank Fay in "Harvey" and in "Come Back Little Sheba" with Shirley Booth. Her motion pictures have included "Cold Turkey" with Dick Van Dyke and "Klute" with Jane Fonda.

When she returns home this summer she will do "Dark at the Top of the Stairs," and one of her favorite plays, "Everybody Loves Opal."

"Opal," she said, "is like Edith. She hasn't a mean thought in her head. Actually, my goal is to get away from that character when I play stock. Last year I did 'Hello Dolly,' which was a departure. This summer I'll also play the mother in 'Butterflies Are Free.' I do feel that all the

Carney's Co-Stars

Art Carney will co-star with Helen Hayes and Mildred Natwick in Universal's two-hour movie, "The Snoop Sisters."

New On The Stereo Scene —

By JOHN SUNIER

By now most fans of the late Janis Joplin realize that her model was the world's greatest blues singer, Bessie Smith.

John Hammond of Colubia Records has embarked on a massive recording project to assemble the entire recorded output of the "Empress of the Blues." They will be contained on five two-disc albums, of which the first pair are "The World's Greatest Blues Singer" (GP 33) and "Any Woman's Blues" (G 30126).

Every effort was made to preserve the thrilling vocal quality of the original scratchy 78s while cleaning up the sound as much as possible. Rechanneling for stereo was abandoned for the sake of sound purity.

A system built by a Columbia engineer eliminates nearly all scratch and extraneous noise without affecting the sound of the actual music. The result is a greatly improved "presence" over the earlier 1951 series of four Columbia Bessie Smith LPs.

The arrangement chronolgically is interesting as well. The first two sides of the first album contain her very earliest 1923 recording sessions while the last two sides contain her latest sessions in 1931 and 32. When the entire set of 10 LPs is stacked later on the changer in sequence, it will be possible to go through the entire Bessie Smith repertory in chronological order, only turning over the stack once at the mid-point. (You realize, of course, that anyone doing that would have to be totally out of their head! Besides, my automatic turntable only stacks six LPs anyway.)

"CHICAGO' IS one of the best of the rock-with-brass groups. "Chicago II" (KGP 24) is a two-disc set in which the prime work is a suite titled "It Better End Soon," offering Chicago's view on the subject of social change. My favorites were "In the Country" and "Memory of Love."

Though the brass work is seldom as skilled as that of the average jazz big band, most of these tracks have a nice propulsive feel of the kind that also distinguishes the work of Blood, Sweat and Tears.

"THE BYRDS (Untitled)" is the title of Columbia G 30127, another double-disc album and the Byrds' tenth.

This seminal group in the rock phenomenon has endured in one form or another since the whole thing was in its cradle back in 1964. In this package they present recent concert tapes of rock super-classics like "Positively Fourth Street," "Mr. Tambourine Man," and "Mr. Spaceman" on the first disc, plus a 16-minute trip on "Eight Miles High" that tears up the show.

The second disc is devoted to more recent songs, of which "Take a Whiff" is a winner . . . an old Leadbelly number from many years ago in new guise.

SANTANA'S "Abraxas" (Columbia KC 30130 must now be owned by everyone who might possibly want it, but nevertheless I'll note that it's an LP that should be in every rock collection, no matter how modest. The wonderful blend of Latino, Soul, Jazz and Rock that Santana achieves cannot be described in words. Just listen to "Black Magic Woman" or 'Samba Pa Ti," and you'll see.

Again, the album boasts extraordinary cover art.

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

O. J. Simpson, star running back for the Buffalo Bills football team, will play a guest role with Glenn Ford in the latter's "Cade's County" series.

Frank Sinatra returned to greasepaint and sound stage to film several television commercials for the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

Gene Hackman, a nominee for best actor in "The Last Picture Show," will make his first appearance on the Academy Award presentations April 10.

Art Linkletter will narrate "A Billion and Three," an hour-long documentary for World Vision International dealing with child care centers.

Walt Disney Productions will release a new children's publication, "Disneyland Magazine," to be published and distributed via supermarkets across the country.

Bud Yorkin and Norman Lear, producers of "All in the Family," have launched a merchandising program with a campaign promoting "Archie Bunker for President" and "Archie Bunker for Prime Minister" of Canada.

Sandy Duncan of television's "Funny Face" has been named Woman of the Year in broadcasting by the Hollywood Radio and Television Society.

THE SAN RAFAEL High School Jazz Ensemble, above, will be one of the musical groups featured in "The Young Sound of Spring" special Thursday at 8 p.m. on Channel 7. It is the 11th program in KGO-TV's much-praised "Young Sound" series presenting youthful Bay Area school and community musicians. Bill Bixby of television's "The Courtship of Eddie's Father" series will host the Thursday show.

Jean Stapleton At Home Is Prettier And Modest

years I've played in stock have prepared me for the role of Edith."

MUCH PRETTIER and younger looking off screen, Miss Stapleton is a modest woman who prefers talking about her husband and children and co-workers. She has none of the egotism associated with actors.

"I do feel that live audiences nourish actors," she continued. "It's one of the reason I look forward to working in the theater in summer. The kids love it, too. They prefer painting scenery for their father's productions to going to camp." She smiled and her eyes twinkled. "Frankly, I don't blame them"

SWITCH FATAL FOR THEATER

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A Baltimore movie house was forced to close two months after it responded to public protests and switched from films rated "X" to family fare.

The Irvington Theater changed formats after local priests and nuns led neighborhood residents on picket lines in front of the theatre.

It closed after the manager said a John Wayne movie drew only $400 business in a week.

Marin Poets' Corner

APRIL SUNDAY

The morning sunlight
was trying to push away the window shade.
Her gentle breathing,
next to me,
the only sound in the world.
The sun was trying,
in envy,
to capture her warmth.
I held her close to me
and knew that the sun would always seem, somehow,
cold.

SANTA VENETIA — KEN ROBIN

REVERIE

Let me live,
The life I want to live
And take not from me
The challenge and force,
(An inborn feeling)
That drives my will,
Fertile with seeds of hope,
Ambition the water of my dreams,
And let these visions bloom
Bright and forever
Till the weeds of age
Choke my flowering reverie.

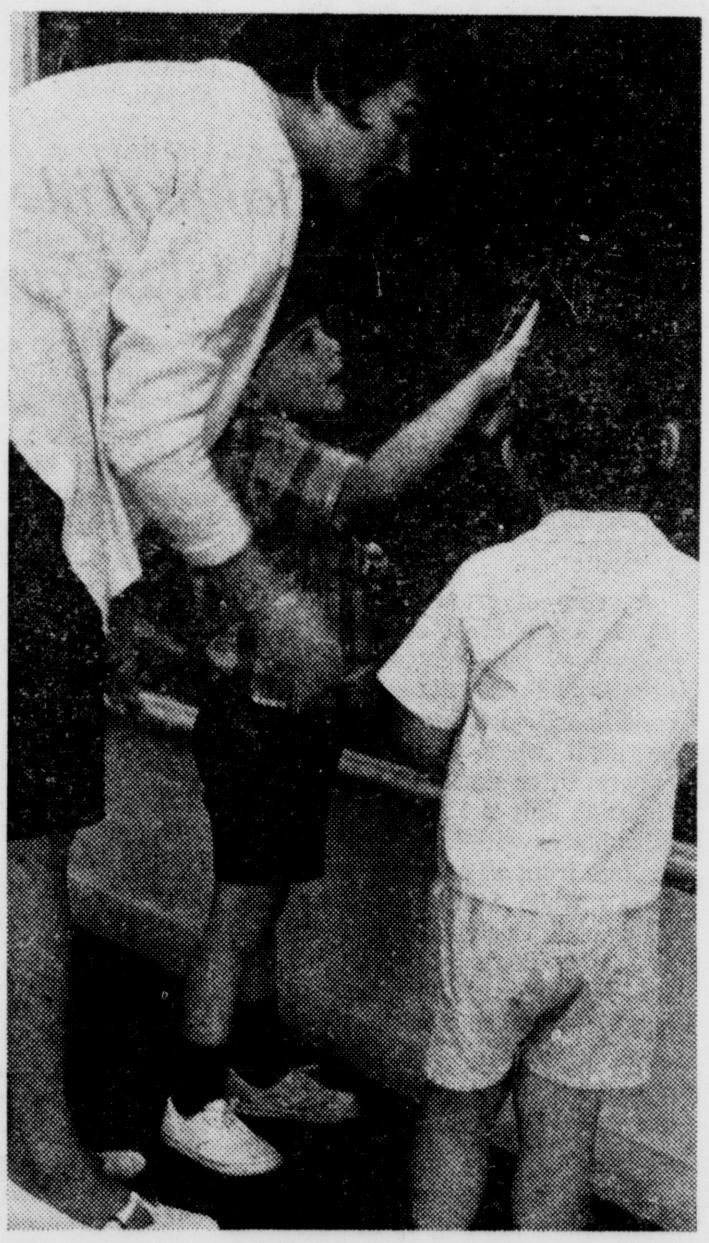
participants as well as beneficial to them. Here Speech Pathologist Grace Almon uses a picture storybook as one means of enticing a group of the children into spontaneous, animated conversation.

TWO PLAYMATES at the Marin headquarters of the Easter Seal Society are absorbed in the playing of a new game. And as they play, they converse spontaneously, without the self-consciousness that so often afflicts the child with speech difficulties.

lp For ildren xt Is o Fun

se youngsters require profes- ssistance in de- g the basic — speech and ge — for social and learning. uch help, chil- n approach the ng of their for- ducation with r skill, more and a joy for g."



AT RIGHT, one of the devices used by the Marin Easter Seal Society to encourage pre-school youngsters to forget their speech inhibitions and talk freely is an old switchboard that was transplanted to the Easter Seal headquarters in San Rafael from Arequipa near Fairfax at the time that property changed in use from a tuberculosis sanitarium to a Girl Scout camp. To play telephone, you must, of necessity, talk. And talk that might otherwise be frightening becomes, instead, all part of the fun. At left, a blackboard and chalk serve Speech Pathologist Grace Almon as tools as she works with two attentive lads in the Easter Seal program. Photographer Emme Gilman took the pictures on these pages in 1969 when the children shown in the photos were then enrolled in the speech therapy program.

THIS STREET SCENE of young and old on cobblestones is from Kenneth Richter's color film, "Germany: Key to Europe," to be shown Monday at 8:15 p.m. at the new Marin Veterans Memorial Building at the Civic Center. Richter will narrate the picture which includes such sights as the Bavarian Alps, the Harz Mountains, the Black Forest, a visit to a cuckoo clock factory, scenes in Nuremberg and Munich, Rhine castles, walled towns, palaces, and a venture past the wall into East Berlin and the East German countryside.

Marin Poets' Corner

APRIL SUNDAY

The morning sunlight
was trying
to push away the window shade.
Her gentle breathing,
next to me,
the only sound in the world.
The sun was trying,
in envy,
to capture her warmth.
I held her close to me
and knew that the sun would always seem,
somehow,
cold.

SANTA VENETIA — KEN ROBIN

REVERIE

Let me live,
The life I want to live
And take not from me
The challenge and force,
(An inborn feeling)
That drives my will,
Fertile with seeds of hope,
Ambition the water of my dreams,
And let these visions bloom
Bright and forever
Till the weeds of age
Choke my flowering reverie.

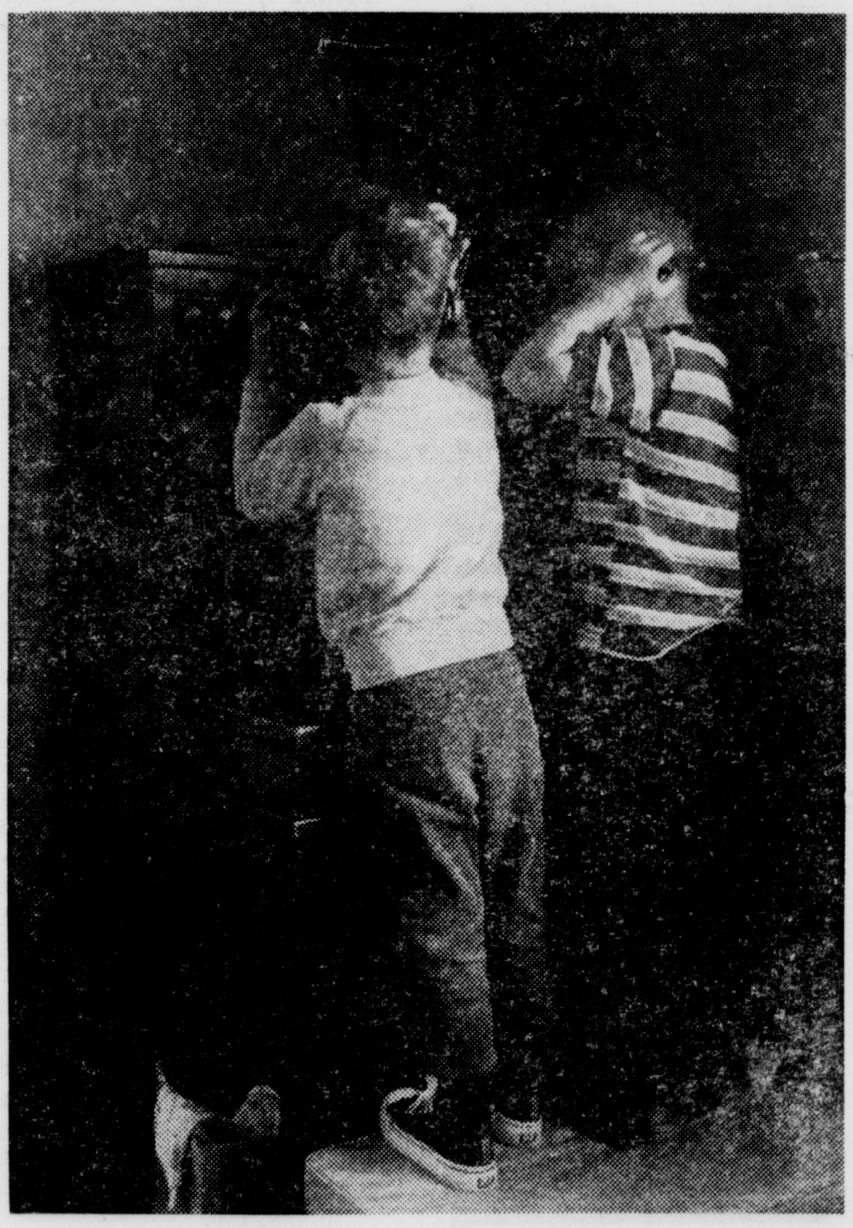
AT RIGHT, one of the devices used by the Marin Easter Seal Society to encourage pre-school youngsters to forget their speech inhibitions and talk freely is an old switchboard that was transplanted to the Easter Seal headquarters in San Rafael from Arequipa near Fairfax at the time that property changed in use from a tuberculosis sanitarium to a Girl Scout camp. To play telephone, you must, of necessity, talk. And talk that might otherwise be frightening becomes, instead, all part of the fun. At left, a blackboard and chalk serve Speech Pathologist Grace Almon as tools as she works with two attentive lads in the Easter Seal program. Photographer Emme Gilman took the pictures on these pages in 1969 when the children shown in the photos were then enrolled in the speech therapy program.



Busy Cruise Year For The West Coast

Free Folder Lists All The Voyages

Used to be when Californians or folks from Vancouver decided to enjoy an ocean cruise, they hied themselves to New York or Florida.

No more. During the coming year more than 200 pleasure voyages will sail from West Coast ports, undoubtedly a record in the trend that started on the Nile with Cleopatra.

Upcoming cruise destinations include the full spectrum between Capetown and Ensenada, with lengths from five months to three days. Ships range from the time-tested President Cleveland and Mariposa to new entries like P & O's Spirit of London and Norse-flavored Royal Viking Star. These are all passenger liners, cruising on rigid schedules and providing the ultimate in dining, service and entertainment.

SHIPBOARD FRIENDSHIPS, old and new, are a highlight of cruises in the vast and varied Pacific. The South Seas will be only one of the destinations for which cruise ships will be departing from West Coast ports in 1972. It is going to be a record year for ocean cruising.

THERE ARE also scores of freighters, luxurious enough for Onassis, carrying only 12 passengers and travelling on more flexible timetables to accommodate the loading and unloading of cargo.

Air-sea cruise packages are growing in favor. By flying one way, passengers can fit a relaxing ocean cruise into a relatively short vacation at about the same cost.

The Trans-Pacific Passenger Conference, 311 California St., San Francisco, 94104, has a free folder listing hundreds of cruises off the West Coast. Travel agents and local line offices can furnish more details, including fares, which range from under $20 a day to above $300 depending on ship and type of stateroom.

MEALS ARE included in the fares, while drinks and tips are extra.

Following are samples of anchors-aweigh attractions for the balance of 1972 and the forepeak of 1973:

ALASKA: Princess Italia (Princess Cruises) launches her summer two-week excursions up the Inland Passage on June 15, from San Francisco. Monterey (Pacific Far East Line) goes north from Los Angeles June 20. Oronsay (P&O Lines) starts her glacier runs June 25. Additional dates include four each for Italia, Monterey and Oronsay.

CARIBBEAN: P&O offers several one-way cruises to Bermuda with rum-island stops en route. Canberra (12 days to Port Everglades) sails April 14 from Los Angeles, and P&O lists seven more through early '73. Princess Italia ventures a 34-day round trip April 21. Royal Viking Star (Royal Viking Line) debuts with a 31-day "Carib" run-round Nov. 10.

MEXICO: Princess Italia lists four choices of seven, 11 or 14 days' duration between March 17 and May 30, eight more between Sept. 15 and Dec. 29. Royal Viking Star tests Puerto Vallarta, Manzanillo, Acapulco and Mazatlan for two weeks on Dec. 19. Arcadia (P&?) offers a week's cruising Dec. 13 and 21.

EUROPE: P&O tenders nine one-way trips through the Panama Canal and the Caribbean to Cherbourg and Southampton from San Francisco. These take about three weeks. Royal Viking Star suggests a 37-day, one-way cruise via Panama and the West Indies to north European ports on April 29, 1973 (plan ahead!).

HAWAII: More than 30 sailings, and wide choices: steam down and fly back (or vice versa), stop over for another ship, or cruise the whole way and visit the Outer Islands. There's a ship every week or two. PFEL sends Monterey to Honolulu and back for 10 days on April 10, repeats May 29, June 8 and six times July through September. APL has President liners every 21 days or so, starting with the Cleveland April 9. Princess Italia invades Hawaii for the first time on a 17-day pair of four-island hops, Aug. 25 (from San Francisco via Vancouver) and Oct. 10 from Los Angeles, via Ensenada. PFEL's former Matson liners offer 18-day Hawaii cruises Oct. 12 and Dec. 22; 10-day jaunts Nov. 28, Dec. 11 and next Jan. 20.

SOUTH PACIFIC P&O and PFEL ships are scheduling more than 15 cruises averaging 40 days. Try Monterey April 19, Mariposa June 16, or Orsova June 21. Royal Viking Star has a 12-port, 46-day offering next Jan. 2.

CIRCLE PACIFIC (including Orient): These average about two month's duration: Orsova June 21, Arcadia Sept. 14, Monterey Sept. 28, Arcadia Jan. 10, Royal Viking Star, Feb. 18, 1973.

ORIENT: President Cleveland April 9 is the first of APL's 13 Orient loops during the next 12 months. Ten are 43-day roundtrips to Honolulu, Japan, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Manila; three are somewhat abbreviated. Starting April 13, Orient Overseas Line (Oriental Jade, Pearl) has eight sailings on a 65-day schedule with longer port-stops for freight. Brazil Maru of Mitsui-OSK Line makes 23-day one-way trips May 22, Sept. 20 and in January and May next year.

ROUND THE WORLD: Six 121-days circumnavigations by OOL, June 1 through Dec. 14. President Wilson leaves next Jan. 5, visiting 23 ports in 95 days.

SOUTH AMERICA (East Coast): Brazil Maru March 20, July 19, next November and March.

PARTY CRUISES' (three or four days): Princess Italia April 7, May 26, Sept. 12, Oct. 27 and Dec. 1; Oronsay July 23. APL offers overnight runs between San Francisco and Los Angeles about every three weeks, starting April 9.

Outside the Trans-Pacific Passenger Conference, Sitmar Cruises' 25,000 ton Fairsea is currently engaged in a busy Los Angeles to Mexico schedule, and is slated to be joined by her new sister ship, the Fairwind, this July, after which Sitmar service will be expanded to the Caribbean. German Atlantic Line's Hamburg departs April 10 on a Circle Pacific voyage, and leaves June 10 for Europe to North Cape, Russia and other points. And West Tours will be operating three small ships this summer between Seattle-Vancouver and Alaska.

Smith River Claims Title Of U.S. Easter Lily Capital

What do you suppose, Bunny? Ninety percent of all the Easter lilies sold in the Unites States are grown around the coastal town of Smith River, tucked between the redwoods and the surf in the northwestern corner of California.

A score of growers produce an annual harvest of some 10 million of the fragrant white flowers on 500 acres, under conditions which were found to be ideal when Japanese lily exports dried up in World War II. Each July a 12-mile coastal strip blazes with lilies, drawing visitors from all over the world. That's when Smith River has its annual Easter-in-July festival, with floats of white and colorful hybird lilies, bathing beauties and the works.

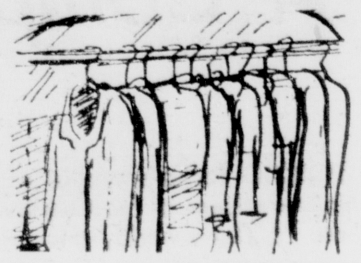
But Easter isn't in July, so the Smith River growers have to improve on Mother Nature's schedule.

Mature bulbs (lilies all grow from bulbs) are dug up in October, shipped to cold-storage depots around the country, and held at 40-degree temperatures for six weeks. Then they are potted and brought to bloom under conditions of controlled temperature. By Easter the creamy white bellshaped blossoms appear in nurseries and florist shops.

Del Norte County, where Smith River is located, has botanical goliaths to contrast with the delicate lilies. In Jedediah Smith Redwoods State Park, for example, vacationers camp and fish in the shade of 350-foot Sequoia Smepervirens, the coast redwood trees which rank as the world's tallest living things.

Smith River, Del Norte County and their delightful neighbors are fully described in a new 48-page brochure, which the Redwood Empire Assn. will send prospective visitors for 25 cents to cover postage and handling. Write them at 476 Post St., San Francisco, Calif., 94102.

A Yosemite Trail A Century Old And Still In Use



By SHIRLEY SARGENT

A century ago an important new trail from Glacier Point to Yosemite Valley was opened. An observer named John Muir recorded that the trail "leads . . . down the face of the mountain by an easy grade to a point back of Leidig's Hotel, and has over half a dozen Inspiration Points."

What Muir considered an "easy grade" was a rise of over 3,200 feet in three and one-half miles! Rocks, roots, trees and brush were replaced by 53 zigzags in a construction and engineering feat that took only five months.

Prosaically, and inaccurately, the new route was dubbed the Four-Mile-Trail rather than being named for either of its builders, James McCauley or John Conway. McCauley (1837-1911) was a son of Erin, a stowaway to America, who had mined in Idaho, Montana, and California. At Hite's Cove, near Yosemite Valley, he had built a wagon road before visiting Yosemite in the spring of 1870. James M. Hutchings hired McCauley as a tourist guide and later persuaded him to undertake the trail construction.

IN THE FALL of 1871, he and John Conway (1830-1917), a massive Pennsylvanian with experience in trail and road building, surveyed the route. Both men were rugged and constructed over a mile of the trail before halted by winter storms. Early the following spring, McCauley borrowed money from miner friends, hired men, and pushed the work. His crew consisted of "seven nationalities . . . himself (Irish), one Englishman, one Scotchman, a Chinese, two Indians, one American, and a Mexican lad who worked best of any."

As soon as Union Point, a couple of miles up, was reached, McCauley obtained permission from Galen Clark, the Yosemite Valley guardian, to allow tourists to travel that far. For a toll of $1, they could climb to Union Point, enjoy the view, lunch and have coffee.

McCauley needed every dollar he could raise to pay, feed and lodge his crew, and supply them with tools and black powder. He borrowed $2500, which took him thirty months to repay, and invested $3500 in the trail.

WHILE McCAULEY scrounged for money, Conway supervised the construction until an "accident happened to me imperiling my life." Still the trail was in regular use by June when one of its users was author Helen Hunt Jackson. She reported, "It is broad, smooth, and well-protected on the outer edge, in all dangerous places, by large rocks; so that, although it is far the steepest trail out of the Valley, zigzagging back and forth on a sheer granite wall, one rises up it with little alarm or giddiness, and with such a sense of gratitude that the dollar toll seems too small."

In the one hundred years since its opening, thousands of people have walked or ridden the trail, and thousands of dollars have been spent to maintain and improve it. Many sections have been reconstructed, lessening its steepness yet lengthening it.

If accuracy, rather than tradition, ruled, today the FourMile-Trail would be called the Five-Mile Trail.

Yesterday still lives in Yosemite. The Four- (or Five) Mile-Trail will be climbed by many visitors again this season. Next time you're in Yosemite take a hike on the trail, at least as far as Union Point.

Sitmar Vacation Cruises to Mexico. In between all the fun on board comes Acapulco, Mazatlan, Puerto Vallarta and Zihuatanejo.

It's our resortships that get to you first. You get so involved, you even forget where the ship's bound for. Swim, get a start on your tan. Shoot skeet or the breeze with new friends. Dance in a couple of nightclubs. Loaf and laugh in any of 6 pubs. Take a sauna. Shop in our ship's boutique. And not counting our regular continental cuisine, there's midnight buffet every night where you can gorge on gourmet goodies.

On top of all this: Acapulco. Complete with cliff divers. Mazatlan. Where you can reel in a giant sailfish or marlin. Puerto Vallarta. An ancient Aztec paradise long before the movie stars moved in. Zihuatanejo. An unsophisticated, uncommercial fishing village. All of this and you still don't have to unpack, pack, check in, check out. You don't even have to trek around weighted down by your souvenirs. They're stashed in your huge stateroom closet.

Our resortships leave all year around on 7, 11, or 12-day round trips from Los Angeles. The T.S.S. A Complex Of Florida Attractions Beckons Tourists

POSING for a snapshot with one of the jolly denizens of the Country Bear Jamboree at Disneyworld, this country's newest amusement colossus, is Sue MacMillan, a travel consultant with Redwood Travel Advisors, San Rafael. She recently visited northeast Florida and is complex of tourist attractions — Disneyworld, Cypress Gardens, the Kennedy aerospace flight center, etc. — as a guest of Delta Airlines. At right she reports upon her trip and northeastern Florida's potential as a vacation destination for Marinites and other Californians.

By SUE MacMILLAN

One is immediately caught up in the breath-taking vista of floral color in Cypress Gardens, a tropical wonderland of Cypress trees, walls of bougainvilles, and thousand upon thousands of multicolored flowers from all points of the world.

The main attraction of Cypress Gardens is its spectacular water show, but its flora is an integral part of its appeal.

THE KENNEDY Space flight center, about 90 minutes drive from Cypress Gardens, represents the sum and total of our futuristic pioneering attempts. It offers an excellent guided tour of the facilities, and is a "must" for tourists of all ages.

The main point of interest to me, as a California Travel Agent, was how Disneyworld stacked up against "our" Disneyland.

The similarities between the two are simply amazing. The completed portion of Disneyworld (only a fraction of the total 27,000 acres) has all of the present attractions of Disneyland with the exception of the Matterhorn and the Pirates of The Caribbean. It has one thing that Disneyland didn't have until last weekend: The Country Bear Jamboree; a rootin', tootin', swinging combo of mountaineer-type brown bears with banjos, washbuckets, kazoos . . . you name it! As with many other Disney creations, the lovable bears are very realistic machines, filled with Disney charm and elan.

DISNEYWORLD at present is but a forecast of a vast social experiment. When completed, it will have something for everyone: condominiums, hotels-motels and even wild campgrounds for those hardier types. Visitors to Disneyworld will have unlimited access to all transportation facilities: monorails, steamboats, trams and railroads.

In addition, all sports areas are open - golf, sailing, horseback riding, archery and various childrens' activity programs.

The northwestern Florida area: Cypress Gardens/Cape Kennedy/Disneyworld is a very popular destination for residents of the East and an up-and coming attraction for Westerners. Disneyworld is almost completely booked through 1972 as a result of the interest, and many low-cost three and four-day "packages" are available through your travel agent.

A Merging Of Holiday And Studies

What's the best way to combine a vacation with education?

Summer school in Mexico has been the answer for hundreds of thousands of North Americans since 1921 when Mexico City's famed National University opened its portals to foreign students.

Now, schools south of the border host some 30,000 "foreigners" every summer. Students range from pre-kindergarten toddlers to doctoral candidates. Courses range from guitar-playing and folklore to nuclear physics and business law.

Summer sessions usually run from June through August, from one to 12 weeks, with tuition costs ranging from about $40 to more than $500, the latter usually for a full summer including room, board, workshops and extensive excursions. Room and board in private homes selected by schools starts at about $4 daily.

A Mexicana Airlines-compiled list of summer schools in Mexico is available free on request from that airline's office at 275 Post St., San Francisco, 94108.

The Book Pages

"Every senator in this chamber is partly responsible for sending 50,000 young Americans to an early grave. This chamber reeks of blood. . . . It doesn't take courage at all for a congressman, or a senator, or a President to wrap himself in the Flag and say we're staying in Vietnam. Because it isn't our blood that is being shed. But we are responsible for those young men and their lives and their hopes. And if we don't end this foolish, damnable war, those young men will someday curse us for our pitiful willingness to let the Executive carry the burden the Constitution puts on us." — Sen. George McGovern, September, 1970.

The Quiet Senator From South Dakota

McGOVERN: A BIOGRAPHY by Robert Sam Anson; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 304 pages, $7.95.

By DON KEOWN

'Tis the season for campaign biographies of presidential aspirants. And 'tis the practice of all such biographers to begin their books with an assertion that their work is "unauthorized" and thus not the usual polemic to publicize a candidate and to promote his campaign.

Robert Sam Anson, Time magazine correspondent, does the expected in the introduction to his "McGovern: A Biography."

George McGovern, he admits, requested that he write the book, and agreed to submit freely and openly to questioning. But, he adds, the South Dakota senator now seeking the Democratic Party's presidential nomination also relinquished all prepublication censorial rights over the manuscript.

There is more reason to think that Anson is being candid than is true with most such biographers. In the first place, the book reads as a honest, though definitely admiring, study of its subject, and contains a great deal of intimate and critical material that George McGovern, although never a secretive man about either his public or private lives, would no doubt prefer to have gone unmentioned.

Then, too, there is good cause to suppose that George McGovern has little to lose — and possibly even much to gain — from a frank and probing analysis of his actions and his character. His career and his life generally have been conducted upon such a high plane that there was little danger of even the most intensive search uncovering information that would be truly damaging. Indeed, George McGovern seems to suffer, in the public mind, from an image that is too high and too pure — unblemished to the point of blandness.

"Is it possible that Senator McGovern just might win the Democratic nomination and then go on to win the presidency? There is something rather terrifying in the prospect. Good men have made it to the White House so infrequently that the thought of George McGovern's becoming President is positively unnerving. We have had, of course, great Presidents, men of his intelligence, courage, vision, high character, and other admirable qualities, but genuine human decency has not been a common trait. George McGovern is one of the rare good men in national politics. It is difficult to imagine his being vindictive or inconsiderate or indifferent to human suffering. His decency as a human being, let it be confessed, is a distinct liability."

In short, so good and decent a man is George McGovern that he seems dull in this era of demagoguery and flamboyance. He is long on decency — and foresight, as he proved in his early and steadfast opposition to our tragic Vietnamese involvement — and short on "charisma," as that over-used and mis-used term is generally employed today.

Anson comes up with very little in the way of human frailties or misconduct to enliven the McGovern image.

True, he demonstrates that McGovern is a man of greater than normal ambition. But that is hardly a flaw in a political figure. He makes the point that McGovern, for all his deep and idealistic commitment, is a man who rarely displays or shows emotion, a trait that is at the heart of his difficulties in selling himself and his programs to the public. Many voters have become more enamored with the sizzle than the steak. And Anson does take note of certain inconsistencies and shrinking from confrontation that might be regarded as weaknesses in the McGovern record, but these are few and minor in comparison with the performances of most politicians.

What Anson, his readers, and the McGovern campaign is left with is the biography of a man so totally honest, so very considerate of others, so abhorrent of anything that smacks of demagoguery that his record for taking early and unpopular stands and fighting them through courageously to victory or defeat is largely overlooked and unrecognized. A commonplace appearance and a soft voice contribute to the impression of a quiet and ordinary man, when is actually eloquent and extraordinary.

Anson, who has a special, personal reason for identifying with George McGovern's stand on Southeast Asia, having himself as a war correspondent been captured and held prisoner by Cambodian guerrillas and North Vietnamese, has written a plain-spoken, direct, unsensationalized biography of the kind that George McGovern can appreciate. It does explain the man even if it does not dramatize or really "humanize" him.

We meet George McGovern, minister's son, debate star student, war hero, young minister, college teacher, unorthodox bureaucrat, politician, legislator, humanitarian and candidate.

As for the McGovern candidacy, Anson says it will "depend upon the country's perception of itself. In their relatively brief history, Americans have chosen a variety of men to lead them, both the brave and the weak, the knight and the knave. Not often had they chosen a quietly decent man who offered nothing so much as the promise of belief."

In other words, George McGovern's hopes rest upon the possibility that Americans in 1972 will overcome their immature preoccupation with charisma, television images, grandstanding, racial, class and generation fears and hatreds, etc., and vote instead upon the basis of the man who has most consistently been rightupon the issues, most forthright in making known to the public his stands and his views, and most consistent in adhering to these.

THE SCENT OF DANGER by Elisabeth Kyle; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 185 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Newgate Callendar, the New York Times pseudonymous reviewer of crime fiction, becomes especially annoyed over a style he calls "lady prose." Elisabeth Kyle's novel should drive him to distraction.

Along with an insipid writing style, the author combines a tangled and unlikely plot relying heavily upon coincidence with some paper-thin and uninteresting characters. The result is a simply awful book which can claim as its only possible redeeming feature its setting — in the French Riviera region where the flowers for the perfume industry grow.

Young Serena Fern, who seems a particularly stupid English girl, is employed by the domineering and unpleasant American owner of a beauty salon chain, to accompany her to France where Madame Lilith is determined to find and own a long lost and valuable scent formula. To add to the boredom, Serena is being followed by a mystery man whom she might identify as a London murderer. Miss Kyle ties these two plots together through the cheap and easy device of coincidence. And the whole thing drags on to an unexciting conclusion.

OUR FRIENDS in the Marin mineral society should be interested in the sterling-published "Colorful Mineral Identifier," a handy-sized 224-page field manual compiled by Dr. Anthony Tennissen, Lamar University professor of geology, and illustrated beautifully with color photographs by the widely-known German Werner Lieber. Both familiar and rare specimens are included among the 120 plates, and Tennissen's accompanying material is concise and authoritative. The book sells for a bargain $3.50.

THE ROMANTIC CHALLENGE by Sir Francis Chichester; Coward McCann and Geoghegan, 255 page, $7.95. Reviewed by Richard B. Lyttle.

The master yachtsman has done it again — taken another venture and written a book about it. Followers of Sir Francis Chichester will be happy to learn that both the venture and the book are up to standards set by previous efforts.

There may have been some who feared anything after "Gypsy Moth Circles the World" would be anticlimactic. Not so. At age 69, the remarkable Sir Francis attempted to sail a 4,000 mile course across the Atlantic in 20 days. Of course, to average 200 miles a day, he felt the job had to be done in winter when winds blow hardest.

There are plenty of adventures in the attempt at his goal. The lean skipper rigs a spinnaker pole out of two broken ones. His Gypsy Moth V is knocked down and Sir Francis suffers a painful leg bruise. He radioes for help. No one answers his call, so he sets things right again and sails on.

Sir Francis is happier with his ship, a 57-foot stay-sail ketch, than he was with the craft he sailed around the world. "The Romantic Challenge" thus avoids much of the cranky and detailed comment the skipper unburdened in opening his circumnavigation book.

In this latest book, Sir Francis confesses that his quest for speed under sail is "almost an obsession," an understatement in the best British tradition. His is full obsession, but it could not take hold of a better man. Who else with the means for such ventures can match Sir Francis in skill and spirit?

One thing misleading about "The Romantic Challenge" is that it is not romantic. Sir Francis is a technician trying to master a difficult problem. Those expecting the Chichester of "The Lonely Sea and the Sky," the story of his youthful ventures, including the attempted 'round the world flight, will be disappointed here. But while "The Romantic Challenge" may not appeal to the general reader as much as the early book, there is enough in it to warm the blood of any boatman.

China Turmoil: Mao's Motive

CHINA RETURNS by Klaus Mehnert; Dutton, 322 pages, $10. Reviewed by Larry Kramer.

Hurray! It's no longer subversive to be interested in mainland China.

At the highest political and diplomatic levels within the United States we now hear references to the People's Republic of China rather than to the Chinese Reds. In the months to come, all things Chinese from politics to porcelains will continue to be topics of conversation and speculation in the United States.

Today it is important that the American people look critically at what the leaders of the People's Republic of China are trying to do.

Klaus Mehnert's new book, "China Returns," makes a significant contribution to such a central understanding. Mehnert does not see China in isolation, either historically or politically.

He is a German journalist who has lived and worked in the Soviet Union, in the United States and in China. Most recently he spent a month in China in the spring of 1971, but unlike many other recent visitors, this was not his first trip. Previously he had been in China in 1929, 1936, 1941-1946 when he taught in several Chinese universities, and in 1957.

Because of his unusual background he is able to present China in terms comprehensible to Americans and he is also in a position to contrast some of the post-revolutionary upheavals in China with events in the Soviet Union in the decades after the October Revolution.

Mehnert is primarily concerned with the Cultural Revolution which rocked China during 1966 and 1967. The German title of his book, "China nach dem Sturm" (China After the Storm) is much more appropriate than the title of the American edition. He provides us with a good deal of insight into the reasons for the Cultural Revolution, what happened during it, why it was suspended, and what the results have been thus far.

Mehnert feels that the Cultural Revolution was initiated by Mao to revitalize the revolutionary spirit in China. Mao sought to avoid what happened in the Soviet Union where revolutionary experimentalism has been replaced by an unbelievably rigid bureaucracy.

Mao could see the same stratification taking place in China. The Chinese tradition of hierarchical organization is so strong that, as Mehnert points out, "by 1956, seven years after the founding of the People's Republic, there are already 30 grades of officialdom, differentiated by a great deal more than title alone. . ."

Mao not only wanted to reverse the bureaucratic stratification process — he wanted much more. According to Mehnert, Mao's goal was to prevent the revolutionary arteries from ever hardening by ". . .creating a new man, a man such as never before existed, either in the West or the East, in Russia or in China. . .And were this new man to be born, then once again the old laws would surely have to be overthrown, and still newer concepts of mankind would arrive to wipe out the old. So in truth the revolution can never end. . ."

The idea that "the Cultural Revolution was first of all a blow against hierarchy and hierarchical thinking" is Mehnert's most significant insight. It clarifies much of the political turmoil and changing leadership picture in China for us. For example, it explains why Liu Shao-chi has been stigmatized as a "revisionist," as "the Chinese Khrushchev."

Liu was neither traitor nor fool. His organizing genius played a vital role in China's development during the 1950s and early '60s. But when Mao came to feel that stability was turning into organizational rigor mortis, then the creator of that stability turned from hero to villain overnight.

Against this larger picture of Mao's objective, Mehnert's description of his visits to communes, brigades, factories and schools takes on new meaning. On every level under Mao's leadership, there has been a concerted effort to prevent the entrenchment of any leadership cadre. Constant demotion of present leaders and promotion to leadership of new faces from the ranks of the Army, the workers and the peasants, is Mao's key to keeping the society fluid and the revolution alive.

Mehnert raises some interesting questions which he cannot answer about what has happened to the Chinese intelligentsia. He was not allowed to visit the universities, many of which were closed during the Cultural Revolution. Those that are now open are much reduced in enrollment.

The intellectual tradition in China has already given the Communists much difficulty. Mao is trying to substitute trained technicians for questioning intellectuals. We should be watching very carefully to see how successful he is in this attempt, because this cuts more sharply against the grain of Chinese tradition than any other aspect of Maoism.

Mehnert has not only written a provocative study of contemporary China, but he has organized "China Returns" in a unique and useful way. The book is divided into four sections. The first section details his observations on his visit, the second is made up of his analysis of the meaning of what he saw, the third provides background for the Cultural Revolution, and the final section is a sampling of current Chinese directives, theories and propaganda.

This structure, separating out the descriptive, interpretive, historical and documentary components, makes it possible for the reader to draw his own conclusions, based on the same data available to Mehnert.

An Agent Who Changed Bosses

GEHLEN: SPY OF THE CENTURY By E. H. Cookridge; Random House, 365 pages, $10. Reviewed by D. R. Henriksen.

Espionage is the name of the game in this book. Informative and fast-moving, it is a history buff's delight, covering 50 years of action-packed life of a remarkable man.

The book is about Reinhard Gehlen, a German agent who because of his knack for espionage worked his way up to become Hitler's chief intelligence officer during World War II. He remained in this capacity until the end of the war,but, realizing the Third Reich was failing, made plans for his future after the war. He had all the valuable documents available to him microfilmed and buried the film in steel cannisters. After being taken prisoner by the Americans he offered his valuable archives to them to aid them with their checks on Communism.

So grateful were the Americans for the assistance of this ex-Nazi that they set up a German-run intelligence headquarters at Pullah and put Gehlen in charge. Its main objective was to train and send agents into East Germany and the Soviet Union.

Gehlen assisted G-2, the American Army intelligence in Europe, and later was instrumental in setting up NATO intelligence.

Among the many operations he became involved in was the successful tunnel under the Berlin Wall in 1955-1956, which was put out of operation after nine months. After, it had played a major role in gathering much needed information it came to its end because of a counter-agent in Gehlen's organization.

During Dwight Eisenhower's terms of office in the 1950s Gehlen provided valuable services in setting up intelligence operations in the Mideast.

Naturally he had many enemies, so to keep from being killed he rarely was seen in public and shied away from photographers. At one time the KGB, the East German espionage organization, offered a reward of $100,000 for his assassination.

In 1968 he was asked to retire before he reached his goal in life — to become the chief intelligence officer for NATO. In his view his life work was directed against the spread of Communism, during World War II and later during the Cold War. He is in retirement now somewhere in the Bavarian Alps living in a chalet that he bought with funds from the CIA.

E. H. Cookridge's book contains many inside glimpses of spies, counter-spies, and defectors, and the different methods they employ in their work. Included are accounts of unsuccessful attempts at parachuting agents behind the Iron Curtain and of telephone line splices called "sluices," a technique Gehlen devised. Even remote controlled toy boats were used to lay vital cables across rivers to the communist sectors. Although these failed, it demonstrated the cunningness of Gehlen.

He was born in Eufurt, in 1902, the son of a Prussian book publisher of the upper class minority. In the Army during World War I he served as an artillery gunner, but was introduced to what was to become his life's work when he volunteered to make reconnaissance forays into Poland.

This book, whether it be read for its historical value or sheer reading pleasure, is one of the best books of its kind to be published in quite some time. The author has undoubtedly researched his material beyond what is revealed in his book, so that he retains the upper hand. Maybe it is because Cookridge was himself a victim of Nazi concentration camps that he is able to present this man in such fascinating detail.

A point to be remembered is that Reinhard Gehlen was truly the one man most responsible for the shaping of undercover and clandestine operations in the Cold War.

IF YOUR YARD IS SMALL

Jack Kramer, Marinite and the world's busiest author of gardening books, has added another title to his lengthy list of volumes for Charles Scribner's Sons' Garden Library series.

The new book is "Garden Planning for the Small Property," and it is a manual that should have a strong appeal here in Kramer's home county where once roomy estates are now practically extinct and most of us are confined in our gardening to suburb-sized backyard plots and even apartment house terraces.

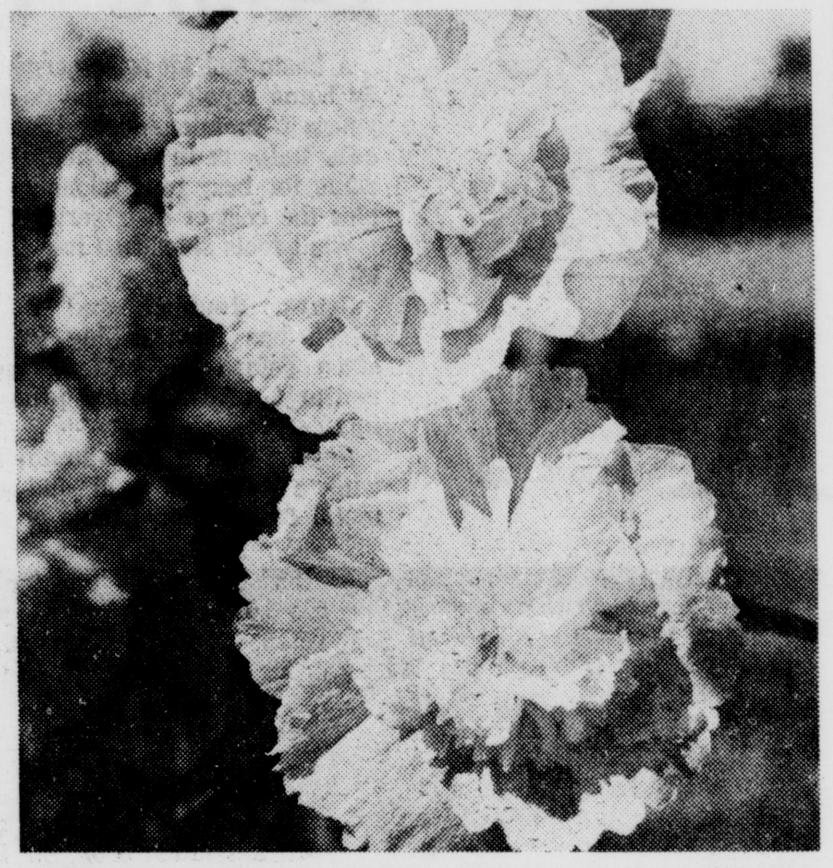
Kramer wastes no space in getting into the meat of his subject by leading off with a discussion of landscape planning for today's smaller-scaled properties. Such special topics as surfacing, enclosures, canopies, plantings and containers are discussed in detail. So are such still more specific subjects as terrace and doorway gardens herb gardens, rose gardens, planter boxes, problem areas.

And there is a good, informative chapter on basic, general maintenance.

Kramer appends a bibliography, a list of plant sources by mail order in the unlikely event you can't find what you want locally, and the addresses of state offices of the agricultural extension services.

The book, like its predecessors in this well-done series, is nicely designed and generously illustrated with photographs and drawings. Here a second Marinite figures in the finished product, Charles Hoeppner having shared the drawing assignment with Frank Chin Loy. M.K.

SOMETHING NEW



THERE IS something wonderfully old-fashioned about the mere name Hollyhock. And the sight of one in bloom invariably inspries nostalgia. Yet there are Hollyhocks today that certain were not around in our childhood or grandmother's day — new ones that have just come onto the market. One of the finest is a 1972 introduction from Japan, the Summer Carnival, which grows five to six feet tall, with a foot or two feet of that length in flower at one time with four-inch blooms that are ruffled and waved like the pompon on a French sailor's beret. The Summer Carnival comes in many colors, and will repeat itself year after year after only one sowing.

Get Back To Nature With Your Own Backyard Vegetable Plot

A desire to return to nature is in evidence throughout the land, and included in this trend is a marked increase in home vegetable gardening. Marin County is no exception to this trend.

There are sufficient reasons to grow vegetables at home, whether it be a motivation to return to a simpler life, the savings to be enjoyed over supermarket prices, or the taste of just-picked produce.

It isn't necessary to have acres of space to grow vegetables. Suburban gardens will accommodate several good crops. And from a time standpoint, no gardener is too busy to indulge himself, at least briefly, in the pleasure of home-grown vegetables.

SPACE-WISE, how much room do a few pole beans take? Actually, these can be grown against a boundary fence where little space is available. Just a few plants will supply a good number of succulent bean dishes.

If the need to conserve space exists, a few tomato plants can be trained up a garage wall, or on a lattice against a back fence. Also, there are semi-dwarf tomatoes which can be grown in pots while other varieties can be grown in tubs with a framework to support the branches.

Nurseries have the tomato varieties recommended for our conditions. These will yield great, edible, returns.

A MOUND OR two of summer squash will provide all one family usually wants. Onions can be grown in any sunny bed — just like a bulb. And how much space does a row of Swiss chard demand?

Unless you're "farming" on a large scale, tending the vegetables should require little time. Pole beans and tomatoes need staking and tying, but that takes only a very little time for a few plants. When you plant onion sets, you don't even have to thin them.

At this time of year, nurseries offer ready-to-plant seedlings of tomatoes, peppers, eggplant. Often cauliflower and celery transplants are available. Some nurseries may have larger-sized, container grown vegetables for setting out in gardens.

Shopping for vegetable transplants and seeds is a fun experience for the entire family. But, then, even more so is the eating of home-grown produce.

There Is No Such Things As Climbing Strawberries

The State Agriculture Department has issued a warning to consumers against the purchase of "climbing strawberries" nursery stock being advertised in California by out-of-state nursery firms.

E. H. McEachern, chief of department's Nursery and Seed Services, described climbing strawberries advertisements as "grossly misleading."

"We have received complaints from people who have planted this nursery stock expecting to have trellises covered with healthy strawberry plants bearing large berries, and who have been bitterly disappointed," McEachern said. "The University of California's experimentation with climbing strawberries has found them very unsatisfactory.

"In fact, Dr. R. S. Bringhurst of the University of California at Davis, one of the nation's outstanding strawberry experts, has also pointed out that in his many years of breeding and testing strawberry plants in California, he has never found a strawberry variety of out-of-state origin that performed well here.

"This is because strawberry plants are very climate-oriented, and those from other areas do not adapt well here."

Plant scientists in California, Oregon and Washington, McEachern said, have determined that there is no botanical basis for applying the term "climbing" to strawberry plants, because a strawberry plant sends out runners, which must root in order to produce a crop of berries.

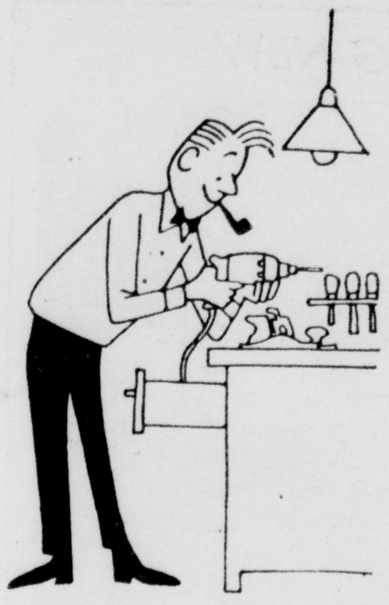
GARDENER'S CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓Many Rhododendrons are blooming in April — or soon will be — which means it's a good time to shop for these magnificent shrubs.

✓When selecting flowering annuals for the garden, get enough of the same color and variety to give a showy effect. Twice as many plants will give 10 times as much impact.

✓Set-out herbs now. Certian ones make excellent shrubs and ground covers; ask your nurseryman to recommend some that will ornament as well as season.



Basic Tool Kit For The Home

A basic tool kit for emergency home repair jobs and do-it-yourself maintenance projects can help reduce scheduled waits for busy professionals — plus the cost of their service.

What tools should go into the kit?

Sears, Roebuck and Co., which has been selling tools since before the turn of the century, offers some guidelines:

First, select a claw hammer with a 16-ounce head and a metal composition handle or a wooden handle with non-slip features. The 16-ounce hammer is a good, all-around tool for most jobs —from setting fences to repairing a roof to hanging pictures.

A 14-inch jack plane for trimming and smoothing edges of dimension lumber, doors and trim is a wise buy. The long "bed" or bottom of the plane permits shaving without rocking and dip-cutting materials.

OTHER BASIC tools should include a twist drill set, up to a quarter-inch, for boring holes in both metal and wood; a quarter-inch hand drill to operate the twist drill set; screwdrivers with four and eight-inch blades and one-eighth through three-eight inch tips for removing and driving screws in small appliances, hinges and locksets, and a medium-size No. Two Phillips' screwdriver. The Phillips' screwdriver can be used for mechanical repairs such as small appliances, electrical systems, and on autos.

For cutting, an eight-point saw is best. It can be used for both ripping and cross-cutting fiber and wood materials. It provides fairly smooth sawn edges, eliminating planing and sanding labor.

ALSO HANDY for cutting purposes are a utility (razor) knife for wood, paper and fiber materials; a single-cut eight-inch shoe rasp file for smoothing wood and fiber materials; and a combination oilstone for sharpening planes and other cutting edges.

In basic tools, an adjustable locking plier-wrench is a good buy since the tool can be used for both loosening and tightening stubborn bolts and screws. An Allen wrench set is necessary for driving socket set-screws in small appliances and autos.

For general use —from plumbing repairs to tightening and loosening bolts on bikes and washing machines — six and 10-inch adjustable wrenches are a must. To turn pipe and couplings on large plumbing lines, a 10-inch pipe wrench does the best job.

For holding purposes, two or more C or spring-type clamps go into a basic tool kit. Also needed are a combination square with a 12-inch blade for measuring and marking accurately, and a spout can of light oil for motor maintenance.

AFTER YOU purchase the basics, consider buying additional equipment in "project" form.

This might include a home painting kit, home plumbing kit and concrete patching kit.

Book Wall Is Mighty Useful In Family Room

A family room is where soggy children dry out on rainy days, working on stamp collections and art projects.

It also welcomes piano lessons, gift wrapping, cub scouts and visiting babies.

Reflecting the individualities of its inhabitants, this chameleon space tries to be all things to all people. Among the variables are a few constants, most important being plenty of storage to support all its activities.

A FAMILY ROOM has to be clear for action, because action is what it gets. Wall units — shelves for books and closed cabinets for stacks of everything else —provide the most storage from the least floor space.

Smooth flooring such as hardwood or a neutral tile is attractive and easy to clean. Bright, thick area rugs can be spotted around for color, rolled up for ballet practice or dance parties.

Casual furniture and sturdy, no-nonsense fabrics underline a light-hearted decorating approach. For versatility, the best things are foldable, stackable, or portable, and it's also fun to try a faddish piece such as a colorful corrugated chair or one of molded plexiglas.

Paneling walls with solid wood, such as the one-by-10-inch western hemlock seen in one comfortable family room recently, is both stylish and sensible.

SMUDGES FAIL to mar the clear finish of wood, so the room is easy to live with. Upkeep requires no more than dusting and occasional wiping down. Naturally warm, wood complements the bright accessory colors that make a room cheerful.

Storage is the heart of the active room, though, and for good reason. You can't use something if you can't find it. In this case, a wall of built-ins does the job.

Base cabinets, faced with the same hemlock boards hold bulky items such as television, stereo, camera gear, and hobby supplies.

The family reference library, not really a pretentious term, fills shelves above, framed in two-by-10s to sharpen the design.

Natural light flows in from a window wall, and soffit lights focus on counter space created by base cabinets. Dark-stained Douglas fir beams accent a light ceiling.

A Heated Tub Is Ultimate In Luxury

If you are planning to modernize your bathroom this spring, remember that nothing is so modern — and so practical — as a heated bathtub.

According to the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, it is especially simple to install a "heated" bathtub when remodeling the bathroom if your home is equipped with a hydronic (modern hot water) home heating system. Before the new tub is set in place, your heating contractor places a length of tubing or heating element underneath the tub; then he connects this tubing or heating element to the heating system itself.

When the thermostat calls for heat, the tub will get warm along with the rest of the house.

The council offers another tip. Have your heating contractor install a baseboard heating panel in the bathroom (if there isn't one there now), and place the towel rack above it. This will help to keep your towels warm and dry.

Tap All That Energy

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY

How often do you encourage the younger members of the family to participate in home-oriented improvement projects?

Or are you too busy with self-fulfillment to notice the creative energy and talent wasting away in pre-teen and high school-age progeny?

We almost never hear youngsters telling the story of how they helped make new living room curtains, painted their bedrooms or laid kitchen flooring. In this do-it-yourself world, why are only the oldsters doing it?

OLDER BROTHERS and sisters can certainly be invited to help dress up a tot's bedroom as well as their own. And if parents just stay in the background, sharing labor and advice only when required, the project can turn into a lesson in homemaking for both boys and girls.

The talents and abilities do exist.

A visit to the art department of any high school or college would provide sufficient proof that talent doesn't flower overnight. It obviously could bloom at any time. All that's needed is the opportunity and incentive, which parents can provide.

The room shown here is full of ideas that could easily be developed by a team of talented family mates. If dad has some workshop equipment, furniture could actually be designed and constructed on the job. Even if there is no real carpentry equipment at home, a nearby school may have an adult evening class in woodworking.

All the equipment in school workshops has been paid for by your tax money, so join the class and use those planers, jointers, electric saws and lathe machines. Get your interested youngsters to do the same, if a class is available in their school.

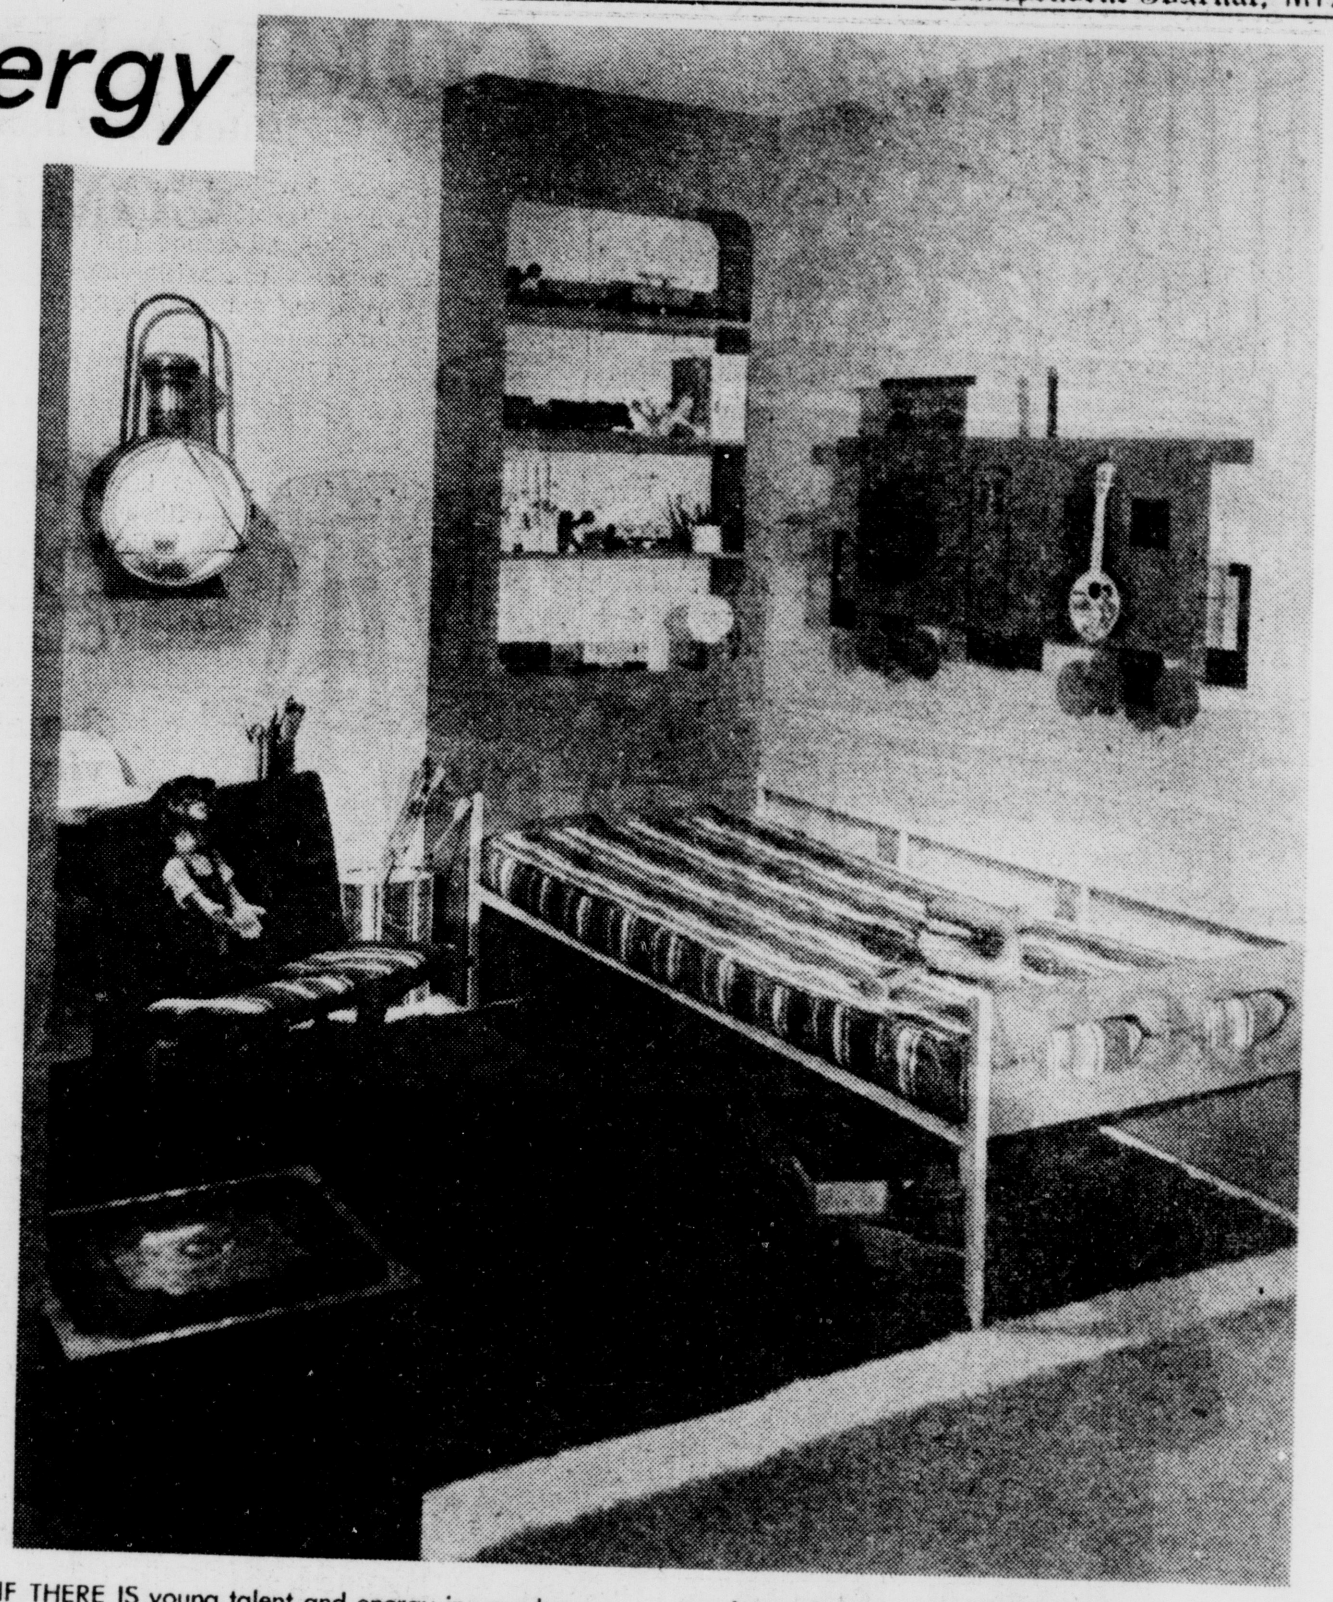
BETWEEN THE two types of classes you should be able to execute an exciting array of handsome and fun projects.

For walls similar to the ones shown in the room designed by Claire Upton, pre-finished paneling can be bought at the lumber dealers. These are a rough-textured type in a shale-white color and they are made by Masonite.

Most pre-cut panels come in four feet by eight feet sections. So if your child's room is higher, plan a dropped ceiling, then get the youngsters to plan the decoration. They might want to paint a blue sky with clouds and stars, or do it in posters or something more unusual! On the other hand, they may be more conservative than you'd expect.

THE STORAGE unit is also made of a Masonite product called Presdwood. One panel was used as a fascia, or face, and the shape of the exposed storage area is cut out of this panel. The back wall holds the shelves. The Presdwood was painted a bright red.

The locomotive decoration on the bed wall is actually a Pegboard cutout designed to hold hats, baseball gloves and sweaters. Even the headboard and footboard on the bed were homemade, using the same Presdwood.



IF THERE IS young talent and energy in your home, don't let it go to waste. Put it to work at a family project such as this boy's room designed by Claire Upton. Masonite panels were used on the walls in an interesting texture, and for storage as well. The bed has a flat, Presdwood finish that takes paint easily. Every member of the family can demonstrate his and her creativity in this one project.

DOING YOUR OWN ARTY THING WITH TACKS, YARN AND PLYWOOD

THERE IS a kind of special satisfaction derived from a contribution to your home decor that you have made with your own hands. And that pleasure is doubled if your materials are unusual and economical. The picture at right shown with its proud creator, recording star Kathleen Emery, was fashioned entirely from yarn, map tacks and plywood, working with the help of a Steve Ellingson-created pattern. For Flower Picture Pattern No. 490, send $1 to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409. All you will have to do then is trace the full-size pattern onto plywood, insert tacks as directed, and string the yarn from tack to tack. The instructions are complete and easily understood. And you will wind up with a wall picture just as colorful and attractive as the one created by Miss Emery. Ellingson has other art picture patterns including a yacht from yarn (No. 452, $1) and a Monterey pine wall mural (No. 308, $2).

For Safety, Plexiglas Instead Of Glass

The National Commission on Product Safety reports that 150,000 people are injured annually in accidents involving glass breakage.

Of these victims, more than 75 per cent are injured as a result of the breakage of glass in outside doors. The commission's report also revealed that youngsters in the 5 to 14 year-old age group account for one-third of glass-injured persons each year.

MOST — IF NOT all — of these mishaps and tragedies could be prevented if a safety glazing material such as Plexiglas acrylic plastic sheet were installed in locations considered potentially hazardous, for example, storm doors, and windows in high traffic areas or where children play, and bath and shower enclosures.

Plexiglas is safe and economical because it is up to 17 times more breakage resistant than glass and can be cut to size when installed by the home owner.

If this optically clear material is subjected to blows beyond its resistance, it generally breaks into relatively dull-edged pieces and does not shatter at a high velocity like glass.

THIS MATERIAL in one-tenth inch thickness can be installed in standard storm door frames as a safe replacement. However, Rohm and Haas Co., the manufacturer of the material, recommends that for greater resistance to impact and ease of installation, the do-it-yourselfer install a quarter-inch thick sheet right into the door, unframed, following the simple instructions.

This acrylic sheet meets the reuuirements of a safety glazing material as defined by the American National Standards Institute and is also an approved material under many state statutes and building codes which require safety glazing in hazardous areas.

Checkered Deck

Checkerboard decks are easy to build. Individual three-foot squares can be assembled indoors, installed later on a frame or directly over a sand and gravel base.

THE FUN'S ON THE CHIEF

San Anselmo Police Chief Raymond R. Buchignani, who observed his 20th anniversary on the city's force today, enjoys a laugh over a caricature presented by his men. The cartoon, showing the chief in civilian garb with police arm patch and hat badge, came with a collection of gifts presented during a special inspection marking the anniversary today at city hall. The chief's utterance in the cartoon, captioned "Our Boss, April 1, 1972," is a departmental joke, according to his men. (Independent-Journal photo)

N. Viet Troops Hold South's Buffer Zone

Quang Tri Likely To Fall To Enemy

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese forces today advanced under a heavy cloud cover that cut allied air strikes to virtually nothing and took complete control of a 10-mile strip of upper South Vietnam in what the South Vietnamese area commander termed an invasion.

The South Vietnamese retreated 10 miles back from their northern Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) border with North Vietnam after 48 hours of the heaviest artillery onslaught in the history of the Vietnamese War.

Officers said government troops were retreating in disarray from the DMZ defense wall and were attempting to set up a new forward line at the Cua Viet (Dong Ha) River, 10 miles south of the buffer zone.

The ground offensive, which overran 10 of 12 DMZ bases in short order, was launched by an estimated three divisions of North Vietnamese infantry troops. Government troops were left holding two isolated artillery bases and one city, Quang Tri, where the South Vietnamese army's 3rd Infantry Division is headquartered.

The town of Dong Ha, which had been evacuated by nearly all its 10,000 people during the preceding two days, fell later today.

Later in the day, the North Vietnamese commandos attacked a post three miles north of the city with machinegun and recoilless rifle fire. The post serves as the rear area combat base for Quang Tri, 18 miles inside South Vietnam, and military sources said its loss would pose a major threat to the city.

Lt. Gen. Hoang Xuan Lam, commander of South Vietnam's 1st military region comprising the five northernmost provinces, toured the front today by helicopter. On his return, military sources quoted him as saying, "The North Vietnamese are crossing the demarcation line to invade Quang Tri province."

Lam said the invasion force consisted of three infantry divisions and three artillery regiments plus antiaircraft units totaling about 48,000 men. There were about that many South Vietnamese troops in the northern five provinces, but not all were in Quang Tri province when the North Vietnamese struck.

(The Nixon administration, which has reduced U.S. ground troops in South Vietnam to less than 100,000, has noted that American forces have been out of active combat since last spring and summer.

(The fighting role has been turned over to the South Vietnamese, and U.S. ground forces primarily are involved in support and logistic operations with only a relatively small number engaged in defense of bases and outposts).

In addition, heavy clouds stopped allied airpower cold. Two squadrons of F4 Phantom jet-bombers were grounded at Da Nang, only 100 miles south of the DMZ, and fighter jets aboard the two U.S. carriers in the South China Sea also were forced to remain behind.

President Nguyen Van Thieu attended a parliamentary reception in Saigon tonight but reportedly canceled plans to spend the weekend out of town in order to stay abreast of the situation in the north.

(In Washington, a White House spokesman said President Nixon was being kept abreast of developments in the battle zone, and that Nixon remained confident the South Vietnamese ground forces could handle the situation on their own.)

Allied officers told UPI correspondent Stewart Kellerman at Da Nang—rear headquarters for South Vietnam's northern

Barrows Calls For Relaxing Of Security At The Civic Center

Tight security measures at the Marin Civic Center should be relaxed but not totally eliminated, County Administrator John F. Barrows recommended yesterday.

Barrows's recommendation, to be considered Tuesday by the Board of Supervisors, is a near duplicate of one made last november.

The supervisors, at that time, rejected the proposal because of the upcoming trial of six San Quentin inmates accused in the bloody escape attempt last August.

Barrows, who noted "most of the (earlier) issues remain unchanged," was directed three weeks ago by supervisors to draft the new recommendation.

As in his previous proposal, Barrows recommends that security checkpoints be eliminated at entrances to the Administration Building and the Hall of Justice.

He also recommends that the Administration Building return to its former operating schedule — early morning opening, with closing as late in the evening as public meetings are conducted. (Currently, the hours are from 7 a.m. to 10:30 p.m.) The building would remain open on weekends for library use under the new proposal.

The Hall of Justice, meanwhile, would retain its operating schedule of 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and closed weekends, except to county employees.

West Berliners Pour Through Wall For Joyous Easter Reunions

BERLIN (UPI)—Tens of thousands of happy West Berliners drove and walked through the Berlin wall today to spend their first Easter in from six to 20 years with friends and relatives in East Berlin and Communist East Germany.

For those traveling to Weimar, Rostock, Dresden, Magdeburg, Leipzig and other cities outside East Berlin it was the first Easter reunion in 20 years.

East and West Berliners cried with joy as they clasped relatives for the first time since 1966. Even hardened East German border guards were moved at the sight.

The East Germans attempted to use this sentiment and the pull of family ties in a propaganda campaign for ratification of the nonaggression pacts between West Germany and the Soviet Union and Poland.

They told West Berliners flooding through the wall that only ratification of the pacts by the West German parliament could keep the wall open.

Traffic through the nine crossing points in the Communist wall was lighter than on Good Friday, the start of the four-day holiday weekend.

There was no official count, but West Berlin police estimated about 400,000 West Berliners would enter the east over the weekend and perhaps as many as 700,000 during the special pass period that ends at midnight Tuesday.

The East Germans, in what was considered an attempt to influence the West German debate on ratification of the nonaggression pacts, opened the wall for West Berliners on Wednesday.

They said as a "good will gesture" they were letting West Berliners in even though the Big Four ambassadors agreement on Berlin still has not been signed.

The agreement gives West Berliners the right to visit the East a total of 30 days a year.

But both the East Germans and the Soviets say they will not put the agreement in force unless the nonaggression pacts are ratified by the West German parliament, where they face a stiff fight.

"Only ratification can make possible peaceful coexistence" reads the headline on a leaflet distributed at the border.

West Berliners on sightseeing tours were welcomed with the greeting "we hope the visits of West Berliners will not cease and the treaties with Warsaw and Moscow will be ratified."

The speaker of the West Berlin House of Representatives was told during a visit to East Berlin "the pacts must be ratified. Otherwise things will be bad for West Berliners."

FIRST LOOK MONDAY

By PAT ANGLE

A newly completed Marin City master plan calling for a preponderence of cluster housing, extensive open space and eventual phasing out of high rise units as public housing in the community will have its first public airing next week.

The proposal, by the planning consultant firms of Kennard and Silvers and Whisler-Patri, will be the subject of a public hearing before the Marin County Planning Commission at 8 p.m. Monday in the Manzanita Center in Marin City.

Focusing on development of Marin City as a socially, racially and economically integrated community rather than on simple physical development, the plan also seeks ways to insure that present residents be given the opportunity to remain.

The plan, drawn with the aid of $50,000 in federal funds, suggests that Marin City be linked with the Richardson Bay waterfront by expanding the redevelopment project to include bay frontage, expansion of the community services district to include that area and development of pedestrian walkways and a road to the bay.

Project manager Michael Kaplan said the plan envisions a 6,000 population for the area — large enough, he said, to support a major shopping center and additional services and recreational facilities.

"One of our aims is to create a community that is completely or relatively self-supporting, rather than totally dependent on the county for support," Kaplan said.

Based on the planners' economic analysis, Kaplan said, "The key to this social and economic change is to substantially increase middle income residents in the community." To this end, the consultants have recommended a high degree of residential development, between 1,200 and 1,500 new housing units.

The proposal, which includes planning for both the approximately 80-acre redevelopment property and the 170-acre ridgeland (owned by the California Development Co.), calls for higher densities than the original master plan, adopted in 1957.

Kaplan said his plan suggests an average of 15 residential

Bomb Explodes In Empty Hearse; Belfast Is Tense

BELFAST (UPI)—A 200-pound time bomb today demolished a hearse stolen with an empty coffin inside and parked in Church Lane in downtown Belfast, police reported.

They said three passersby were slightly injured in the blast, only a few hundred yards from the Abercorn restaurant where two persons were killed and 136 injured in a terrorist bombing last month.

The largest number of British troops yet in Northern Ireland went on the alert for more possible trouble during Roman Catholic parades and other scheduled demonstrations during the long Easter weekend.

A Catholic citizens' association deplored Northern Ireland's nearly three years of sectarian violence—and with it the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA), which claims responsibility for it. Nearly 300 persons have been killed.

"The ghettos are breathing today," said the Central Citizens' Defense Committee of the Falls Road, one of Belfast's Catholic centers and once an IRA stronghold. "Those who now seek to choke them again will be rejected forever."

The army said the estimated 15,100 British troops, including 600 reinforcements brought in Friday by air and sea, were on alert along with police for the weekend, 56th anniversary of the abortive 1916 uprising against British rule by Roman Catholics in Dublin.

Catholic spokesmen said 21 parades and wreath-layings were scheduled for Sunday and Monday. The marches defy a ban by Northern Ireland's Protestant-majority government, suspended Thursday when Britain assumed direct rule.

An army spokesman said the Catholic newspaper Irish News received an anonymous telephone call at 10:55 a.m. Saturday warning the "biggest bomb ever" was about to go off in a parked hearse.

Lindbergh Party Calls For Help

MANILA (UPI) — Charles A. Lindbergh and a party of anthropologists today sent an S.O.S. from the rain forests of the southern Philippines saying their food is nearly gone and they need help.

The U.S. Embassy asked American Air Force authorities at Clark Air Base north of here to fly in emergency supplies.

The anthropologists have been living in isolation with the 24 surviving short, dark-skinned Tasadays for about two weeks, gathering data.

Attack Plans

By U.P. International

Al Fatah, the largest Palestinian guerrilla group, said today it has decided to launch armed attacks against the Jordanian regime of King Hussein in an effort to overthrow the government.

"The organization has decided to launch commando operations against tha Jordanian regime," an Al Fatah newsletter said. "This is in line with our declared objective of toppling the monarchical regime in Jordan."

The Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) which includes representatives of all guerrilla groups, urged the Arab states to take steps to disqualify King Hussein from speaking for the Palestinians.

'71 Fire Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Fires in 1971 killed 12,000 Americans, crippled or injured more than 330,000 others and caused nearly $3 billion in property damage.

The figures were listed yesterday in a preliminary report to President Nixon made by the National Commission on Fire Prevention and Control.

The commission is conducting a two-year study of the nation's fire problems to be completed in July, 1973.

In the preliminary report, the panel said the rate of death by fire in the United States is twice that of Canada, four times that of Britain, and more than six times that of Japan.

It also said fire losses are of the same magnitude as crime losses, about $10 billion annually.

At Camp David

THURMONT, Md. (UPI) — President and Mrs. Nixon scheduled a birthday party tonight for their son-in-law, Navy Ens. David Eisenhower, at the presidential retreat which bears his name.

The President and first lady flew by helicopter yesterday to Camp David in the Maryland mountains. They were to be joined for the Easter weekend by Eisenhower and his wife, Julie, the Nixons' younger daughter.

The White House said Nixon planned to spend part of the weekend working on domestic matters.

17th Anniversary

NICOSIA (UPI) — Cyprus today celebrated the 17th anniversary of the start of armed insurrection against British rule with parades and an amnesty for those who still struggle for union of Cyprus with Greece (Enosis).

President Archbishop Makarios officiated at the Te Deum in the Church of Phaneromini, where in 1955 he gave an oath never to stop fighting until the island was united with its motherland, Greace.

Later, the bearded, black-robed president took the salute in a march past of the national guard-the island's armed forces-veterans organization and schoolchildren.

Top Honors

NEW YORK (UPI) — "The Last Picture Show" took top honors yesterday as the best English language film of 1971 in the All-American Press Associates' 14th Annual Movie Bests Awards.

George C. Scott was named the best actor for his role in "Hospital" and Jane Fonda was cited as the best actress for her performance in "Klute."

The awards will be presented at a reception Wednesday. The All-American Press Associates is an organization of 37 foreign and domestic publications.

Still Alive?

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — A member of the family of kidnaped Fiat executive Oberdan Sallustro indicated yesterday the terrorists may not have carried out their threat to kill him and ransom still is possible.

Also Sallustro, 28, one of Sallustro's sons, was asked if the leftwing Revolutionary Army of the People had been in contact with the family since the deadline for his "execution" passed at midnight Tuesday.

"I cannot deny that there may be contacts," Aldo said. "My father is a man of good will with many friends, and it would be impossible to say whether they have initiated contacts with the kidnapers." Sallustro was kidnaped last week.

Chaplain Freed

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Navy Chaplain Andrew Jensen was acquitted yesterday of charges he committed adultery with two Navy wives. He said he would celebrate his acquittal at a malt shop and would not take any action against the women who filed the charges.

"They've been hurt enough," Jensen said. "They got involved in something they really didn't want to be involved in."

"Nobody came out a winner," Jensen added above the bedlam created by his supporters shortly after a Navy captain pronounced the words "not guilty" to end Jensen's two-weeks long trial on charges of adultery.

Children Perish

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Five children, aged 2 through 6, died of smoke inhalation today when a fire raged through three frame houses in a predominantly black area on the edge of Tampa's Ybor City.

Authorities said all three houses, one of them unoccupied, were destroyed by the flames. Cause of the fire was undetermined, but there was speculation that it was ignited by a cigaret.

Borrowed Typewriter Enters The ITT Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Susan Lichtman, a former secretary for the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp., has added a new twist to the Senate inquiry into the Justice Department's antitrust setlement with ITT by saying the parts of a memo she remembers typing were done on a borrowed typewriter.

Mrs. Lichtman, now a University of Toronto student who worked for ITT as a temporary secretary for two months last year, said Friday she recalled typing part of the memo from lobbyist Dita Beard concerning an ITT $400,000 contribution to the Republican National Convention.

She specifically remembered typing Mrs. Beard's words: "John Mitchell (the former attorney general) has certainly kept it on the higher level only, we should be able to do the same,"—wondering at the time what Mrs. Beard meant by "higher level."

But Mrs. Lichtman said she had no idea how other passages got into the memo, particularly the ones that linked the convention pledge with government settlement of an antitrust dispute that sanctioned ITT's merger with the Hartford Fire Insurance Co.

She said she had not typed anything of the kind and did not know who did. Furthermore, Mrs. Lichtman said, she was using a typewriter borrowed from another part of the office June 25—the date of the disputed memorandum.

Her typewriter was put aside in a room next door and the new one was brought in so she could type invitations to the Vincent Lombardi Memorial Golf Tournament, she said.

Through a series of tests, the FBI has been able to trace the memorandum to an IBM model typewriter with "documentary style type," and it was even able to ascertain that the memo had the same left-hand indentations and typewriting ink as other documents that came out of the ITT Washington office between June 25 and June 30, 1971.

But because of the typewriter switch, it may be impossible to trace the memo—which Mrs. Beard has denounced as a "forgery"—to one individual.

During hr short period with ITT, Mrs. Lichtman said she was "shocked" by the favors members of Congress asked of the corporation. She said Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., once asked use of one of the company's jet planes and she advised his office that the company's fleet was in use.

A spokesman for Hartke said he could find no record of such a request.

Toll Is Waived

ELIZABETHTOWN, Ky. (UPI)—Traffic was so heavy at the intersection where the Blue Grass Parkway feeds into the Kentucky Turnpike Friday that attendants waived the 10-cent toll to unsnarl the jams.

McGovern Hits Nixon On 'Deals'

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Sen. George S. McGovern said today that President Nixon's "political money deals" demand a public disclosure and in the waning days of the Wisconsin primary challenged all candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination to debate before the voting begins Tuesday.

Radiating the confident mood of a winner, McGovern pointed out that only Sen. Henry M. Jackson, among the Democratic candidates, has refused to disclose the financial backers of his presidential campaign.

Then, in a statement, McGovern said that Nixon also has refused to make a public disclosure and charged that "his political money deals are the most suspicious of all."

He also accused Nixon, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace and Jackson of refusing to make public their personal finances and said that all the candidates on the Democratic ballot have spurned his overtures for a debate.

"I made a pledge for an open campaign and that pledge has been kept," McGovern said. "That is one practical way all candidates can act now to exhibit the same kind of faith and confidence in the people that we are asking of them in return."

The observance of Good Friday curtailed the campaigning for Wisconsin's 67 Democratic delegate votes and the psychological boost of winning the key midwest primary, the fourth of the year.

But all the candidates embarked on ambitious schedules today, concentrating mostly in heavily-populated areas, before once again slowing down for Easter Sunday.

Four of the candidates descended on a Friday night fish fry at Serb Hall in Milwaukee's Southwest Side, irritating waitresses who could not move through the crush and antagonizing some regular diners who had no taste for a politician for dessert.

Humphrey came into the spacious, overheated hall first, shaking hands along the way, and then sat down for a dinner of fish and white wine while television crews and reporters ringed his table.

Humphrey tried the bowling allyes with little luck, prompting the comment from one man on the next lane that "it's a good thing he doesn't have to bowl for that White House job."

McGovern and John V. Lindsay arrived at the same time and the New York mayor greeted the South Dakota senator with a request for an autograph and comment, "Gee, you look great, George."

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie arrived after the three others had departed and slowly worked his way through the crowd of diners, shaking hands, pausing to speak and signing autographs.

With three days left until the primary there were these developments:

—McGovern picked up the backing of Sen. William Proxmire, Wisconsin's best vote-getter and probably most popular politician in the state.

—Muskie proposed an $18 billion cut in the defense budget by returning to the pre-Vietnam war figures.

—Humphrey went after the labor vote, telling unionists that taxes are the major issue in Wisconsin and added "practically everyone is on the bandwagon now, but your friend, your senator led the way."

—Studiously avoiding a confrontation with other candidates and campaigning only after dark, Wallace held another in his series of southern-style rallies.

—Jackson revealed that he spent $400,000 in the Florida primary—where he finished third—and his presidential candidacy has cost around $800,000 so far.

Reagan Sets Press Conference

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —Gov. Ronald Reagan will return to California next week after an Easter week vacation in Arizona and address a luncheon Friday at the Lafayette International Ballroom in Long Beach.

In announcing the governor's schedule for next week, Reagan's office said he has scheduled a Capitol news conference Wednesday morning. On Monday, Reagan will make brief remarks to a State Chamber of Commerce conference on solid waste management.

Reagan and his wife, Nancy, spent their holiday vacation at the home of Mrs. Reagan's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Loyal Davis, in Phoenix.

Yorty To Visit His Home State

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Mayor Sam Yorty, who announced he would limit his active campaigning for the Democratic presidential nomination to California, heads for his home state of Nebraska Sunday where his name is on the May 9 primary ballot.

In a two-day round of appearances, Yorty's tour includes news conferences in Lincoln and Omaha and meetings with the editorial boards of three newspapers.

Yorty attended grade school and high school in Lincoln where he worked as a newsboy for the Lincoln Star.

The mayor's trip is sponsored by a large Nebraska retailer to promote a California Fair exhibition in his stores.

Yorty announced March 15 he would limit his campaigning to California because of a lack of time and money. But he said he would try to make a few appearances in other states where his name was on the ballot.

THE HOT DOG FAVORED BY PEKING DELEGATION

NEW YORK (UPI) — The chef who cooked for the Chinese United Nations delegation for five months says the Chinese prefered American food, including hot dogs for breakfast, during their stay at the Roosevelt Hotel.

"I had been trying to make Chinese delicacies for them," said Claude Sanz, executive chef at the Roosevelt Hotel, "but it was no use competing with them on their own ground. They said they wanted American food, and we were happy to give it to them."

Sanz said the Chinese once saw a street hot dog vendor and asked Sanz if they could try what the man was selling.

"We had to special order them and after that they ate almost nothing but hot dogs for three days," Sanz said. The chef said the Chinese especially like them for breakfast in place of sausage or bacon.

Sanz said he prepared the delegation's "last breakfast" on Tuesday, just before their move to permanent headquarters in the former Lincoln Square Motor Inn.

"I will miss them," Sanz said. "It was a tremendous challenge to have them here. In fact, I would call it the experience of a lifetime."

Line Being Held On Meat Prices

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

Some supermarkets have announced freezes or projected decreases on meat prices, but many others from coast to coast are holding the line on prices despite administration jawboning and reports that food costs in February reached a 14-year peak.

Most food chain executives interviewed by United Press International in a nationwide survey Friday indicated that any price decreases were caused by declines in wholesale costs of meat.

Treasury Secretary John B. Connally and Mrs. Virginia K. Knauer, President Nixon's consumer affairs adviser, met Wednesday with executives of 12 major supermarket chains—Acme Markets Inc., Allied Supermarkets Inc., First National Stores Inc., Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., Grand Union Co., Jewel Tea Companies Inc., Kroger Co., Lucky Stores, National Tea Co., Safeway Stores Inc., Stop and Shop Companies Inc. and Supermarkets General.

Grand Union announced an immediate freeze for 30 days. Safeway's middle Atlantic distribution area cut meat prices 7 per cent, but other distribution areas for Safeway said prices were in constant flux.

C.A. Bradburn, Safeway division manager in Seattle, said, "In the last three weeks there has been a slight decline in meat prices to the cattlemen and our store prices reflect that." But a Safeway executive, who asked not to be identified, said flatly in Dallas that "our prices aren't changing" despite the Connally meeting and "static" from customers.

In Boston, a First National Stores spokesman said the chain did not plan to freeze prices. "That depends on what the market does. If the wholesale prices drop, ours will too."

And in Columbus, Ohio, a Kroger spokesman said there would be no freeze, but that "we're looking at lower beef prices."

Bill Newby, public relations director for Jewel food stores, said in Chicago that meat prices began to fall toward week's end.

There was less hope from Arnold Necham, owner of a string of M & W Markets in Boise, Idaho, who saw nothing to justify "nonsense" of the talk about reducing meat prices.

Scott Detrick Sr., owner of a supermarket chain in Louisville, Ky., was wary that prices can not "come down too much because of the built-in cost factor to both the farmer and the processor." And spokesmen for Big Bear and Delchamps supermarkets in Montgomery, Ala., said there had been no downward movement, but some was expected soon.

Fred Cantrell, executive vice president of Alpha Beta Markets with 191 outlets in San Francisco and Southern California said prices have dropped and "will continue to be lowered as our costs are reduced."

AIRPORT OPENS NEW SHUTTLE PARKING LOT

Marinites using San Francisco International Airport can save money, composure and time at its new parking lot north of the terminals. Free shuttle buses make the four-minute trip to the terminals every five minutes between 5 a.m. and 1 a.m., and every 20 minutes in the early morning hours.

Motorists southbound on Highway 101 reach the lot by turning off at the "airport shops" exit. Fees are 25 cents an hour and $1.75 per 24-hour period, compared to 50 cents an hour and $2.75 per day in the covered parking lot in front of the terminals.

Meany Suggests New Profit Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Escalating his quarrel with the administration over its economic policies, AFL-CIO President George Meany has asked that employers be required to pass on to consumers "windfall profits" resulting from government cuts of negotiated wage increases.

Meany said in a formal request to the Price Commission Friday the trading of lower prices for wage increase cutbacks would be a "matter of simple justice." He again charged that President Nixon's Phase II economic program was a failure.

But two administration officials struck back at organized labor. Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, speaking in Atlanta, said powerful labor leaders had helped create inflation and described the walkout of four union presidents from the federal Pay Board last week as "a sorry sight."

At Tacoma, Wash., Pay Board Chairman George H. Boldt said charges the regulatory board was unfair to labor were "baloney."

Meany indicated he did not believe his proposal would get a sympathetic response from the Price Commission because the commission twice had "totally ignored" AFL-CIO recommendations on price controls.

"The failure of the Cost of Living Council, the Price Commission and the Internal Revenue Service to implement our recommendations of Nov. 9 and our executive council proposals of Feb. 18 are written in the failure of Phase II," Meany said.

He said among suggestions the administration had ignored were the closing of loopholes in price regulations, mandatory posting of base price lists, creation of adequate enforcement machinery, the elimination of secrecy on the processing of complaints, and development of a more realistic system of penalties.

Butz said in Atlanta labor should use its power to help control soaring food prices.

"The power of labor leaders had willingly helped create inflation," Butz said. "The same power should have the will to help correct inflation." He termed the controversy over who is responsible for high food prices a "witchhunt."

Boldt said in Tacoma he believed the work of the Pay Board had been "a success." He said labor had been in the minority in only 13 of 54 major board decisions and that this illustrated the board was not unfair to labor.

Trio Nabbed For Weapons, A Live Bomb

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)— Three young men were arrested Friday when they entered a garage near the University of California campus where police had found a variety of weapons and a live bomb.

City police and U.S. Treasury agents said they seized "rifles, shotguns, a machine gun, explosives of the nitrate family and an explosive device ready to go."

Police were called to the apartment house garage Thursday afternoon by a neighbor who smelled the odor of gas. Officers found several rifles and shotguns and a machine gun, and "an explosive device ready for use, its components and explosives containing nitrates." The munitions were removed and the garage placed under surveillance.

The three suspects were arrested after they entered the garage about 3 a.m. Friday. Officers said three loaded shotguns, apparently carried into the garage by the men, were found inside after the suspects obeyed police orders to emerge with their hands up.

Those arrested were Paul Rubenstein, 22, University City, Mo., William Harvey Barrows, 24, Berkeley, and Michael Alexander Bortin, 23, San Francisco.

How Many In Front Seat?

How many persons may be carried in the front seat of a vehicle?

Section 21700 states "no person shall drive a vehicle when it is so loaded or when there are in the front seat, such number of persons as to obstruct the view of the driver to the front or sides of the vehicle or as to interfere with the drivers control over the driving mechanism of the vehicle."

Four persons may be seated in front if there is sufficient room in the vehicle to prevent crowding of the driver and obstruction of his vision to the right.

If the driver has to slide to the left to make room for the passengers in the front seat, then there are too many persons there.

Younger Asks Tribunal To Review Death Penalty Ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The U.S. Supreme Court was asked Friday to review a California Supreme Court decision banning capital punishment in the nation's most populous state.

California Attorney General Evelle J. Younger asked for the review, describing the state court's Feb. 18 decision as "an unseemly rush to judgment."

The U.S. Supreme Court already has refused to stop the California ruling from going into effect. But it has been asked to rule on the constitutionality of the death penalty in four othar test cases and is expected to make a ruling before the end of the term in June.

Younger argued in his appeal that the U.S. Supreme Court "is not bound to accept the California Supreme Court's selfserving characterization of its opinion as being premised upon an independent state ground."

"The question squarely presented by this petition is whether the highest court of a state may defeat the jurisdiction of this court to review vital federal constitutional issues by purporting to decide the issue on the basis of an identical provision in the state constitution," Younger's brief said.

Tape Player Stolen

INJUNCTION ORDERED

New York State Employees Strike

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—The union representing two-thirds of New York state's employes, ignoring a law forbidding strikes by government workers, went on strike today, immediately triggering a manpower shortage in mental institutions.

Although the state obtained an injunction blocking the strike Friday afternoon, officials of the 120,000-member Civil Service Employes Association (CSEA) said they had not been served with the court order by this morning.

Spokesmen for Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, who was vacationing in the Virgin Islands when the strike began at 12:01 a.m., said the injunction had been amended to allow it to be dropped off at the home of the union's president, which they said had been done.

While immediately affecting mainly the state's mental institutions, the strike by mental health workers, clerks and blue-collar workers eventually could hit prisons and welfare, social services and vehicle licensing.

Although prison guards belong to a separate union which has agreed not to walk out for at least one week, CSEA members set up pickets at several jails including Attica, scene of last September's bloody rebellion. Most prison guards already had started their shifts when the strike began.

Reports soon after midnight indicated that some guards were honoring picket lines set up by CSEA workers who work in nonsecurity positions in the jails.

Most state offices were closed for the weekend, and only between 8,000 and 10,000 CSEA members were scheduled to work then.

If the strike—the first major one by state employes in New York's history—stretches into next week, however, there is the possibility that welfare checks and driver and vehicle licensing may be delayed and a host of other government functions could be severely curtailed.

Soon after the strike began, state officials said "nearly 100 per cent" of the workers were on the job. However, reports from throughout the state indicated that picket lines were being honored.

Police in several locations reported instances of rock throwing and bomb scares.

Emergency strike plans went into effect at mental hospitals, narcotics addiction control centers, youth facilities and health department institutions. Supervisors were called on to work 12-hour shifts.

At Willowbrook State School on Staten Island, personnel director Jarvis Tabor asked those parents who could do so to take their children home. If they could not, Tabor asked the parents to report to the hospital to help care for the children.

At the Pilgrim State Hospital in West Brentwood on Long Island, DR. Henry Brill, a director, said patients "were suffering as a result of the pandemonium." About 150 pickets were outside the hospital. Some stones were thrown there, police said.

Altogether, CSEA said picket lines had been set up at more than 40 institutions around the state, including mental hospitals, prisons and the state office building in Albany.

The strike violates the state's Taylor Law, which states that public employes can be fined two days pay for each day on strike and can be put on probation for one year without tenure. The Supreme Court recently upheld Mayor John V. Lindsay's invocation of that law to halt a police strike in New York.

The workers seek a better contract than the one offered b the state. That—at first accepted then rejected by the union—offered a 4 per cent pay raise with the increases not collectable at least until next year because of the state's fiscal problems.

Pollution Hearing Ends—The Obvious

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Two federal boards wound up a week of study Friday by announcing the obvious: the environment in California is deteriorating and something should be done about it.

Spokesmen for the President's Water Pollution Control Advisory Board and his Air Quality Advisory Board made the statements after hearings here and in Los Angeles this week.

They said they had nine conclusions and 13 recommendations to take to the President. The recommendations urged such things as stronger land-use controls, closer working relationships between environmental agencies, more research, and wider dissemination of scientific information.

A. James Barnes, special assistant to Environmental Protection Agency Administrator William Ruckelshaus, admitted that his and other federal agencies "did have differences" with the Senate over the weakened water pollution control bill passed by the House in Washington Wednesday.

Proposed Senate amendments would impose federal controls on timetables for industrial dumping of wastes in waterways, would give all citizens the right to enforce the law through lawsuits, and would require an end to all polluting discharges by 1985.

Barnes said that under present technology 1985 was too soon and complying with the deadline would mean disposal of wastes by burning or landdisposal. He said these methods would result in other kinds of pollution.

Hearing Postponed

Monday's resumption of a hearing into the firing of Fairfax Police Chief James R. Orr has been postponed a week to April 3 at 3 p.m., according to City Clerk Eileen L. Foster.

She said Frank L. Lawrence, a member of the city board of review hearing Orr's appeal, could not attend Monday, forcing the postponement.

15 Named To Novato Airport Study Group

Fifteen members have been appointed to Novato's airport study committee, an advisory group to the Novato City Council, according to City Mgr. Charles A. Brown.

The committee, formed to study joint civilian-military aviation use at Hamilton Air Force Base, was appointed this week.

Committee members and organizations they represent are:

John A. Trumbull, Novato Chamber of Commerce; Joseph A. Forest, Marin Conservation League; William A. Gnoss, Marin County Aviation Commission; Col. Vermont Garrison, Hamilton Air Force Base.

James Rusch, operator of Spectrum Air Inc.' Richard Duste, operator of Marin Aviation Inc.' William Hoey, Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau; B. Kenneth McKenzie, San Rafael Chamber of Commerce; Joyce Applen, North Marin Federation of Homeowners; R. K. Madgett, Novato Community Congress.

Susan Stompe, H. F. Bergis, Arthur T. Knutson, Gerald C. Cullen and Frank Needham, all members of Novato neighborhood committees working on revisions to the city's general plan.

School Panel To Be Considered

The Rohnert Park City Council will consider establishing a city-school coordinating committee at its meeting Monday at 7 p.m.

The Cotati School District board has called for the formation of the committee, which would include school board members, city councilmen and planning commissioners from both Rohnert Park and Cotati to coordinate residential growth in relation to school capacities.

The council also will hear a report on a recent classification and salary survey of city employees.

Auto Fatals Climb

MANILA (UPI) — Sixty-five persons were killed in a rash of road accidents in February, up 27 per cent over the death toll in January. The Philippine News Service accident scoreboard showed the road accident rate last month topped that of the preceding month by 73 per cent.

Forest To Leave Post For Private Law Job

Joseph A. Forest, senior deputy county counsel for seven years, has announced he will enter private practice next month with the Novato firm of Carrow, Jones and Applen.

The 39-year-old attorney said yesterday he will specialize in environmental and municipal law.

Forest, who resides at 50 Mistletoe Lane, Black Point, is a 1955 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy and of Stanford University Law School.

With the county counsel's office, he has been assigned primarily to legal matters for the public works and, planning departments and the county flood control district.

In 1970, he ran unsuccessfully against Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, on the Democratic ticket.

He is past president of the Marin County Legal Aid Society, past director of the Marin County Bar Association, past director of the Marin Council for Civic Affairs and is a member of the Marin Conservation League and the Sierra Club.

The word "carat" meant the weight of a carob tree seed, used long ago to weigh diamonds, says National Geographic.

Fatter Budget Is Sought By Rec Officials

The San Rafael Parks and Recreation Commission has recommended the city council give it a 1972-73 budget about $40,000 above this year's figure.

The commission Thursday approved an administration budget of $40,001, up $415; a parks budget of $195,389, up from $178,372; and a recreation budget of $183,974, up from $165,370, according to Andrew J. Snyder Jr., director of parks and recreation.

He said the increase in the recreation budget would be met by more program fees.

Most of the increase in the parks budget represents adding a groundskeeper for $7,900 a year and a $5,000 increase in utility cost estimates, he said.

Woodacre Woman Dies In Accident

A 25-year-old Woodacre woman died today when she was thrown from her car which ran off Sir Frances Drake Boulevard in Kentfield, according to California Highway Patrol.

Reports said Vivian Lois Liston of Fern Avenue, Woodacre, was westbound on the boulevard at about 2:30 a.m., east of Rosebank Avenue, when her car swerved on the roadway and ran into a field. She was thrown from the careening auto, striking her head on the ground, according to reports.

Miss Liston was taken to Marin General Hospital, where she was pronounced dead on arrival. The fatality was the ninth in Marin County this year, compared to five at this time last year.

Miss Lston worked as a waitress in the Refectory Steak House at the Bon Air Shopping Center in Greenbrae.

She is survived by her mother, Lois Carter, of Roseburg, Ore.

Funeral arrangements are pending at the Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo.

in the stolen vehicle, "was certainly not the biggest bomb ever," the spokesman said.

The Falls Road citizens' committee statement came as part of a declaration of solidarity with the opposition Social Democratic Labor party's call for an end to violence and abolition of internment of suspected IRA men without trial.

"Support for violence, even toleration of it, by the people has gone," the statement said. "It is possible for IRA army council leaders in the (Irish) Republic to have a very different attitude. They omit, however, from their deliberations the critical content of having lived through the last three years in the ghettos of the North."

In another development, about 132 men aboard the British prison ship H.M.S. Maidstone in Belfast Harbor refused food for the second day in protest against conditions on board and demanding release of all interned men.

Tam High Board Sets Closed Session

The Tamalpais High School District will meet in closed session Tuesday at 6 p.m. at the home of Supt. Wilber D. Hawkins, 21 Hillside Avenue, Kentfield, to discuss employee contract negotiations.

The regularly scheduled Monday meeting of the board will not be held.

New Marinite Is Testing Vote Plan

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A new Marin resident's attempt to register to vote in the June 6 primary is the basis of a suit filed yesterday asking the state Supreme Court to declare voter residency requirements illegal.

Jeffrey A. Young, who moved to San Rafael on March 10, and Ernestine E. Isaac, who plans to move to Pacific Grove in Monterey County during the last week of April, are plaintiffs in the suit, filed by Public Advocates of San Francisco.

The suit asks the court to declare illegal state requirements that a person must be a resident of the county where he votes at least 90 days before an election and of his voting precinct 54 days before an election.

Attorneys J. Anthony Kline and Robert L. Gnaizda asked the court to order Monterey and Marin Counties to allow the two persons to register in time for the June 6 statewide primaries.

Both petitioners said they tried to register but county officials refused them.

California's League of Women Voters, the Mexican-American Political Association and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People joined in the action.

It was based on a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision outlawing Tennessee residency requirements because the United States is now a "mobile society."

Free Parking To Be Studied

The Petaluma City Council will consider a resolution providing free parking in the A Street parking lot at its meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Downtown businessmen asked the council last week to remove all parking meters and provide more off-street parking. The council said it would consider the request and might begin by removing meters in one lot.

The council also will open bids on sale of the old Standard Oil building and land on Lakeville Street and hear a proposed ordinance regulating garage sales.

Freeway Plan Drawing Fire

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—About 30,000 residents of South-Central Los Angeles could be dislocated if a proposal for a new freeway and industrial park in the area is adopted, the Urban Coalition Black Caucus warned Friday.

A spokesman for the group said the city Planning Department's proposal shows a "complete disregard, neglect, and insensitivity of the city for the black, low and moderate income people who live in the area."

Arnold Johnson, a Black Caucus official, said the plan is for three new freeways and an industrial park in the Watts area.

quarter—that retreating government troops were "scattered all over. They're badly mauled."

U.S. and South Vietnamese helicopters and warplanes were called in, but in many cases were unable to distinguish fleeing government soldiers from advancing Communists, the officers told Kellerman.

At least one U.S. adviser was killed as American helicopters attempted to evacuate one of the battered bases, the officers said.

The officers said there was no way to tell how many casualties were suffered by either side during the fighting and air attacks.

The morning Communist offensive quickly overran the showpiece government DMZ bases of Alpha 1, Alpha 2, Charlie 1 and Charlie 2.

By nightfall, the North Vietnamese were in control of the area, but hundreds of South Vietnamese troops were trying to make their way through to Dong Ha and the relative protection of the Cua Viet River.

The North Vietnamese set up antiaircraft guns in Cam Lo village, a district capital eight miles south of the buffer strip. U.S. helicopters were barred from returning the fire because of the likelihood that many civilians remained in the village.

American C130 Hercules cargo planes were pressed into service to fly shuttles from the DMZ area to Da Nang to rush hundreds of wounded South Vietnamese to hospitals. Fierce fighting was reported all across Vietnam, with numerous rocket and mortar attacks.

Kellerman said U.S. Army medics and nurses were riding the flights, treating the wounded soldiers and civilians, and helping load them into ambulances.

SECURITY

checkpoints, Barrows estimated that eight sheriff's deputy positions could be eliminated — through attrition — for a savings next fiscal year of $100,000.

"All other internal and external patrols would be continued at their present level," Barrows said.

While acknowledging that some employees prefer the security, which was imposed in October 1970 after a bomb exploded in the Hall of Justice, Barrows said he prefers to see it relaxed.

"It is my own feeling that government of Marin County would function a little bit better if the checkpoints were eliminated," he wrote. "It is also my feeling that the civic center would be a little bit better place to work . . ."

Barrows's recommendation gained support from County Planning Director Werner von Gundell, who said he finds the high level of security "unnecessary and overdone."

He said during a visit Thursday by 30 German architects and planners that he "greeted them outside the building and tried to prepare them mentally for the security check which they had to pass."

"In spite of my introduction . . . it was a somewhat embarrassing procedure. Some of them 'beeped' and were subject to the customary body search. It all seemed so unnecessary and overdone," he said.

The new recommendation was criticized, however, by the county's superior court judges.

In a letter to the board, Superior Court Judge F. Warren McGuire said the Judges oppose any relaxation at present. McGuire said security measures must be maintained to insure the safety of jurors and witnesses called to the Hall of Justice.

He added that the overwhelming majority of employees support the tight security restrictions now imposed.

Hearing Postponed For One Week

Monday's resumption of a hearing into the firing of Fairfax Police Chief James R. Orr has been postponed a week to April 10 at 3 p.m., according to City Clerk Eileen L. Foster.

She said Frank L. Lawrence, a member of the city board of review hearing Orr's appeal, could not attend Monday, forcing the postponement.

units per acre, as compared to two to three units per acre in the old proposal.

While the old plan called for a preponderance of single-family lots throught the community, Kaplan's proposal calls chiefly for multi-family dwellings and single-family attached townhouses, with a minimum number of detached single-family homes on terrain not conducive to cluster development.

The 1957 proposal recommended that approximately 25 per cent of the existing 216 undeveloped residential-use land be left in open space. This plan suggests that slightly more than one-third of the ridgeland and 75 per cent of the lower development acreage be developed.

"That is our preferred recommendation," according to Kaplan, "but in order to give flexibility in development, our plan calls for a maximum development of 135 acres." (Development of Marin City will be under the auspices of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency when and if the new master plan is adopted.)

The Tamalpais High School District owns approximately 30 acres of land in the redevelopment area and the Sausalito School District also owns acreage. Both had once planned to build schools there, although this new looks unlikely, Kaplan said.

While the old master plan showed those properties reserved for schools, the project manager has recommended that the land could, as an alternative, be declared residential if the districts sell it back to the community or seek to develop it on their own for other than educational purposes.

In the way of commercial development, which many residents believe is one of the community's most pressing needs, the plan calls for a neighborhood shopping center with supermarket, a discount department store, a motel and an auto repair training center in conjunction with the Marin City Boys Club.

Child day care centers also are proposed, along with formation of a community corporation that could participate in development of Marin City.

"If possible, the planners would like to see the 300 units of public housing phased out and their residents located in small groups of low and moderate income housing through the community. Isolating low income people geographically is a very poor idea, both from social and planning standpoints," Kaplan said. "Low and moderate cost housing, and particularly leased housing, should be developed throughout Marin City through various state and federal programs geared to provide it."

The master planners also have recommended that present high rises e converted into "market rate" apartments for middle income families.

In the meantime, the plan suggests that public housing tenants be provided job training, homemaking, financing and consumer education to "integrate them" into the middle economic stream.

The master plan also recommends:

1. Development of an intracommunity minibus transportation system and expansion of intercounty transit available to residents.

2. An extensive network of bike and pedestrian paths.

3. Additional community centers throughout Marin City.

4. Expansion of the Marin City Community Services District to include control of police and fire services, establishment of a volunteer firemen's program and a police-community relations program.

5. Secondary access roads into Marin City from Sausalito and Tamalpais Valley.

6. An outpatient medical and dental clinic for the community, possibly developed as part of the commercial center.

Girl Treated

Laura Collens, 16, of 51 La Cuesta Drive, Greenbrae, was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for head and lip cuts suffered in an auto accident at 5 p.m. in San Rafael. Police had no details of the crash.

'Monster' Turns Out To Be Joke

INVERNESS, Scotland (UPI) —The latest "monster" hauled from the chilly waters of Loch Ness was officially dismissed today as "just an April Fool's joke."

"It's a hoax," said police superintendent Inas McKay, whose area includes the famed home of Nessie, the legendary Loch Ness monster.

"It's just an April Fool's joke." He said the latest "monster" was brought here from England.

It worked for a while. Police officially barred the transfer from Scotland of the carcass of an animal found Friday on the shores of the Scottish lake.

A marine biologist from Edinburgh Zoo was called in to examine the seal-like creature, which weighed a ton and a half and was 15-1-2 feet long. The biologist still was going to take a look later today just to make sure.

British newspapers had a field day with what one of them called the "Son of Nessie." But people here, who have lived through countless Loch Ness hoaxes, were not really taken in.

Previous monster hoaxes have included "the monster's foot" which proved to be an elephant's, a "monster bone" discovered to have been a whale bone and an entire "model monster" built by students.

But at first many persons, including some zoo officials, thought the monster was legitimate and even had the police take action to keep it from being removed.

"A hoax?" asked Terry O'Brien, 45-year-old zoo animal psychologist and educational officer. "If the zoo had anything to do with this, they certainly didn't tell me and I am being made as big a fool as anyone. We are taking the creature back for a post mortem."

The carcass bore some similarities to a seal, "the fins and tale flukes, but there it ends," O'Brien said. "It's as far apart from a seal as a monkey or an ape to a human being."

Then Dunfermline police stopped the transfer to England.

"Whoever is responsbile, you've got to hand it to them for the best Nessie hoax of all time," said Patrick Murray, 65, who said he fished Loch Ness for 35 years. "It's a real seal of some kind, but what a whopper!"

A number of seagoing fishing boats entered Loch Ness in recent days and John MacKay, another Loch resident, said a fishing crew may have dumped the carcass as a joke.

"If it wasn't the zoo people who dumped it in the Loch, then there's a fishing crew having a good belly laugh tonight," MacKay said.

I-J Errs In Marin City Vote

In a story Thursday on the Marin City Council election scheduled for Tuesday, the Independent-Journal incorrectly reported that all Marin City residents 18 and older could vote, whether or not they are registered voters.

In order to cast ballots in the election, persons must be registered voters, according to council chairman Samuel L. Banks Jr.

OBITUARIES

Steven J. Hebel, 24, Succumbs

Mass will be held Monday for Steven J. Hebel, 1964 student body president of Marin Catholic High School, who died in late March in Colorado of cancer.

Hebel, 24, had been ill for nearly 18 months and died in Colorado Springs, Colo. where he had gone to live. He had lived in Marin County until nine months ago and first came here in 1951 from his native Chicago.

He attended St. Vincent's School for Boys, Marin Catholic High School and San Francisco State College, where he received a bachelor's degree in psychology. He worked for a time at the Youth Guidance Center in San Francisco as a counselor.

Hebel is survived by his parents, Raymond and Kathryn Hebel of 104 Golden Hinde Boulevard, San Rafael; four brothers, Mark of San Rafael, Michael and Joseph Hebel of San Francisco, David Hebel of King City, Monterey County; a sister, Susan Hebel of San Rafael, and a grandfather, Joseph Jasczak of San Rafael.

Mass of the Resurrection will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Monday in St. Isabella's Church, Terra Linda, with burial in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Memorial contributions are preferred to St. Vincent's School for Boys, San Rafael.

FRANK BROWN

Memorial service for Frank Brown of San Anselmo, real estate man and former clothing manufacturer's representative, will be held at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday at St. John's Episcopal Church, Ross.

Brown, 63, died Wednesday in a San Francisco hospital after a short illness.

Born in Decatur, Ill., Brown was a 45-year resident of Marin, living in Kentfield before moving to 105 Calumet Avenue, San Anselmo.

He was a decorated Navy veteran of World War II, serving in both the Atlantic and Pacific theaters. He achieved the rank of lieutenant commander.

Brown was a manufacturer's representative for many years before entering the real estate business with the Hunter Investment Co. of San Anselmo. He was a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley, earning a bachelor's degree in economics.

Survivors are his wife, Bernice; a daughter, Bernice Marie Honeychurch of San Francisco, and two grandchildren.

Memorial gifts are preferred by the family to St. John's Episcopal Church or the Marin County Heart Association.

EDWIN BAUMANN

Funeral for Edwin Baumann, 86, of Novato, a retired farmer and landscaper, was held today in Novato.

Baumann died Thursday at a Novato convalescent hospital after a long illness. He was born in Niles Center, Ill., and worked most of his life as a farmer and as a landscaper for the town of Skokie, Ill.

Baumann, of 102 Palm Drive, had lived in Novato for five years.

He is survived by his wife, Marie; three daughters, Erma Johnston and Gloria Weber of Novato and June Cunningham of Los Angeles; four sons, Orville Baumann of Skokie, Ill., Edwin Baumann Jr. of Morton Grove, Ill., George Baumann of Glenview, Ill. and Willard Baumann of Minnetomka Ill.; a brother, Arthur Baumann of Bloomington, Ill.; a sister, Lydia Sherwood of Grants Pass, Ore.; 18 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

Burial will be at Lutheran Cemetery, Skokie.

DORIS LANN

Requiem Mass for Doris M. Lann, 64, of San Francisco, sister of Claire V. Molenkamp of San Anselmo, will be offered at 9 a.m. Monday at St. Boniface Church, San Francisco.

Miss Lann died Wednesday at a San Francisco hospital after a long illness. She was a native of San Francisco and had worked as a clerk for the state Public Utilities Commission.

Miss Lann was a member of the State Employees Association.

Recitation of the Rosary will be tomorrow at 8 p.m. at Comisky-Roche Funeral Home, San Francisco. Burial will be at Holy Cross Cemetery. Contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

20/20 Vision: Ability To See Certain Letters From 20 Feet

What is 20/20 vision? It is the ability to distinguish a letter of a certain size 20 feet away. If at 20 feet the person can barely read a letter twice normal size, his vision is 20/40. This actually means that at 20 feet, he can see a letter that a person with normal vision can see at 40 feet. The size of the letter a person with normal vision sees clearly at 20 feet is based on the complex studies of Hooke, an astronomer who lived three centuries ago. The standard Snellen chart utilizes various letters (FLOTDEXC) approximately 3/8 of an inch high and wide and 1/16th-inch thick. It is used to determine vision for distance.

A 20-FOOT-LONG room is not necessary, because mirrors may be used to halve the required distance. Charts also may be proportionately reduced for use in smaller areas. Illiterates and preschool children are tested by charts made up of numbers, pictures, variations of the letter "E," or Landolt's broken rings. In the "E" test, for example, the child points in the direction of the "E" with the finger of a hand-held wooden "E." In the broken-ring test, the child points to the break in the ring.

Near-vision charts are designed to be read at 14 to 16 inches. These utilize the smallest type that can be read at the distance at which the card is held. There are many different test cards containing printed paragraphs, words, music, pictures, and numbers.

HIGHLY sophisticated equipment is available for determining refractive errors of the eye so that proper glasses can be prescribed. One is a projector with slides (with Snellen test letters, numbers, "E," dots, etc.) Various lenses are inserted into trial frames to determine the best lenses for comfortable working and reading. The phoropter is a more complicated device, but is preferred because it offers the ophthalmologist speed of exchange of lenses and a completely enclosed lens housing. An entire set is mounted on a circular wheel so that each lens can be brought before the opening by the turn of a dial.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

NAILBITING AND PINWORMS

Mrs. D. writes: Since my child became infested with pinworms, she has become a nailbiter. Do you think that two are related?

REPLY

No. Years ago, nailbiting and other bad habits in children were blamed on pinworms. Pinworm infestation may make the child nervous and restless, which possibly could lead to biting the nails.

SPLAY FOOTED

S. T. writes: Should anything be done about a Charlie Chaplin walk in a 1-year-old baby?

REPLY

Most children of this age are just learning to walk and the majority keep the feet apart to maintain balance. Walking with the toes out is a variation, but if it continues, a small wedge on the bottom of each shoe will encourage turning in of the feet.

HOUR-GLASS STOMACH

L. writes: What is a cascading stomach?

REPLY

This term is used when the stomach has an hour-glass appearance.

NEGLECTED VARICOSITIES

R. O. Writes: What is the danger of letting varicose veins go on and on? Ice bags relieve pain and swelling for awhile.

REPLY

The consequences are painful ulcers and unsightly discoloration. In addition, the enlarged veins may become infected and set the stage for a dangerous blood clot. These complications are not common, but are worth avoiding. Furthermore, varicose veins are disturbing the local circulation and detract from the appearance of the leg.

BLOOD SUGAR LEVEL

F. L. writes: How high can the blood sugar level go without proving fatal?

REPLY

It is not the height of the sugar in the blood, but the severity of the associated acidosis that counts most.

Japanese Survey On Human Rights

TOKYO (UPI)—Nearly four out of every 10 Japanese believe children who fail to provide for their parents in old age are guilty of violating human rights, according to an official survey among 2,496 persons over 20 years old.

A majority of those surveyed also said violations of human rights include police search of individuals, dismissal of union strikers, air pollution and circulating irresponsible rumors.

Trial Set In Burglary Case

A jury trial has been set for the week of May 15 in Marin Superior Court for Michael Earl Frank, 20, of Forest Knolls, who is charged with burglarizing the San Geronimo Golf Club March 9.

He was arrested by sheriff's deputies who said they found him inside the club when they answered a burglar alarm.

Frank was armed with a kitchen knife and a cleaver when arrested, according to deputies.

Nazi 'Final Solution' And That Of Rome

SO LONG AS some of those who escaped Hitler's "final solution of the Jewish question" remain among us, we will continue to hear new stories of how it was in those terrible times.

Doctor R was a public health physician in Munich when the Nazis rose to power. Nazi leaders arranged for a portrait to be painted of Doctor R because he embodied all of the physical characteristics which Hitler attributed to his imagined Nordic super-race.

Doctor R's portrait showed him to be tall, handsome, full-bearded, powerful looking. When his approval was sought for the use of the portrait for "educational" purposes, Doctor R readily granted approval, on one condition: under the picture it must say plainly that Doctor R was a Jew.

This cost Doctor R his job and his property. It could have cost him and his family their lives, had they not fled their native land.

That was long ago. Doctor R is dead. But his daughter lives among us here in the Bay Area today.

HERR S WAS a successful banker in Munich when Hitler rose to power. For generations, Herr S's ancestors had been bankers in Munich.

In business and in his personal life, Herr S was regarded by many as an oppressive tyrant. He was harsh and unfeeling in his dealings with employees and family.

Herr S was especially unreasonable when it came to matters affecting his personal comfort. He was the terror of waiters, innkeepers, laundresses, housekeepers, tailors and nearly everyone else with whom he came in contact. None could perform to his satisfaction.

It is likely that the Nazis took special delight in consigning him to the rigors of a concentration camp.

Camp guards must have taken special delight in the prospect of seeing him complain when they shut off the hot water in the midst of winter.

Herr S surprised all. He was first into the icy shower without a shudder. He emerged as if it had been an enjoyable, warming experience, staring stiffly at his tormentors. Herr S became the unflinching example for all his fellow Jews in the concentration camp.

Fortunately for Herr S, he was sent to concentration camp long before the "final solution" was instituted and it was still possible for some to gain release. He fled to Britain and lived the rest of his days alone, working as a humble cloth cutter. Today he is remembered by those who knew him not as a hateful tyrant, but as the brave, unflinching leader who stood up to the concentration camp guards. He is remembered especially by a niece who lives today not far from San Rafael.

THOSE OF US who saw the rise and fall of Hitler's Nazi reich from afar believed what he wanted the world to believe: that his nation and its people were solidly behind him to a man.

If you read Albert Speer's "Inside the Third Reich," you know that such was not the case. If you read "The Order of the Death's Head," you know that even the dread SS was torn by a thousand schisms.

The stories of those who escaped the "final solution" confirm many of Hitler's supporters had private reservations.

When Doctor R had to leave Munich, he went to a lawyer known for Nazi sympathies for legal advice in connection with property disposition.

After the war, when Doctor R's family returned to Munich, they discovered that the papers prepared by the Nazi lawyer contained provisions which insured the rights of the R family to their property when Jewish oppression was ended.

Who helped hide Herr S's second wife, a Jewess, from the Nazis? None other than Herr S's divorced first wife, a good German gentile.

NEITHER DOCTOR R nor Herr S was a wholly committed, orthodox Jew. Herr S's family, in fact, were Christian protestants.

Today's survivors of those families will tell you that Hitler's persecution of Jews had the ultimate effect of strengthening Jewry and the Jewish faith.

To those of us with even a casual acquaintance with the Old Testament, this should come as no surprise. The Israelites, God's chosen people, went through one calamitous situation after another for thousands of years and always survived — with strengthened faith in God.

Christianity has had comparable experience. At its inception, it was banned and outlawed. Its followers were put to death. It survived and became stronger.

The great reformer Martin Luther once observed that a strong Christian church could endure only about two centuries before falling into impotency and error. Only after a period of travail and oppression would it emerge strong again, he observed.

Yesterday, Good Friday, we commemorated the Romans' "final solution to the Christian question." They crucified Christ, at the instigation of the Jewish establishment of that day.

Tomorrow we commemorate the resurrection of Our Savior who triumphed over that "final solution" 2,000 years ago.

Christians who perceive all this will feel greater kinship with Jews who escaped Hitler's "final solution."

Christians and Jews worship the same God. Obviously He has seen to it that His people survive no matter what worldly adversity and persecution they face.

Adversity turns out to be a tempering process; those who survive are stronger.

Christian churches in America today face mounting problems. These problems probably will get much worse before they get better; but in the end we can be sure that Christianity will emerge stronger than ever.

That is one message contained in Christ's triumph over crucifixion which we can ponder on this Easter eve.

Ex-Warden Duffy Responds To Questions

In your letter to the editor section of your March 28 issue, J. J. Kentzel of San Rafael asks me some questions.

Q — When did Mr. Duffy decide he was opposed to the death penalty?

A — I have ALWAYS been against the death penalty. I have never changed.

Q — Did Mr. Duffy decide that executions were "very gruesome" before he was appointed warden, after he was appointed warden, or after he was appointed to the Adult Authority?

A — From my childhood I learned from my father and other officers that hangings were very gruesome. When I went to work at San Quentin Prison in 1929 and was required to accompany the then warden during hangings I personally learned that hangings were gruesome in all respects. When I was appointed warden I learned that the lethal gas chamber was equally as gruesome and brutal.

Q — Why did I accept any of these appointments?

A — I liked every phase of my jobs, including the warden, except the executions. Just about every job in the world has a bit of something about it that the holder does not like. They do not quit, they try to change that part to the better. That is what I have been doing all these years. I do not believe Mr. Kentzel quit whatever job or jobs he held because he did not like a certain part of them. I hope he stuck with them and made the necessary changes.

I base my belief on the abolition of the death penalty on several areas. The most important one is that "it is wrong to kill." I have never upheld killings or any other crime. I believe in punishment but not corporal punishment or executions. Two wrongs do not make a right. When the state or federal government carries out an execution they have, in my way of looking at it, premeditated another murder. Our prisons are well equipped to take care of those committed to their care. Many must die in prison, some can be released.

You've Gotta Be A Loser To Win In The Primaries

WASHINGTON — One of the hardest things the American people have to do for the next four months is interpret the results of the Democratic presidential primaries. The only thing that you can be usre of is that they don't appear to be what you think they are.

This seems to be what is going on every time you turn on the TV set:

"SEN. EDMUND MUSKIE won the Lethargy State primary today by 35.8 per cent. This was considered by most political observers here as a defeat for the Muskie forces because they had predicted that their man would win by at least 41.5 per cent.

"Runner-up in Lethargy State was Sen. Hubert Humphrey with 18.4 per cent of the vote. Humphrey announced he had actually won the race because the polls had given him only 15 per cent. 'If it hadn't been for what happened in Chicago in 1968,' Humphrey said, 'I would have got 65 per cent of the vote.' He added, 'I am very satisfied with the showing and the fact that so many people are still behind me.'

"Sen. George McGovern got 9 per cent of the vote, which he said was a moral victory for him, the sixth moral victory he has won since the New Hampshire primary. He told reporters that Muskie and Humphrey had failed to sustain any drive in Lethargy State, and he suggested they both drop out of the race.

"Mayor John Lindsay also received 9 per cent of the vote, which he said was enough to make him stay in. 'We figured we would be lucky to get 5 per cent,' Lindsay told his supporters at a victory party in the Hotel Boredom. 'Nine per cent is a triumph beyond our wildest dreams. I accept this as proof that the people want true political reform.'

"GOV. GEORGE WALLACE of Alabama got 8 per cent of the votes, which he said makes him the only victor in the state. 'Mah 8 per cent in a state which wouldn't put me on the ballot in 1968 can only be seen as a victory for mah stands on busing, bureaucracy and slavery. People say that ah am running in the Democratic primaries only so ah can run for President in a third party. Wal, ah want to tell those people something. When you get 8 per cent of the vote in Lethargy State, there is no reason to start a third party because ah'm the only winner the Democrats have.'

"Sen. Henry Jackson got 5 per cent of the vote, which he said was much better than he had expected, considering the fact that no one in Lethargy State knows who he is. 'I'm sure if they knew me,' Senator Jackson said, 'the results would have been different. But despite my showing here, I still will not reveal the names of the people who have donated to my campaign. The issue of this election is trust, and the people who gave me money trust me.'

"Former Sen. Eugene McCarthy came in with less than 1 per cent of the vote. When asked by our reporter how he explained this, he said in surprise, 'I didn't even know I was running in the primary.'

"Asked if he would still remain in the campaign, McCarthy replied, 'Ok course. I didn't get into politics to read poetry.'

"SO THERE YOU have it, ladies and gentlemen, the results of the Lethargy State primary. As we see it here in central control, this has been a major defeat for Humphrey since he came in second, George McGovern and John Lindsay by not improving their percentages are still holding their own, Gov. George Wallace refuses to start a third party yet, Scoop Jackson by getting 5 per cent of the vote is beginning to make people sit up and take notice, and Gene McCarthy with less than 1 per cent of the vote seems to have come out of this primary a sure winner."

Hussein's Peace Plan Draws Public Denunciation, Private Study

We have watched with fascination the way Arabs and Israelis have balanced their denunciations of King Hussein's proposal for a new start toward peace in the Middle East. The Israelis have apparently been most careful to sound just a little more disapproving than do the Egyptians, and this is precisely why we think that some good may come of all this.

Needless to say, a kind word for King Hussein from Israel could all too easily have ended both the new peace move from Jordan and even the king himself. The hardest part of King Hussein's task is to persuade fellow Arabs to recognize and accept the possibility that they themselves will be better off from a settlement with Israel than from going on with the pretense that someday they are going to conquer it. They aren't.

THIS IS THE KEY point in a change in Arab attitude which could make a big difference. King Hussein himself understands this, as well he might. During his last round of fighting with the Palestinian guerrillas he was the beneficiary of the military power of Israel and its ally, the United States.

There was for the king a grim moment when Syrian tanks crossed the frontier into Jordan to help the guerrillas. At that moment the Israelis moved their own armor up to the frontier and the United States Sixth Fleet steamed toward the eastern Mediterranean to give air cover.

A lot has been said about changes in the balance of power in the Middle East, but the combination of Israeli tanks and planes from the big carriers of the U.S. Sixth Fleet was a lot more power than anything else in that part of the world. The Syrian tanks went back into Syria. Things have been just a little different in the Middle East ever since.

That story is why King Hussein is completely correct when he says now that the present situation in the Mwddle East rules out the use of force against Israel. The power simply isn't there which could overcome the combination which drove the Syrian tanks back into Syria last year.

Hence King Hussein proposes a settlement which would formalize what is actually happening right now. Informally, trade and people are now moving freely among the three political elements of what was once Palestine — Israel, the West Bank, and Jordan. There is de facto "common market." The problem is how to make it legal and formal.

THAT IS REALLY what he was proposing, with trimmings.

But if Israel had promptly bestowed a blessing, the plan would have been smothered. It had to be denounced from Israel, which Prime Minister Golda Meir did, with impressive enthusiasm.

Which clears the way for quiet, private, and serious negotiations about the precise terms of an arrangement under which Israel would obtain a safe, open, and friendly frontier along the valley of the Jordan. The value to Israel of such a safe frontier with Jordan would be enormous. So Israel is likely to give the matter more friendly consideration in private than would be prudent to show in public.

President Plays Two Tunes In Welfare Reform Proposals

By RICHARD L. STROUT
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Nixon has sometimes pushed his sweeping welfare-reform program as a humanitarian measure to benefit the poor (and thus appeal to liberals) and sometimes as a tough measure to scour the rolls of cheaters, save cost, and make recipients take jobs (which appeals to conservatives).

The President now returns to welfare matters with one of the strongest messages to Congress of his career, declaring that "the American welfare system is a national disgrace" and terming his own proposal "the most important single piece of social legislation to come before Congress in several decades."

This recalls Mr. Nixon's original all-out presentation to Congress in August, 1969, when Daniel Patrick Moynihan was at the White House.

In effect, Mr. Nixon now challenges the Democratic Congress, seven months before the election, to pass the program or take the onus for failure.

ONE RESULT of what critics called the hot and cold approach is that the President's plan is attacked by militants of both factions.

Elements of the right call it socialistic and communistic: militants of the left, last week end, staged a protest in which 20,000 to 30,000 participated. Many children carried banners saying "Nixon doesn't care," and leaders denounced the proposed minimum income of $2,400 for a family of four and the requirement that mothers with children over 6 years old either work or register for work.

Mr. Nixon seems to approach welfare reform both from the right and left with an appeal for compassion, but also with a hard-boiled determination to hold down the costs and cut back chiselers.

Whether he can get a coalition in Congress that unites elements from both sides in a majority remains to be seen.

MR. NIXON STRESSES the extraordinary growth in welfare rolls: "Welfare costs have skyrocketed from $6.2 billion in 1969 to an estimated $9.4 billion in 1971 — a 51 per cent increase in just two years."

The case load, he says, has risen from 9.6 million in 1969 to 13.5 million today, with the prospect of 17.3 million by 1974.

He would, in effect, federalize the welfare system, and "place a floor beneath the income of all American families not able to adequately support themselves."

An official chartbook on poverty for the year 1970 just issued by the Office of Economic Opportunity says that over one person in eight now is poor (13 per cent), amounting to 26 million; of whom 10 million are children. Whereas the number of poor "fell steadily throughout the sixties," it rose by 1.2 million between 1969 and 1970.

Welfare rolls rose simultaneously. The hope that welfare costs can be lowered by forcing chiselers to go to work seems to be reduced by analysis:

Of the poor, about 34.4 per cent are children under 14, the OEO reports; 18.2 are elderly (65 and over); 4.7 are ill and disabled; 6.6 are in school, and there are only 12.3 per cent between 14 and 64 who don't work. Of these, 11 per cent are females, presumably many of them looking after children.

This leaves 1.4 per cent available males who don't work.

The definition of "poor" by the government are those under a poverty line of $3,970 for a non-farm family of four, headed by a male.

Mr. Nixon's basic floor to put under all families would be $2,400 for a family of four with no other income. This is about $1,600 below the poverty line. A family, however, would be allowed to earn $720 and still receive the $2,400 benefit without reductions.

A TRAGIC FEATURE of the welfare "mess" is that two-thrids of the poor do not get welfare. A family may earn so little as to be in poverty but ineligible for welfare. For the first time the Moynihan-Nixon program would include the working poor.

On Dec. 28, 1971, Mr. Nixon signed one welfare reform measure stressing the compulsory work feature of his program. It requires all able-bodied adult welfare recipients to take jobs or sign up for job training. This takes effect July 1.

The bill is hailed by conservatives and severely criticized by welfare officials.

So far Mr. Nixon and Congress have fought what amounts to a scoreless tie on the bigger issue of comprehensive social welfare reform.

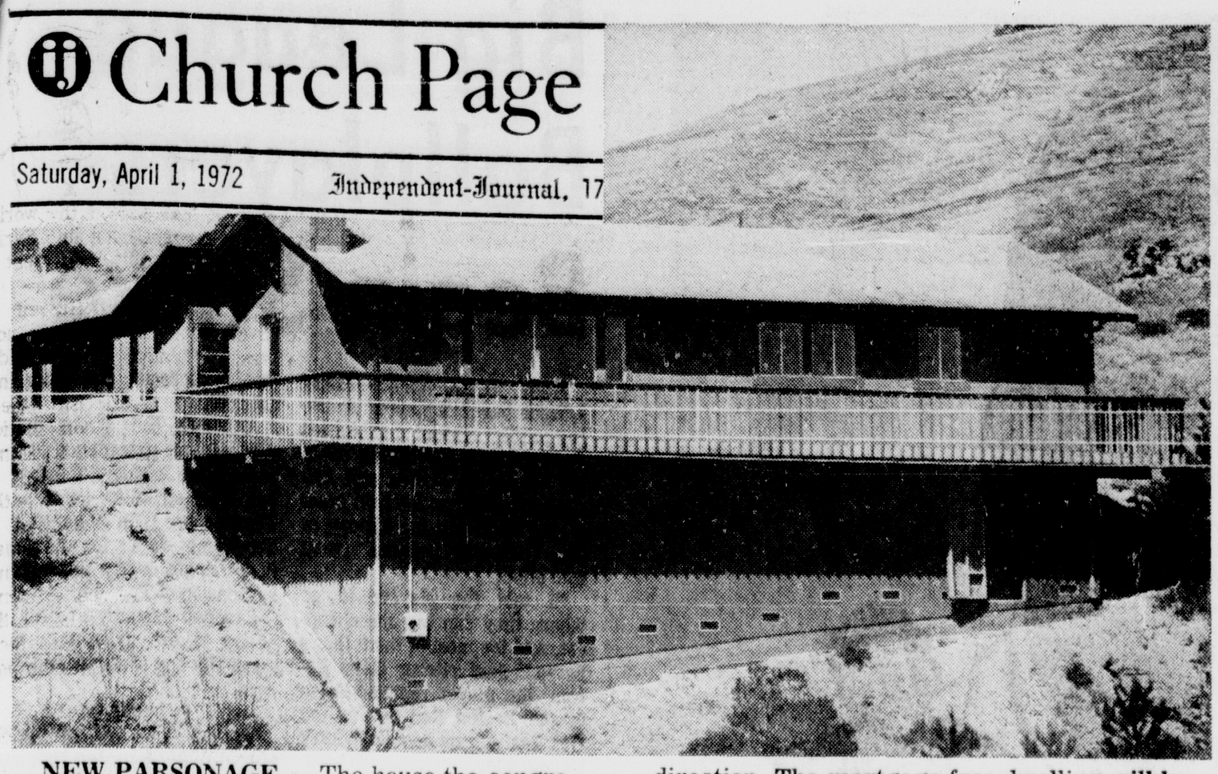
COUNTRY PARSON

"It's hard to keep a secret unless there are some folks you can share it with."

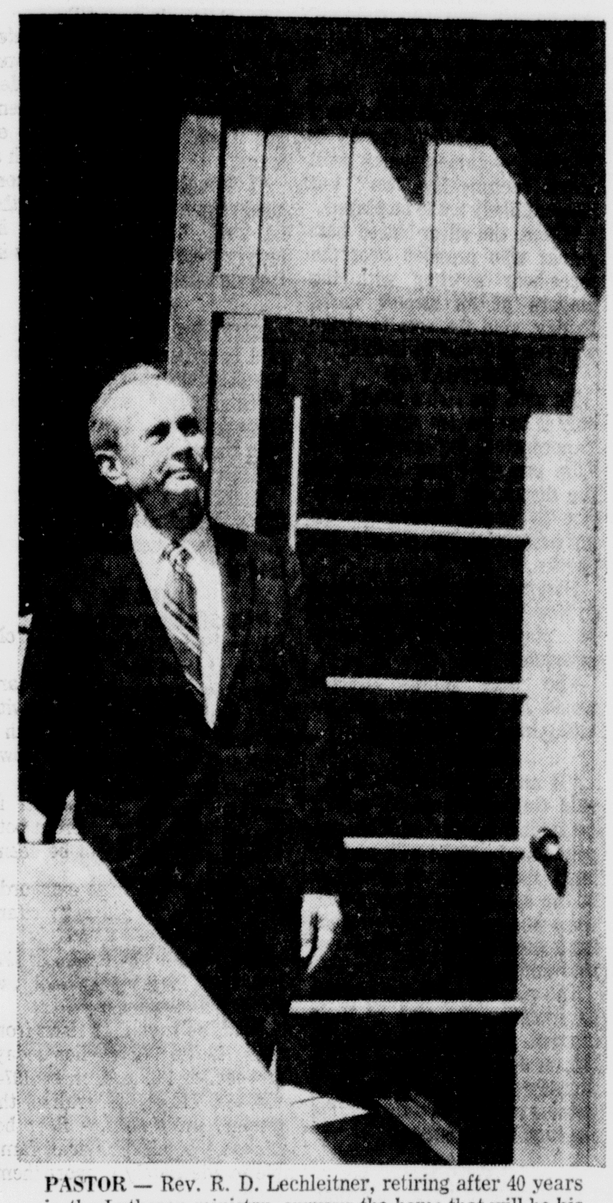
WORTH SAYING AGAIN

If once the people become inattentive to the public affairs, you and I and Congress and assemblies, judges and governors, shall all become wolves. — Thomas Jefferson.

Unless man has the wit and the grit to build his civilization on something better than material power, it is surely idle to talk plans for a stable peace. — F. B. Sayre.



NEW PARSONAGE — The house the congregation built for its pastor stands balconied on a Tiburon Peninsula hillside, a view in every direction. The mortgage-free dwelling will be dedicated tomorrow.



PASTOR — Rev. R. D. Lechleitner, retiring after 40 years in the Lutheran ministry, surveys the home that will be his successor's in a few short months.

New Parsonage Awaits Minister

When a new pastor arrives at the Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church in Tiburon sometime in the next few months, he'll be able to move into a new parsonage — one that's debt free.

The new building, which cost more than $30,000 to build, will be dedicated tomorrow following the 10 a.m. service by present pastor R. D. Lechleitner.

He's retiring, he said, and as soon as a new pastor is selected he can move into the three-bedroom, two-bath home. Lechleitner, pastor at the church for 18 months, has been a minister for 40 years.

He said construction of the new parsonage, at 9 Shepherd Way, began about three months ago. The church already owned the land, he said, but he estimated it would cost $15,000 to $20,000 if it had to be bought today.

Money for the building program was raised by the congregation partly through donations, he said, and partly through sale of other land owned by the church. The church still owns enough property to treble the size of its present 10-year-old church if it is necessary, he said.

The house, according to Lechleitner, "is so positioned as to take advantage of an unexcelled view on one side of San Francisco Bay and on the other side of Richardson Bay and from a third side a complete panoramic view of Mount Tamalpais."

It is finished in redwood to adapt to the scenic beauty of the site.

It has a room used as an office, a large living room and dining room combination and a large family room, one end of which can be made into a library.

Lechleitner, now 67, before coming to the Tiburon church, spent 23 years as director of the America Missions of the American Lutheran Church both before and after it combined with other Lutheran denominations.

He served for 12 years as minister of the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd in Los Angeles, then moved up to the missionary director's position and went to Columbus, Ohio. The last 11 years as missionary director were spent in Minneapolis, he said.

20th Anniversary

THE EASTER SEASON

A Very Significant Time

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

To a generation that has rediscovered Jesus, Easter has a special significance.

As an event unique in history, the resurrection is God's warranty to mankind that Jesus was on the level: He was what he claimed to be —not some kind of a nut.

Those are really the only alternatives, in my view. Or as the late C. S. Lewis said, it is "patronizing nonsense" to speak of Jesus as a great human teacher.

Consider some of the things he did and said. He claimed power over nature —power to heal sickness, calm storms, turn water into wine. He blithely told people, "Your sins are forgiven," outraging pious Jews who considered this a blasphemous usurpation of a right belonging solely to God. He spoke of God as his Father, and used an Aramaic term, "Abba," which has the same familiar, intimate, tender overtones as our English term, "Pop."

He said: "I am the way; I am the truth; and I am the life; no one comes to the Father except by me."

Shortly before his arrest and crucifixion, one of his disciples, beginning to feel nervous and doubtful, pleaded for a vision of God to bolster his sagging faith.

"Have I been all this time with you, and you still do not know me?" Jesus replied. "Anyone who has seen me has seen the Father. Believe me when I say that I am in the Father and the Father in me; or else accept the evidence of the deeds themselves."

A man who says things like that cannot be categorized as a great human teacher. Either he was paranoid —clean out of his head —or he was, in fact, the Most Special Messenger ever sent from God to man.

Since we're sometimes arrogant enough to think skepticism is an invention of our generation, and that men of all previous cultures are hopelessly naive and gullible, it is important to note that Jesus' disciples were by no means sure, when they saw him nailed to the cross, which alternative to believe. In fact, they must have leaned toward the cynical one, for they fled into hiding to save their own lives.

Yet, three days after they saw him dead, they saw him alive —not a ghost, but a living person with a recognizable body, capable of doing such very mundane things as eating a piece of broiled fish, one whose wounds could be touched and examined.

If it really happened —and the eyewitnesses cheerfully endured martyrdom rather than deny the reality of the event they witnessed —its significance is clear. It was not just a stunt proving that God can resuscitate a corpse: no First Century Jew doubted that possibility.

The significance lay —and lies —in the fact that God saw fit to do so —IN THIS ONE INSTANCE.

It is not the believability of the Resurrection, but its hard-to-believe uniqueness that ought to be stressed at Easter. For it was in the Resurrection, as the Apostle Paul said in his letter to the Romans, that Jesus was "declared Son of God by a mighty act."

Are you a Unitarian without knowing it?
1. Do you believe the Bible to be an inspiring human document, rather than the literal "word of God"?
2. Do you believe that man is not condemned by the doctrine of "original sin," but is inherently capable of improvement?
3. Do you believe the development of character to be more important than the accepting of religious creeds?
4. Do you believe the purpose of religion is to help us live this life nobly and constructively, rather than to emphasize the preparation for an after-existence?
The Unitarian answers are affirmative. Join with other religious liberals who insist upon individual freedom of belief and the use of reason in religion.

You and church.
Every time you see someone as perfect as God made him, every time you dissolve a friend's fear with love, you are a living example of church.
Church means reaching out with compassion to all mankind. It is working to see God's goodness realized in everyone's life—proving His power to heal any problem. It is something you can practice every day.
We invite you to learn more about what church is, and to hear a simple Christian service. Won't you come?

Ali Jabs Decision Foster

TOKYO, Japan (UPI)—Scoring repeatedly with left jabs, Muhammad Ali Friday waltzed to a unanimous 15-round decision over outclassed Mac Foster in a non-title heavyweight bout.

There were no knockdowns in the first bout between ranking heavyweights ever staged in Asia.

Ali, who entered the ring carrying a placard reading "Five R" failed to deliver on his pre-fight prediction of a fifth round knockout, though he tried his best in the fifth with looping lefts and right uppercuts.

Referee John Crowder, a U.S. Air Force sergeant stationed in Japan, scored it 73-65, while Japanese judges Hiroyuki Tezaki and Takeo Ugo had it 74-65 and 75-67, all for Ali.

The UPI card had it 74-64, also for Ali.

Ali, 30, entered the ring at 226 pounds, the heaviest weight for any fight in his career. Foster, the world Boxing Association's No. 9 heavyweight, weighed in at 211 3-4 pounds.

The fight drew a crowd of 15,000 at Tokyo's Budokan Auditorium, built for martial arts events in the 1964 Olympics.

Far too fast for the game but plodding Foster, Ali took charge in the first round, scoring repeatedly with fast left jabs to the face.

The second round was even, with Foster scoring with body punches. Ali kept up the steady drumfire of left jabs and right uppercuts to the head to take the third, fourth, fifth and sixth rounds.

Foster had his best round in the seventh when he drove Ali to the ropes and pounded him repeatedly with short, piston-like body punches. They were even in the eighth when Foster cornered the former champ again and delivered a jolting series of body blows.

The body punishment failed to take the steam out of Ali, who was still dancing briskly in the later stages of the fight.

Shooting hard lefts to the jaw, Ali took the ninth and Foster startd bleeding from a cut on his forehead.

The 10th round was even, and

Big League Ballplayers Begin Strike

NEW YORK (UPI) —Major League baseball players, spurning to play scheduled exhibition games, began leaving the training camps in Florida and Arizone Saturday as the first mass player strike in the history of the "national pastime" went into effect.

"I told the players to go where they can live the cheapest, and for most of them that's home," said pitcher Gary Peters, the player representative of the Boston Red Sox at the Red Sox' spring base in Winter Haven, Fla.

A 4:30 p.m. EST meeting was scheduled in New York between Marvin Miller, executive director of the Baseball Players Association, and John Gaherin, chief negotiators for the major league baseball owners.

However, that was three hours after the scheduled start of many exhibition games in Florida —games which still were technically "on" but seemed likely not to be played.

Miller, the silver-haired bargainer who presided over the three-hour meeting with the players at an airport motel Friday, said the vote to strike was 47-0 with one abstention.

ARBITRATION

He said the strike would end only if the owners agreed to an "appropriate settlement," or if "the owners agree to submit the dispute to binding arbitration by any prominent person not associated with either of the parties."

Barring a morning settlement in New York, players vowed not to play today's exhibition schedule.

The first games affected would be six contests set for 1:30 p.m. EST in Florida.

SUSPENSION

"If an actual strike occurs," said Gahrein, "then all games beginning Sunday will be suspended. The clubs will, as they have throughout, be available to the association's representatives and will bargain in good faith with respect to the issues that are involved."

The players want the owners to increase the size of their current pension plan by $850,000, which the players say is already available because of a surplus amount already put into the fund by the owners.

INCREASE

Club owners have said they would increase the plan by $400,000.

Although the strike action was without precedence in major league history, there was one brief strike by the Detroit Tigers more than 50 years ago. The Tigers struck for one game in a dispute over a three-game suspension of Ty Cobb.

Baseball executives' first reaction to the strike vote was generally one of anger and concern.

ONE TEAM

"If one team out of the 24 fails to play Saturday then the owners will shut down baseball on Sunday," said Houston Astro General Manager H. B. "Spec" Richardson.

Stu Holcomb, general manager of the Chicago White Sox, said his team's minor league farm system could not function more than 10 days without revenue from the major league team.

"I thought we had a pretty good rapport with our players," he said. "But they have a lawyer representing them and they do what he wants."

ALLYN

White Sox owner John Allyn said he expected a long strike, but would not elaborate.

"Obviously," said Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, "the losers are the sports fans of America."

Miller said that during Friday's meeting "all developments were discussed at great lengths."

ALL 24

"All 24 clubs were represented, and I believe every person spoke at least once and most of them two or three times.

"I would just like to point out to you that this is the first strike in history. There have been strikes by other organized groups down through the years."

Miller said, however, the player's association has no strike fund.

MINOR EFFECT

The players' vote had a minor effect on a night exhibition game in Houston Friday.

Minnesota players were already in the dugout in preparation for the game with Houston when word of the strike vote reached them. They immediately left the dugout and held a team meeting in the locker room.

Minnesota Surges By Seals, 2-1

OAKLAND (UPI) — Danny Grant and J.P. Parise scored third period goals for Minnesota Friday night to break up a scoreless game and give the North Stars a 2-1 victory over the California Golden Seals in a National Hockey League game.

Reggie Leach of the Seals spoiled Minnesota goalie Gump Worsley's bid for a shutout when he backhanded a fivefooter through the goaltender's pads with 1:20 remaining to play while California had a man advantage.

Through the first two periods, Worsley and Gary Kurt, the Seals' goalie, were superb, turning back frequent attacks. Then at 14:32, Grant got his 18th of the season following a goal-mouth pass from Dennis Hextall for the North Stars' first goal and at 16:40 Parise scored his 19th when he tipped in Bill Goldsworthy's shot from in front of Kurt.

Leach's 13th of the year came with North Star Charlie Burns in the penalty box and Worsley was down on his knees when the puck bounced off him and trickled over the line at 18:40.

Minnesota won the season series 4-1-1 and the secondplace West Division North Stars concluded their regular season play in Vancouver on Sunday. The Seals, eliminated from a playoff berth, play Saturday night in Los Angeles to wrap up their season.

IN OAKLAND

Warriors, Bucks Tonight

OAKLAND (UPI) —To hear Larry Costello tell it, his Milwaukee Bucks will have no trouble in winning their best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series against Golden State, but Warrior guard Jeff Mullins has other ideas.

"We're not discouraged," said Mullins of their 118-103 loss to the Bucks in Milwaukee in the second game of their Western Conference matchup. "We only wanted one win in Milwaukee, and we got it." That came last Tuesday when the Warriors posted a 117-106 victory behind the sensational second-half performance of Jim Barnett.

"If we can't beat them in Oakland, we can't beat them," Mullins said. "No one expects to win three of four on the other guy's court."

Costello, the Bucks' coach, does not seem concerned that his club will have to play the next three games in Warrior territory, beginning tonight, 8 o'clock at the Oakland Colliseum. Each club has won one game.

"There's no doubt in my mind we can beat the Warriors," he said, "if we play our game.

"The Warriors are tough," he added, "but I'm not sure we couldn't beat them even if they won the first three games. We have a lot of pride and ability and we should win."

Warrior coach Al Attles, not so talkative but still confident, is concentrating on ways to stop two key Milwaukee players — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Curtis Perry.

Warriors' center Nate Thurmond was successful in containing the towering Jabbar on Thursday, holding him to only 12 of 27 shots.

But the surprising Perry scored 22 points against the Warriors in the Thursday victory.

Perry was the key for them," Attles said. "He's the guy we have to contend with."

Attles told his Warriors to "cool it" but Jim Barnett, star of his team's first playoff victory over Milwaukee, is miffed at Bucks coach Larry Costello.

Barnett, who scored 30 points in last Tuesday night's victory over the Bucks in Milwaukee and then slipped to only 10 in a runaway loss Thursday, was miffed at Costello for disparaging remarks directed at him.

After his Bucks routed the Warriors 118-93 Thursday night, Costello said of Barnett "He's not a 30-point player—not even against older men."

"Did that jerk say that?" Barnett asked.

"I didn't ask for all that publicity for having some success the other night," said the usually mild mannered Warriors guard. "I did what's supposed to be my job. I didn't want a big splash because I know you may feel like a jackass the next time out.

"But if Costello had that to say about me, he'd better realize that my second game performance wasn't my kind of game either. I'd like to think I can play somewhere in between.

Giants Reveal Rotation

YUMA, Ariz. (UPI)—Unless a baseball strike puts things in a different light, the San Francisco Giants are anxious to get on with regular season play and their final three exhibition games will just be for the record.

Barring a strike, the Giants were to play the San Diego Padres here today and Sunday and then next week the same two teams in a four-game series in the opening of the regular National League season.

More than likely, Don Carrithers, Juan Marichal and Sam McDowell will see service this weekend in final tuneups for the regular season with John Cumberland set to pitch against Santa Clara University in the final exhibition game next Monday.

The four are the pitchers manager Charlie Fox will go with as his starters, at least for the first month of the season. With numerous breaks, Fox may need only three pitchers, and they would be Marichal, McDowell and Cumberland.

These are the dog days of the spring when the players, anxious for the regular season to start,

Fox, as all managers, is aware of the situation but he wants to keep everyone sharp for the start of the long campaign, so all the regulars will be in the starting lineup this weekend, with the reserves taking over as soon as possible.

4 Marin Swimmers Stand Out

Four young Marin Aquatic Club swimmers placed in six events last weekend in the Alameda Relays in Alameda.

Lisa Pasquinelli, Kate Stewart, Allison Hyde and Jeanine DeMont earned two firsts, two seconds, one third and one fourth place in racking up 52 team points.

The firsts for the girls came in the 100-yard breaststroke and 100 backstroke relays for the 8 and under age group.

Coach's Mark

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Florida University basketball coach Tommy Bartlett entered the 1971-72 season with an overall won-lost record of 75-55 for a .577 average.

Hendrick Homers Twice In A's Win

MESA, Ariz. (UPI)—George Hendrick is endearing himself to Oakland A's manager Dick Williams every time he gets a chance to play.

The young outfielder got another opportunity in an exhibition game against the San Diego Padres Friday and all he did was drive in three runs with two homers as the A's won, 8-0.

Jim Hunter, the likely opening day pitcher for Oakland next week, went the first seven innings and gave up seven hits, one walk and struck out two.

Mike Epstein and Bert Campaneris chipped in with homers as young Bill Greif went all the way for the Padres.

Hendrick's first homer was a solo smash in the first inning. It gave Hunter all the help he was to need to nail down the victory. Epstein's homer was a two-run blast and he hit it in the fourth. Hendrick followed with his second homer in the seventh and Campaneris closed things out with a three-run jolt in the eighth.

If the question of the major league players' strike is settled, the A's will host the Milwaukee Brewers today and then play the same team Sunday in nearby Tempe.

New Mexico Wins

FRESNO, Calif. (UPI)—New Mexico won both its games Friday in the Fresno State College baseball tournament, defeating Gonzaga 10-8 and taking the Bulldogs 9-2 in the second game.

Boat Safety Free Course Set Monday

United States Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 14 will present a free Safe Boating course starting Monday, 7:30 p.m., in San Rafael High School's Room LA 101.

The 12-lesson course running two hours on Monday nights will cover: Safeway To Boating Enjoyment; Sailor's Language; Boat Handling; Legal Requirements; Rules of the Road; Aids To Navigation; Charts and Compass; Marine Engines; Knot Tieing; Sailboats; Weather; and Radio Telephone Usej

The program will be augmented by slides and movies.

Marin 'Cats Lose

Mitty High School of San Jose jumped out to an early 7-1 lead and held off a late Marin Catholic rally for an 8-6 victory yesterday in the second round of the Soquel Boosters baseball tournament in Santa Cruz. Don Bianchini was the losing pitcher.

Fry The Winner

Ron Fry of San Francisco was the winner of last weekend's Professional Central California Bowlers association tournament at Nave Lanes in Novato. A story Thursday said the winner was Gary Campbell of San Jose. Campbell was second.

OAKLAND FAVORED; GIANTS UNDERDOGS

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)— The Oakland A's are favored; the San Francisco Giants are not.

If there is a baseball season in 1972, the Pittsburgh Pirates, Los Angeles Dodgers, Baltimore Orioles and Oakland Athletics are favored to win their respective division titles.

The defending world champion Pirates are listed as 5-2 choices to repeat in the National League East, according to Harrah's Lake Tahoe Race Book, with the Dodgers listed at 3-1 to win in the West.

Baltimore, a seven-game loser to Pittsburgh in the 1971 World Series, is an overwhelming 3-5 favorite to repeat as champion in the American League East while the A's, despite the absence of ace pitcher Vida Blue, are considered 2-1 choices in the West.

However, the future of the 1972 season was left somewhat in doubt Friday night when the players voted to strike.

Here are the complete odds for the coming season as listed by Harrah's:

American League East: Baltimore 3-5, Detroit 6-1, Boston and New York 15-1, Cleveland 80-1, Milwaukee 100-1.

American League West: Oakland 2-1, Minnesota 6-1, Kansas City 10-1, California 12-1, Chicago 20-1, Texas 100-1.

National League East: Pittsburgh 5-2, Chicago 7-1, New York and St. Louis 8-1, Montreal 50-1, Philadelphia 100-1.

American League West: Los Angeles 3-1, Cincinnati 7-2, San Francisco 5-1, Atlanta and Houston 12-1, San Diego 100-1.

Mike McCormick's Farewell To Game

YUMA — Mike McCormick no longer is with the San Francisco Giants. The 33-year-old southpaw won't be with any other major league club, either. From now on McCormick's career will be as an account executive with a stock broker's firm.

It was precisely 9:15 a.m. Wednesday in the clubhouse of the Giants at Phoenix Municipal Stadium that McCormick's 16-year major league career ended.

Charlie Fox called McCormick into his office at that time. They remained closeted for seven minutes. When McCor-mick came out he first went to Leo Hughes, trainer of the team, to get some pills for a nasty cold that made him slightly hoarse.

THEN, McCORMICK went to his locker and began cleaning it out. It was obvious that the manager of the Giants had told McCormick that he was unsuccessful in his comeback attempt since receiving his unconditional release last year, first by the New York Yankees and then the Kansas City Royals.

"It's disappointing, very disappointing," said McCormick to a baseball writer who had been watching the clubhouse scene. "Maybe I let the pressure get to me too much. But it's just one of the facts of life and I can live with it.

"NO, I WON'T make any try with any other club. I couldn't have asked for a fairer shake than Igot from the Giants. They all were great — and I mean from the president, Horace Stoneham, down to the bat boy.

"I knew Mr. Stoneham and Charlie Fox, too, were pulling for me to make it. It didn't work out but I'll always be grateful for the opportunity they gave me. And I'll always remember Mr. Stoneham's encouraging comment at Casa Grande on the first day of spring training that I might be the surprise of the spring.

"I STARTED my baseball career with the Giants and it ended with them. They are a first class outfit — first class all the way."

McCormick is a first class fellow himself and the manner in which he spoke proved it once again. At least, there was some compensating reward for McCormick in his comeback try. He found out that his back no longer will plague him as it once did.

"I never felt better," he said. "This spring was the first time in years that I was free of pain when pitching."

McCORMICK decided to make his comeback bid following an operation last summer to correct a slipped disc.

It was ironical. For the first time in as long as he could remember, McCormick was free of pain on a major league mound but, at 33 and after a year's inactivity against competitive bats, the ball no longer would go where the southpaw tried to pinpoint it.

ONE CHAMPION PINS ANOTHER

Two-time world champion Hideaki Yanagida of Japan pinned Guatemalan Olympian Arturo Fuentes in the first round last night during the United States Wrestling Federation National Tourney at Stillwater, Okla. Both wrestlers weighed in at 125 pounds.

Baltimore, Atlanta Win

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

"There's No Place Like Home" was sung by a chorus of dribbled basketballs Friday night in Baltimore and Atlanta.

The Bullets and the New York Knicks confronted each other in another playoff struggle and what happened was like what happens every time these two teams meet. They come together like cats on a hot tin roof.

The scratching and clawing went into overtime, the hissing was for Earl Mlonroe and Archie Clark emerged as the top cat with 38 points in a 108-105 Bullets victory.

The win extended the Bullets' home court hex over the Knicks to six straight playoff victories.

The Hawks checked Boston's fast break and beat the Celtics, 113-104, for the first time this season. Boston had won five straight meetings between the two clubs, four in the regular season and the first playoff game on Wednesday.

Clark had a tremendous night, hitting on 15-of-32 from the floor and eight straight at the foul line, including a clutch pair with 39 seconds remaining in the extra session to give Baltimore the lead for good at 106-105. Jack Marin added the final points of the game on another pair of three throws with three seconds left.

Clark's tenacity and the booing of the standing-room only crowd of 12,289 upset the poise of former Bullet Monroe, who was hit with three quick charging fouls and scored only five points in 15 minutes of action.

Walt Frazier scored 31 points and Dave DeBusschere added 24 for the Knicks, who will try to even the Eastern Conference series at 1-1 Sunday in New York.

Lou Hudson scored 41 points to pace the Hawks, while John Havlicek of Boston led all scorers with 43 points. The third game of the series shifts to Boston on Sunday.

Indiana, Virginia Triumph

By U.P.INTERNATIONAL

The Indian Pacers and Virginia Squires have jumped off to early advantages in the American Basketball Association playoffs.

Roger Brown and Bob Netolicky teamed for 52 points to lead Indiana to a 102-96 victory over the Denver Rockets Friday night while rookie Julius Erving scored six of his 32 points in overtime to lift Virginia to a 114-107 triumph over the Floridians.

Both games were on the opening night of the ABA quarterfinal playoffs, which resume today with a full slate of four games. In addition to the Floridians meeting Virginia at Hampton and Indiana hosting Denver in the second games of those respective series, the defending champion Utah Stars will begin their quarter-finals at home to Dallas and New York will be at Kentucky.

Brown led all scorers at Indianapolis with 28 points and Netolicky added 24 as the Pacers overcame a nine-point deficit just after halftime. Denver still managed to hold a 90-89 edge with just five minutes left to play, but Pacer Captain Freddie Lewis and Mel Daniels keyed the winning Indiana spurt.

Ralph Simpson led Denver with 26 points and rookie center Dave Robisch had 25.

Erving put the Squires ahead for good after 14 seconds of the overtime after Willie Long of the Floridians had forced the extra session by converting a jumper with 45 seconds left in regulation to tie the score at 99-all.

Long and Warren Jabali led the Floridians in scoring with 22 points each.

Twitty Wins College Golf; Leach In 4th-Place Tie

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

SANTA CRUZ — Howard Twitty shot a two-under-par 68 yesterday for a record-breaking 54-hole total of 205 yesterday, giving him the individual championship and leading Arizona State University to the team title in the 26th annual Western Intercollegiate golf championships.

Brigham Young University golfer Ray Leach, a Novato native, shot a 74 for an even-par total of 216 and finished tied for fourth with Tom Keelin of Stanford. Roger Maltbie of San Jose State was second at 209 and Mitch Voges of U.S. International third at 214.

Twitty's 205 erased the record of 214 set last year by Rick Sims of Long Beach State. Arizona State's team total of 867 was also a record.

NHL ROUNDUP

Toronto Sets Playoff Bid

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The fourth and final playoff berths in both divisions of the National Hockey League could be decided tonight as the regular campaign enters its final weekend.

The Toronto Maple Leafs, holding down fourth place in the East by two points over Detroit, can assure themselves of a place in the Stanley Cup playoffs by either beating or tying the New York Rangers. However, if the Leafs lose on their home ice, they could wind up out of the picture if they also lose at Boston while Detroit wins at Chicago on Sunday.

Even though both teams then would wind up with 78 points, the Red Wings would earn fourth place on the basis of most victories.

In the West, the Philadelphia Flyers lead fifth-place Pittsburgh by two points and can clinch fourth by beating the Penguins at home tonight. On Sunday, Pittsburgh is at home to St. Louis while Philadelphia travels to Buffalo.

Two meaningless games, as far as the final standings are concerned, were played Friday night. In these, the Minnesota North Stars edged the California Golden Seals, 2-1, and Ralph Backstrom's goal with 55 seconds left in the game gave the Los Angeles Kings a 4-4 standoff with the Vancouver Canucks.

Allen Arrives In Chicago Camp

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Now that the spring training season apparently has been halted, Dick Allen has come out of hiding.

Allen, who has been incommunicado with the Chicago White Sox' management since March 14, showed up mysteriously at the team's Sarasota, Fla., spring training camp Friday night just one hour after the player representatives in Dallas had unanimously agreed to strike today against baseball's owners.

Allen arrived from Philadelphia with his agent, Alfred Morris, and talked contract with White Sox' General Manager Stu Holcomb for about an hour. The two men did not reach an agreement but were to meet again today.

Allen, who reportedly spurned a $120,000 contract earlier this spring, has not worked out once with the White Sox but may not find himself too far behind the others should the strike go on for any length of time.

"You can throw spring training out the window if the strike lasts five or six days," says White Sox' Manager Chuck Tanner.

The strike takes form today with players expected not to show up for games at 12 exhibition sites. The remainder of the exhibition schedule will be suspended by the owners if the players strike today.

In what may have been the last exhibition games of the season Friday, Texas edged Montreal, 3-2; Cincinnati whipped Kansas City, 10-1; Oakland blanked San Diego, 8-0; the Cubs beat Cleveland, 7-3; Detroit downed Boston, 6-2; and Houston nipped Minnesota, 3-2. The White Sox' game with Pittsburgh and Baltimore's contest with the Yankees were rained out.

Tony Perez hit two homers and Denis Menke one in the Reds' victory.

Doug Rader's ninth-inning single scored Rick Renick and gave the Astros a victory over Minnesota and rookie catcher Terry Humphrey dropped outfielder Boots Day's throw at the plate in the ninth inning to allow the winning run to score as the Rangers nipped the Expos.

The Pittsburgh Pirates placed veteran second baseman Bill Mazeroski on the 21-day disabled list with a back injury and the White Sox put outfielder Jim Lyttle on the 21-day disabled list with a recurring knee injury.

Golfer Rodriguez Not Fazed By Rain

GREENSBORO, N.C. (UPI)— Not even a soaking rain, which washed out the second round of the Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament, could dampen the spirits of Chi Chi Rodriguez.

"It doesn't bother us," said the talkative Puerto Rican Friday. "We just expect rain here and bring along our rain gear."

The second round of the $200,000 tournament was rescheduled for today with Julius Boros, J. C. Snead and Tucson Open winner Miller Barber sharing a one-stroke lead. The fate of the third and fourth rounds, however, remained in doubt.

Jack Tuthill, the PGA's tournament director, said a decision on the final 36 holes would be made after the course is examined today.

Two rounds could be played Sunday or the fourth round could be carried over to Monday, part of the Easter weekend holiday in North Carolina.

Boros, Snead and Barber turned in five-under-par 66's in Thursday's opening round over the 7,032-yard Sedgefield Country Club course before an all-night rain turned the fairways to mud.

A stroke off the pace were Australian Bruce Crampton, young Allen Miller, Deane Beman, Ken Still, Bob Lunn and Rod Curl.

Two strokes back in a bunch at 68 were Rodriguez, Lee Trevino, Gleason Classic champion Tom Weiskopf and San Diego Open winner Paul Harney.

Arnold Palmer, wearing contact lenses for the first time in tournament play, was in a group of 15 at two-under-par 69.

Only a couple of threesomes got on the course Friday before tournament officials decided shortly after 8 a.m. to put off the second round.

The decision was hardly a surprise for the tournament, which has suffered rainouts for two of the last three years.

A spring snowfall soaked the short Bermuda fairways last weekend and a Wednesday downpour worsened course conditions to the point where winter rules had to be invoked.

Lacrosse Game Set

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The Northern California Lacrosse Association will be up against international competition for only the second time in its seven-year history today when the All Stars host the Australian national team at City College. In their first game with the Aussies in 1967, the All Stars beat them 14-13.

Ali won all the rest. He had his best round in the 11th when he battered foster with a series of lefts and rights to the face, and appeared to have the former Marine from Fresno groggy.

Foster rode out the storm and had enough left for a brisk but ineffectual try for a knockout in the 15th.

Ali concealed himself for half an hour behind a curtain in his dressing room before meeting newsmen after the fight. Foster joined him for the press conference.

Ali's modesty contrasted sharply with his pre-fight boasting.

"I gave up trying to knock him out although I had predicted I would finish him in the fifth round," Ali said. "I couldn't knock him down because he was too great. Anyone who lasts 15 rounds with me is great."

Foster called Ali "the number one fighter," and said:

"He had extremely good jabs. I wanted to get in close during the fight but I couldn't. Also he had a good right hand. I'm glad that he gave me the opportunity to fight him, while the others have not given me such a chance. I'm not sorry to lose."

BASKETBALL

Kentucky Selects Coach Hall

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI)— Young Joe B. Hall took command of a new basketball regime at the University of Kentucky, where the nation's most successful coach was forced into retirement, with a touch of Southern gallantry.

"I will not attempt to replace coach Adolph Rupp, as I feel he will be a part of Kentucky basketball forever," said Hall, 43, after his appointment Friday as the Wildcats' new head coach.

Hall, Rupp's assistant for the past six years, only hinted that he might do things a little differently — like recruiting more black athletes—in his soft-spoken promise "to continue the Kentucky style of basketball."

His selection by the University of Kentucky's athletic board surprised no one, since Hall was so solidly considered to be Rupp's heir-apparent that no other coach applied for the job. A four-year contract takes effect July 1.

On that same date, Rupp—Kentucky's coach for 42 seasons —begins a life of leisure forced on him by the athletic board. He reached the mandatory retirement age of 70 last September and, although he talked about running for Congress, the legendary "Baron of the Bluegrass" decided instead to spend his retirement years running a myriad of business interests.

"It was very evident from the first that he was the overwhelming choice for the job," said Dr. Otis Singletary, who had insisted Monday night that no commitment had been made to Hall, who played under Rupp in the late 1940s.

Hall, a native Kentuckian from Cynthiana, was a substitute on Kentucky's 1948 and 1949 national champions teams before transferring to Sewanee College in Tennessee, where he was a starter for two years.

Bowler Weddell Rolls 705

Former San Rafael fireman Mike Weddell blazed to the Marin County bowlers' forefront this week.

The Santa Rosa resident bowled a 705 at Country Club Bowl, the top series recorded this week. His 222, 266 and 215 combined topped San Rafael's Ed Henry who bowled a 677 that included his first 300 game. Henry, a plumber, recorded his mark at Greenbrae Lanes in the Merry Mixers League Wednesday night.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Try this quiz on the April 1 birthday of Otto von Bismarck (1815-1898), Prussian statesman:

T F 1. The son of a Shonhausen blacksmith, this man was destined to have his birthday celebrated as a national holiday 80 years later.

T F 2. A brilliant university student and skilled diplomat, Otto was chosen at 47 by King William I of Prussia to lead his armies in a war on Russia.

T F 3. Bismarck's dream was to build a German Empire out of numerous kingdoms and principalities and to accomplish this he provoked one European war after another.

T F 4. When German states fought together in defeating France in 1871, it made them a new nation and Emperor William I made Bismarck his chancellor.

T F 5. A foe of socialism and a lifelong conservative, Bismarck nevertheless was the prince who gave Germans their accident, sickness, and old-age welfare programs.

ANSWERS

1. FALSE — Otto's parents were well-to-do and his father no blacksmith.

2. FALSE — The King sent Otto to Russia as an ambassador, not a general.

3. TRUE — Bismarck built armies by conscription at home and by treaties abroad.

4. TRUE — His victory also made Bismarck a prince.

5. TRUE — Under Bismarck, Germany got social security but little freedom.

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Nines And Eights Prove Useful In Borderline Bidding Decisions

Now and then somebody will advise you to bid more than you're inclined to because your hand is rich in eights and nines. An eight or a nine sometimes wins a trick that you couldn't take with a deuce or a trey. You can't tell about this kind of trick in advance, but when you have a borderline bidding decision, be optimistic when you have eights and nines; be pessimistic when your low cards are very low.

You hold:
♠- None
♥- A Q J 8 6 4
♦- A K 9 6 2
♣- Q 5.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts.

This hand is worth a jump response if partner opens with any suit but spades. Opposite a spade opening bid, however, a nonjump response is preferable.

FIRST ACTION

Declarer took the first trick in dummy with the ace of clubs, drew two rounds of trumps with the ace and king and thendiscarded the queen of clubs on dummy's ace of spades.

Diamonds were now South's only problem.

Declarer led a low diamond from the dummy, and East played the seven, South promptly finessed with the nine of diamonds — winning the trick!

NO PEEKING

Don't get suspicious. South had not peeked at anybody's hand. He had simply made the right safety play to assure his slam.

If West could win that first diamond trick, only two diamonds would remain out, and South could surely capture those two diamonds with his ace and king. The finesse with the nine was necessary to guard against all four diamonds in the East hand.

POSSIBLE SAVE

East could not have saved himself by putting up the ten of diamonds. South would win with the king and would see West's discard. South would return a low diamond to the eight, forcing out East's jack. Then declarer would get to dummy with a trump to lead another diamond through East for a finesse.

Just put the nine of diamonds in East's hand, and where would South be?

New members of the Jack and Jill Branch of Marin General Hospital Volunteers will be among the honored guests at a luncheon Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Lee Brand in Greenbrae.

New members of the branch that raises funds for the pediatrics department of the hospital are Mmes. Rudy Tulipani of Ross, Erin Linder of Mill Valley and Donald Geddes Jr. and Keith Grady, both of San Rafael. Other guests will be George Folsom, president of the board of directors of the Marin Hospital District; Ray K. Bolinger, Marin General Hospital administrator; Mmes. Harriet Klock, director of nursing services; Barbara Johnson, pediatrics nursing supervisor; Mario Pellegrini, chairman of the council of volunteers, Constantine Carpou, branch liason chairman; and Mary Miller, coordinator of volunteers.

MEMBERS OF the Marin County Legal Secretaries Association will elect officers Wednesday at a meeting which will follow a cocktail hour beginning at 5:30 p.m. and a buffet dinner at the Bank of Marin meeting room in San Rafael.

Reservations chairman is Jane Swall of Kentfield.

MEMBERS OF the Novato Branch of the American Association of University Women are sponsoring a luncheon and house tour Friday from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Lunch will be served between noon and 2 p.m. at the Novato Community House.

Committee members are Mmes. William Eckhoff, chairman; David Price Jones, Richard Pearce, Robert Patocchi, Marjorie Mowat, Warren McGowan, William Smith, William Heisler, Gerhard Wutzke, James Davis, John Colistra and Dennis Crinnion.

Tickets are available from AAUW members.

THE SAUSALITO Woman's Club will elect officers at its meeting Thursday at 1:30 p.m. following an 11:30 a.m. board of directors meeting.

Tea will be served at 3 p.m. by Mmes. James Redmond McCarthy, Richard F. Grambow and James J. MacLaird. Other committee members are Mmes. Kenneth Logan, Lennart Ekman and David Freedheim.

A NOON luncheon on Friday at the Holiday Inn in San Francisco will be sponsored by the Women's Division of the San Francisco and Marin Democratic State Central Committee. It will feature Petaluma Mayor Helen Putnam and two other Bay Area elected officials speaking on the needs for legislation designed to improve the quality of life.

Mrs. Troy Lewis of San Rafael and Mrs. Harold Cutler of San Francisco are chairmen.

Mrs. Putnam will discuss the pressures of the growing society from a suburban point of view, San Francisco Supervisor Roger Boas from the urban view, and Assemblyman Leo McCarthy of the 19th Assembly District will discuss state issues.

Reservations chairman for the luncheon titled "The Delicate Balance" is Mrs. Lewis.

FRANK MICHELFELDER will speak at the Novato Federated Women's Club meeting Thursday in the Community Room of the Novato Library.

Preceding the talk at 11:15 a.m., will be a business meeting at 10:30 a.m., and coffee will be served by Mrs. Larry Beagle and her committee.

Michelfelder, owner of a drapery cleaners in San Rafael, will discuss the care and choosing of draperies for today's homes.

ROLE OF FOOD

Christian Doctrine Class Observes Jewish Passover

Carrying out the idea that the Passover of the Jewish religion has a significance for Christians, Mrs. Woodrow W. Robarge of Novato observed the Passover Seder Thursday afternoon as a part of the teaching for her Confraternity of Christian Doctrine class of children.

Blanche Robarge said that her family has been observing the custom followed in a number of Catholic homes of participating in a paschal ceremony based on the Jewish Seder on Holy Thursday.

SHE SAID that the connection was raised by Pope John XXIII between the Passover and the Last Supper, and she began to follow the custom after reading how it has been carried on in an article in the Catholic Standard of Washington, D.C., in 1966.

This year she decided to create the ceremony and foods for her CCD class.

She said that the key to the ceremony is the significance of the various foods — the paschal lamb bone, moror (bitter herbs), matzo (unleavened bread), parsley (the green vegetable signifying spring), boiled eggs, charoses (apples, raisins and nuts marinated in wine and spiced with cinnamon), and salt water.

The ritual begins with the lighting of candles by the woman of the house, praying that the light of God's countenance will bless the home. The father then blesses the wine and answers the question asked by the youngest participant, "Why is this night of Passover different from all the other nights of the year?"

THE STORY of the exodus is told and the symbolism of the meal given. Matzos symbolize the unleavened bread taken in haste by the ancient Jews fleeing from Egypt. The roasted shanbone recalls the sacrificial lamb, the egg the second offering brought to the Temple on Passover, the moror recalls the bitterness of slavery, the saltwater the tears, and charoses the mortar of bricks made by Jews to build the Egyptian cities during captivity. Wine is taken four times to recall the four-fold promise that the Lord made to the Israelites in Egypt.

Christians, she said, recall the institution of the Holy Eucharist and the Holy Orders at Christ's last supper, a departure, of course, from the Jewish Seder. One Christian family includes singing of hymns and reading of Psalm 16, and reading an account of the Last Supper by a child. The ritual ends with a recitation of the traditional Jewish grace said after meals.

Ashley, Williams Nuptials Exchanged

Christ Presbyterian Church in Terra Linda was the setting for the wedding of Maureen Anne Williams and Dr. Ronald Paul Ashley.

Colleen Williams was the only attendant for her sister at the Saturday morning ceremony. Dr. Lance Rasmussen of Larkspur served as best man.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Howard Williams of Marinwood.

After a wedding trip to Sun Valley, Idaho, the couple will live in Larkspur.

Maureen is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and the College of Marin Dental Assisting Program. She has been employed in Doctor Ashley's orthodontic offices in Marin.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul C. Ashley of Atlanta, Ga. He attended college in Alabama and dental school in Chicago.

Missionary Society Picks New Officers

The Women's Missionary Society members of the Bethel Baptist Church in Novato have elected Mrs. George Van Diepen president.

Eleanor Van Diepen, a native of Iowa, became a member of the organization four years ago when she and her husband moved to Novato. Van Diepen is an equipment specialist at the Presidio in San Francisco.

"Home and church are my main interests," Mrs. Van Diepen said. Sharing Bible study in the home and encouraging others in Bible study through personal contact are favorite pastimes, she said.

Club projects and activities are sewing and collecting clothing for a children's orphanage in Mexico and holding devotional studies at the Novato Manor Convalescent Hospital.

Other officers elected to serve with Mrs. Van Diepen are Mmes. Gerald Barnett, missionary chairman; James Hill, secretary, and Milford Carroll, treasurer.

Orientation Set By Social Service Unit

Orientation for volunteers to the Marin County Department of Public Social Serice will be given Tuesday at 1 p.m. in room 254 of the Marin County Civic Center, according to Betty Presley, director of the department.

The department's structure and workings will be explained by staff development supervisor Relly Morgenstern. Marion Kelley, executive director of the Volunteer Bureau of Marin, will discuss the meaning of volunteerism in the community. Volunteer coordinator Elizabeth Moody will explain the program as will Olivia Duggan, chairman of the emergency services committee, and Bob Beebe, coordinator of the campership program for families of welfare clients.

The emergency services and campership programs and a library outreach program, developed by Jackie Mollenkopf, Marin County reference librarian, are new volunteer programs to be discussed in small groups following the orientation.

There also will be a tour of the department.

Volunteers are needed to fill jobs as drivers, tutors, friendly visitors, translators, telephone visitors, program consultants, baby sitters and to work on special projects.

Advance registration for the meeting is requested and can be made by calling the Department of Public Social Service volunteer office at the civic center.

New Deputy

Elizabeth Duncan Koontz, director of the U.S. Department of Labor Women's Bureau, has been named a Deputy Assistant Secretary of Labor. She wll be special counselor to Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson, who has ordered that all labor department activities which relate to women in the nation's economic and social development be coordinated with the women's bureau.

Novatans Mark 50th Anniversary

Fifty years ago today a young intern and a senior nurse at a Milwaukee, Wis., hospital took the day off from work and were married.

Now Novatans, Dr. Robert Cunningham of Cadott, Wis., and the former Helen Fessenden of Edgerton, Wis., are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary tonight at the Officers Club at Hamilton Air Force Base.

Dr. Cunningham is a fifth generation doctor. He began his general practice in Cadott, but after 10 years of practice, he became the doctor for the Indian Service for the Apache Indians in San Carlos, Ariz.

"We thoroughly enjoyed our 10 years of life on the reservation," Mrs. Cunningham said. "The doctor sometimes had competition from the medicine man."

But she said their years with the Indians were perhaps the happiest of their life. They attended many of the Indian functions such as the wedding and snake dances.

Their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Cunningham, and grandson, Donald James, all of Van Nuys; and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Kaiser of Campbell and their children, Scott, Barbara Jane, Steve and

New Booklet On Prepared Fruits

A new booklet has been issued by the U.S. Department of Agriculture titled, "How to Buy Canned and Frozen Fruits." The booklet describes the various qualities of fruit grades A, B and C.

It also gives comparisons of canned and frozen fruit to fresh fruit by weights and nutritional value. Tips on serving amounts per package and kinds of containers are included. Booklets are available for 30 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C.

Beginning Art Class Announced

A beginning art class will be held on six Wednesday mornings at the Studio at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. Mary Ann Fries of San Rafael is the instructor for the 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. classes.

The session will open Wednesday and will include work in all media. Reservations may be made for the class through the Marin Art and Garden Center office.

Novato Couple Weds In Evening Ceremony

All Saints Lutheran Church in Novato was the setting for the evening wedding of Kris Dauerheim and Robert L. Young, both of Novato, on March 24.

Lorrie Barton was the maid of honor and Linda Hilty and Lin Dauerheim, the bride's sister, were bridesmaids.

Creig Holding served as best man. The guests were seated by the bride's two brothers, Kirk and Larri Dauerheim, and Tim Townsend.

The reception was given at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hal C. Dauerheim of Novato.

Both Kris and Robert are graduates of San Marin High School. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Young of Novato.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Graduation Invitation Can Be Solved By Graduate Himself

DEAR RAP:

My nephew is graduating in June from high school and I am planning a family party for him. My sister (his mother) doesn't have a big enough house.

She is divorced from the boy's father and still bitter. She insists that only he (her ex) can get an invitation to graduation services (and my party), but not his wife. Of course he won't come under those circumstances.

I hear the wife is a lovely person — she didn't break up the marriage, but met him afterwards. The son thinks a lot of them both.

Is it ever proper to invite one of a couple and not both? My sister is making it so that her son's father won't see him graduated and I think this is a terrible shame. Don't you? — CAUGHT IN THE CROSSFIRE

DEAR CAUGHT:

We do. We do!

The graduation invitation should read "Mr. and Mrs. . ." As for the party afterwards, the couple will probably make no more than a token appearance, so why hassle it?

If your sister argues, tell her it's her son's special evening — and he should decide who gets invitations. She can't fault that! — HELEN AND SUE

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

My sister is into this natural-beauty-helps trip. You never know whether what's in the refrigerator is something for her face, or my stomach.

A guy wrote about his wife, who smeared herself with avocado. My sister even rubs it into her hair — along with beaten eggs. And then she rinses it with beer. Which I'd rather drink!

Now it's cornmeal. She washes her face in it, spilling it all over the bathroom. Gritty floors and scratchy soap I don't buy!

What's your opinion of this "back to nature" stuff, you two? — BROTHER

HELEN SAYS:

I lump "natural beauty aids" and organic health foods in the same bag —and figure it's filled with at least 50 per cent hot air.

These back-to-nature things make people feel worthy because they must work so much harder for results. But they don't produce miracles: Users seldom become appreciably more beautiful, vibrant, healthy, glowing — all those goodies true believers promise. — HELEN

SUE'S VIEWS:

I can't believe it: My mother, the world's greatest "Try it, you might like it" tester, going lukewarm on experiments! Look, Ma, you never followed a recipe or read a pattern instruction sheet in your life, so give the "naturals" a chance.

A cornmeal facial is great for oily skin and it might help remove blackheads too. Egg, lemon, avocado, bananas, etc., may not turn a dog into a fox, but they do a job on hair and complexion. And beauty operators use beer for rinses.

These aids are cheap, fun, and besides, anything close to nature can't hurt you. —SUE

LAST WORD FROM HELEN:

. . .Unless "Sis" gets cornmeal in her eye —or spills it in her brother's beer.

Look, kid, I know several things close to nature which can hurt you. That's why I caution, "Don't go all out on trendy stuff, even though experiments are fun."

LAST WORD FROM SUE:

Okay, Mother dear, I promise never to recommend poison ivy baths if you'll try a tomato puree-and-avocado facial. 'K?

LAST GASP FROM HELEN:

Couldn't I eat it on a piece of toast? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

A year ago I had a baby out of wedlock. The father wanted to marry me, but I refused. Then I met Joe, and the children (I have three) and I moved in with him.

I love Joe very much, but he isn't as good to us as at first. He's always yelling at the girls and everything has to be perfect. Yet he won't give me the security of marriage. He's separated from his wife, but not divorced, and isn't planning to be.

After all this time, the other man still wants to marry me. Call him Tim. He makes good money, will buy us a home, loves my two other girls as much as his own daughter, and is very kind. I respect Tim, but don't love him. I love Joe but am beginning not to respect him. Is it wise to marry just for the sake of your children and security? — S.K.W.

DEAR S.:

Such a marriage might be wise — for you and the children — but it wouldn't be fair to the man! Get Joe out of your life first, and you may be surprised how fast respect for Tim turns to love. — H.

NOVATANS

Robert have invited 60 guests to the buffet dinner at Hamilton. Among the guests will be many of their Indian friends, Mrs. Cunningham said.

During World War II, Dr. Cunningham was called into the service and served 39 months in the South Pacific. During that time, Mrs. Cunningham worked at Fort Miley in San Francisco. Dr. Cunningham also served as medical director for the 12th district, Civil Service Commission before his retirement. The couple moved to Novato in 1956.

"Being of the same profession probably helped us to understand one another as did my realizing the unexpected calls that a doctor receives," Mrs. Cunningham said.

When asked what his hobby is Dr. Cunningham answered, "To stay alive." Mrs. Cunningham plays bridge occasionally and is a member of the Order of Eastern Star and the Novato Garden Club.

They both said that they have had a great life.

"We weren't bored ever, and we still are not bored," Mrs. Cunningham said. "We are enjoying every minute of our retirement."

Polyester Fabric Interfacing Tip

By EUNICE FARMER
(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)

DEAR EUNICE,

I am so confused about the correct interfacing to use for polyester fabrics, both knitted and woven. There are so many on the market, and every fabric store seems to suggest a different type.

Mrs. N.E.E.

DEAR MRS. N.E.E.,

There is never just one product that will do the trick. That is perhaps the reason you are confused. This often becomes a matter of individual preference. Even the teachers on my staff disagree.

We all agree on one type that always works, however. This is a featherweight, all bias, nonwoven type interfacing. It isn't bulky, washes beautifully and never loses its shape. It seems to give just the right amount of body to the areas that require permanent shaping. It is also dry-cleanable. However, when a garment is to be dry cleaned and never washed, I generally prefer a woven type interfacing.

MRS. FLOYD Randolph, Lafayette, La., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing tip for ladies' pants and shorts:

After stitching the center front and back seams of your slacks, which should be a continuous stitching done after the leg seams have been stitched individually, place a strip of one-quarter-inch cotton twill tape on this curved seam. Restitch on the same stitching line, catching in the twill tape. This will prevent the crotch seam from stretching after pants are worn. It also strengthens the seams. They won't pull apart after many wearings and washings.

DEAR EUNICE,

I recently completed a course of lessons in learning to fit a pair of knitted slacks perfectly. I was so delighted with my class and the results that the time and money spent paid off quickly.

However, I just cut out a pair of slacks from woven fabric, using my tried and true slack pattern, forgetting completely that this pattern was worked out to be used only for knit fabrics. How can I correct my "goof," because I can't squeeze into the pants as they are?

MRS. S.S.

DEAR MRS. S.S.,

There is an answer to your problem. This would also work beautifully for any of you who have gained in measurements during those winter months. Rip out the side seams and add one of those very attractive decorative braids to both side seams. You'll probably end up liking the slacks better now than you did originally. You could also use the same trim for a belt or as an accent to the collar, or pockets or a matching top.

Sometimes our mistakes turn out to be a blessing. Instead of fretting about them, since that doesn't help the matter, turn your creative mind to a correction. With home sewing, there is seldom a complete loss.

DEAR EUNICE,

Unfortunately, I'm not a pro at home sewing, but I feel this is a question that must plague every woman in the world. Our pet peeve is having to replace a whole set of new buttons (invariably eight or 10) on a double-breasted garment when one is lost. Why can't the manufacturers include an extra button? It would sure save consumers a lot of money and trouble. The most frustrating part about this is that they can never be matched at a fabric shop.

MRS. T.M.

DEAR MRS. T.M.,

Yes, this is an unfortunate situation. I couldn't agree with you more. At least the woman who makes her own clothes wisely buys an extra button, which is the cheapest insurance you can get.

Another solution is to remove the buttons that are simply placed as a balance and aren't functional. In this way, you would have an off-center closing, a look that is done purposely in ready-to-wear and in patterns.

Since double-breasted garments never have buttonholes under this second row of buttons, it is possible to remove them without changing the appearance of the garment. This might work for you, especially if you have worn the garment many times and are trying to get by without the added expense of an entire new set of buttons.

Every Jangle Could Bring Joy To A Child

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—The telephones ring constantly in the small office of Mrs. Lou Bacon. Every jangle is encouragement for the former family court judge who has started Parents Anonymous.

Parents Anonymous provides aid to parents who abuse or neglect their children. The help can come simply from having that understanding stranger at the end of the line who will listen, if a mother or father feels that things are getting out of hand and that the children may be victimized as a result.

Or, the help is available at two evening meetings each week in which the abusers or potential abusers talks things out—the group therapy idea.

And it comes also from a pledge to read and re-read daily a ninepoint "Guidelines for Achievement."

THE FORMER judge drew them up after she visited Los Angeles, where a Mothers Anonymous is helping the abusive parent, and to Denver which is pioneering in child abuse centers.

All are patterned after the methods of Alcoholics Anonymous and Gamblers Anonymous—"which have done such terrific jobs," said Mrs. Bacon. She would like to see the idea spread and said, "I will go anywhere to help set it up."

The guidelines start with "We recognize and admit to ourselves and other PA memers that child abuse and neglect is a problem that exists today in our homes and we will set about an immediate course of constructive steps to stop any further abusive and neglectful actions in our homes."

The final point is, "We admit we must learn to control ourselves and once this is accomplished, we will achieve harmony in our home and earn love and respect for ourselves, our family and our society."

MRS. BACON, mother of two and grandmother of three, set PA into action with her own money eight weeks ago. Then she had one telephone line. Now there are three lines with Hortense R. Landau, a volunteer, helping her man them and an answering service to take messages some of the hours, for PA is a 24-hour, seven-day week helping hand. As word of the free service spreads, Mrs. Bacon hopes for more volunteers.

The courts, enforcement agencies, legislatures, doctors including psychiatrists and pediatricians, all are giving new attention to an age-old problem which Mrs. Bacon feels may be getting added stimulus from frustrations and tensions in our urbanized society and "the way we encourage violence."

"IT FRIGHTENS me," said Mrs. Bacon, "the way children are growing up accepting violence."

Gertrude M. Bacon, wife of a manufacturer and importer, holds bachelor and law degrees from Fordham University and for 15 years was on the staff of the Legal Aid Society where she said she was known as the "DDE"—for domestic difficulties expert.

She served nearly four years as a New York Family Court judge but resigned out of frustration —" We were all well-intentioned," she said, "but there was so little we could do.

"Sometimes I'd handle 40 cases a day ... now you know how little you can really accomplish with that kind of case load."

Berrigan Drama In Mill Valley

By KAY KSANDA

Political winds don't often blow in the theater, but the current play at the Mill Valley Center for The Performing Arts is hot property.

"The Trial of The Catonsville Nine" by Rev. Daniel Berrigan is a two-act dialogue of the court trial held in Baltimore in May 1968. Daniel, his brother, Phillip, also a priest, and seven others, including two nuns, burned 378 Selective Service records. It seems that they charged into the Catonsville, Md., draft office with napalm and set the filed afire as a protest to the war in Vietnam. This play is the edited court transcript of their trial.

If this doesn't strike a cord in the old memory, the past performance of Phillip Berrigan (and others) pouring blood over similar files in Baltimore the year before might clear the picture. Furthermore, the same Phillip is part of the Harrisburg seven, now awaiting a jury's decision in a conspiracy that allegedly included a plot to kidnap Henry Kissinger.

To straighten the whole entanglement out, the well-informed cast adds an epilogue. After the play, the excellent courtroom set is turned into a seminar on current civil disobedience: the who, what, when, where and why of political conspiracy.

The show itself is pokey, repetitious, and in a few spots reminiscent of valedictory addresses. However, the cast is excellent and truly believable. One is delighted at the spunk of nurse Mary Moylan, played by Ann Ayers, and the passive martyrdom of Phillip (James Haran.) The individual characterizations are alive and different enough to keep the show going.

It's not a play that everyone would want to see, as it is not told as a story but as an account of something that happened. It has little of the familiar drama, and is more in the manner of the new factual theater. The drama is within the sermon, and if you dig the politics, you'll love the play.

J. Edgar Hoover has declared Daniel and Phillip Berrigan the two most dangerous men in America today, and requested an additional $2 million to employ additional surveillance of their activities.

Therefore, if the theme, the politics, or the protest is of interest, the play is a perfect experience as the production is quality.

Performances run through the month of April every Friday and Saturday at 8:30 p.m. (with the exception of next Friday night) at 267 Buena Vista Avenue.

Seven Students To Be Concert Soloists

The College of Marin Music Department will present its third annual free Concerto Concert by the College's Community Orchestra at 8 p.m. April 9 in the Fine Arts Theater.

Featured will be seven student musicians performing various solo roles. David Poteet will play the first movement of Mzart's Third Violin Concerto; Kevin Omi, the first movement of the French Horn Concerto No. 1 by Richard Strauss. Cricket Waldeck will sing Micaela's aria from "Carmen," and Mary Helen Weinstein will play the third movement of Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto.

Steve Salgo will play the first movement of Hummel's Trumpet Concerto in E Flat; Robin Willat, the Concertino for Flute and Orchestra by Chaminade; and Carol Krueger, the first movement of Kabalevsky's Third Piano Concerto.

John H. Myers will conduct the orchestra.

Hike To Laguna Ranch To Open Month's Agenda

A Monday hike to Laguna Ranch, Point Reyes National Seashore, will begin the Marin Audubon Society's program for this month.

The group will meet at 9 a.m. at the Mill Valley Safeway or at 10 a.m. at trailhead parking lot at the seashore headquarters, Olema.

Bill Germeraad, ranger naturalist, will lead the hike.

Other trips on the society's calendar include:

April 9 — A trip to study chaparral on Mount Tamalpais led by Dr. James Sweeney. Meet at 10 a.m. at the parking lot for Bootjack Campground.

April 10 — Canoe trip down the Petaluma River to Mira Monte Marina.

April 17 — Bike trip to Bear Valley Trail and cave exploration.

April 23 — Traditional spring trip to Farallon Islands to view birds during breeding season. Meet at 6:45 a.m. at the Blue Horizon pier in Sausalito, behind the Spinnaker Restaurant.

April 30 — Joint trip with the Golden Gate Audubon Society to the Farallon Islands. Meet at 6:45 a.m. at Blue Horizon pier in Sausalito, behind the Spinnaker Restaurant.

Modern Dance Classes Slated

The Rohnert Park Recreation Department will begin modern dance classes for children and teen-agers on Friday.

The class for children between first and fourth grades will be offered on Fridays from 4:15 to 5:15 p.m. at the recreation center. Rhythm and coordination will be stressed.

The teen dance classes will be held Fridays from 3 to 4 p.m. at the center. Instructor will be Claire Porter, a dancer with the David Lober Repertory Dance Company and a Sonoma State College student.

Bogdanovich Does It Again In Comedy 'What's Up, Doc?'

By LOUISE SWEENEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

"What's Up, Doc?" is Peter Bogdanovich's funny valentine to old Hollywood movies.

Director Bogdanovich, who proved his talent for nostalgia with the '50s reverie of "The Last Picture Show," has done it again. This time he's made a wacky, sweet comedy patterned on the screwball comedies of the '30s, but spangled with bits of other fond movie memories. It stars Barbra Streisand, Ryan O'Neal and four red plaid suitcases.

There's more than a little bit of the '30s romp "Bringing Up Baby" in this film. "Baby" had Katharine Hepburn as a charming mobile disaster area in love with scholarly museum type Cary Grant (in glasses).

"Doc" has Miss Streisand as another kind of charmer on a collision course with everything in life. That includes Mr. O'Neal (in glasses) as the scholarly musicologist she falls instantly in love with at a music convention in San Francisco. He has this theory about prehistoric rocks and music and she is really trying to be helpful: "You could get Leonard Bernstein to conduct an avalanche."

In the course of helping him she rips up his jacket and his engagement to a generalissimo of a girl named Eunice and generally messes up his life, including his try for a foundation grant to test his theory about music and rocks.

The rocks are in one of the red plaid suitcases, fiancee Eunice's clothes in the second. But two of the others contain top secret documents and a dowager's dazzling jewel collection. So there's a madcap mix-up involving a secret agent, a house detective, a fantastic San Francisco car chase that's a cross between "Bullitt" and Buster Keaton, and a wild, improbably "here-comes-the-judge" ending.

In between, in a sporadically hilarious screenplay by Buck Henry, David Newman and Robert Benton, are some delightful gags about "The Caine Mutiny," "Looney Tunes," "Casablanca," "To Have and Have Not," the Marx Brothers, and "Love Story" (watch for the zinger at the end).

Miss Streisand, who comes on like a mix of Bugs Bunny, Cleopatra, and Baby Snooks, is wonderful. O'Neal proves himself a deft comedian, at times more Jack Benny than Cary Grant but always a marvelous straight man for her.

The rest of a fine cast includes Madeline Kahn as a devastating Eunice, Austin Pendleton, Sorrell Booke, Stefan Gierasch, Mabel Albertson, Kenneth Mars, and Graham Jarvis. But it is really Bogdanovich's film all the way, a zany, pell-mell farce that's sometimes improbable but nearly always funny.

IN HOUSTON SUBURB

Converts Launch A Recycling Plant

WEST UNIVERSITY PLACE, Tex. — Warner and Sharon Strang have opened a recycling center — financed by a city impressed by their arguments and some practical reasons.

Councilman Fred Hughes said the Strangs asked about setting up a center in the community. Hughes not only got them permission but $500 and a building to use.

"Landfill is too expensive to fill with garbage," Hughes says. "The city spends 27 cents of every tax dollar to collect and dispose of trash. With the recycle center, the life span of landfill increases and the money earned can be recycled for library books, parks and anything that will benefit the city."

The Strangs, who moved back to the Houston suburb recently, had been converted to recycling while studying in Palo Alto. They were shocked to find West University Place had no such facility.

"We wrote to other centers to find out how they did it," Warner Strang says. "Then we presented our plan to the city. They thought it was a good idea and we were in business.

"We want to show other communities recycling can be at least a break-even proposition. And at least some of this garbage won't have to go in the incinerator." (Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

Only One Conviction In Burglary

A jury in Marin Superior Court yesterday convicted one of two Los Angeles men accused of burglarizing a Strawberry clothing store in December, but failed to reach a verdict on his companion.

Found guilty of second degree burglary was Willie James Hill, 32. He is to be sentenced May 5.

The jury has hung on the guilt or innocence of Laurence Alexander Lishey, 30.

The two were captured Dec. 16 on the San Rafael-Richmond Bridge at the end of a bullet-punctuated chase in the early morning hours.

Sheriff's deputies, police and California Highway Patrol officers chased a getaway van, in which they found about 200 suits taken from the C. Partan clothing store.

Hill was driving the van and Lishey was a passenger in the back.

The van was peppered with bullets and one tire flattened, but no one was hurt.

Profile Of A Marinite

"I don't think there is any question but that junior colleges are going to continue to grow," says Ernest H. Berg. "People are recognizing more and more that junior college offers a high quality education and . . . the most economical form of higher education in the state."

By FRANK FARRARA

Ernest H. Berg is a college president without a college building to call his own.

The 51-year-old Canadian-born educator is president of Indian Valley Colleges, which currently has a 330-acre campus near Novato, a master plan and students attending borrowed classrooms in Novato.

A patient man, Berg is working diligently toward the day when the cluster of colleges, referred to as "the north campus" of the Marin Community College District, will be bustling with activity.

WAITING ISN'T a new experience for Berg, who was named president-designate of the College of Alameda in the Peralta Community College District in 1966, but didn't become president until it opened two years later.

Seated in his modest office in a portable building on the Kentfield campus of the College of Marin, Berg commented on recent alarm over reports that Indian Valley Colleges was being planned for 10,000 students.

"All of us believe that a junior college should not go above a 5,000 enrollment," he said. "After that point you have too many to serve efficiently as a community-oriented college."

A REPORT IN June, 1970, from the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education declared the optimum size "from 2,000 to 5,000," Berg noted.

The district is planning for 5,000 students, but under state rules, the district, nevertheless, must show provision for a potential of 10,000 students, Berg explained.

"More and more it is being recognized that size alone is an inhibiting factor in the relationship between the student and the college," Berg said.

LARGE COLLEGE enrollments result in individuals becoming alienated and "are partly the cause of a very high dropout rate," he commented.

Berg, a graduate of Provincial Normal School in Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, which had an enrollment of about 500, was reared in the Canadian wheat belt town of Leader, Saskatchewan, in the middle of the depression.

"There wasn't a crop from 1929 to 1937 and the only thing people had was the relief check," he said. Dust storms were devastating and people had to seal window edges to keep the dust out of their homes, he also recalled.

HIS FATHER WAS a Lutheran minister, but rather than follow that calling, Berg decided to go to the normal school and become a teacher, "one of the few jobs for which openings were then available."

After one year, he was teaching, and he has been in the educational field ever since. He later graduated from the United College of the University of Manitoba with a major in economics, earned his Master's Degree from the University of Wisconsin, and won his doctorate in education from the University of California at Berkeley.

LOOKING TOWARD the future, Ernest H. Berg, president of Indian Valley Colleges, explores the beautiful 330-acre campus of rolling hills at the end of San Jose Boulevard, near Novato, with map in hand, locating in his mind's eye where the campus buildings will be constructed.

Berg also expressed his personal concern with large classes in colleges and said. "Once you go beyond 60 you might as well have 1,000 students in a classroom."

THE PROBLEM IS that the funds that would make smaller, optimum classes possible aren't available, he commented.

There has been some pessimism in the American Assn. of Community Colleges that holds there has been a loss of public confidence in education. And there has been a "drying up of individual grants," but this is possibly because of the recession, Berg said.

Schools are now financed by property taxes and although there have been moves to shift to a "less visible" form of taxes such as a sales tax, it is basically "just a shifting of taxes," Berg maintained.

THE ALTERNATIVE to more funds is more productivity, which could be achieved by instructors carrying more classroom hours or having larger classes, he said.

A community college teacher normally has classes for 15 hours a week, except those in laboratories, physical education, arts or vocational shops, who have longer classroom hours.

An instructor also holds office hours about five hours a week to confer with students. And he participates in college government, prepares teaching material, evaluates student work and is available to speak to community groups, Berg pointed out.

IN STATE COLLEGES and universities, the classroom lecture loads for instructors are lighter, Berg said.

Berg, former supervisor of the junior college credentials program at the University of California and veteran in the junior college field, forecasts a continuing boom in junior colleges in California.

"I don't think there is any question, but that junior colleges are going to continue to grow," he said. "There are now 28 new colleges in some planning stage. People are recognizing more and more that junior college offers a high quality education, and parents realize it is the most economical form of higher education in the state."

EVIDENCE IS that junior college students do "as well or better" in the first two years of higher education as those attending colleges and universities, Berg claimed, and added: "There is a growing feeling that all lower division education should be conducted at junior colleges."

Another factor in the trend toward junior colleges is that "many young people today see less and less value in a degree itself as a ticket to a job," Berg commented.

"The drive toward upper mobility is not as valid as it once was" and young people are thinking more "of living the kind of life they want to live," he said.

YOUTHS ARE looking for vocational and technical courses, and vocational enrollment is increasing, he observed. "After all only 10 per cent are going into the elitist professions."

Berg expects that in a couple of years or so Indian Valley Colleges will be in operation on North Campus, and he has a home nearby where he, wife Catherine and 15-year-old son David, a Novato High School student, live.

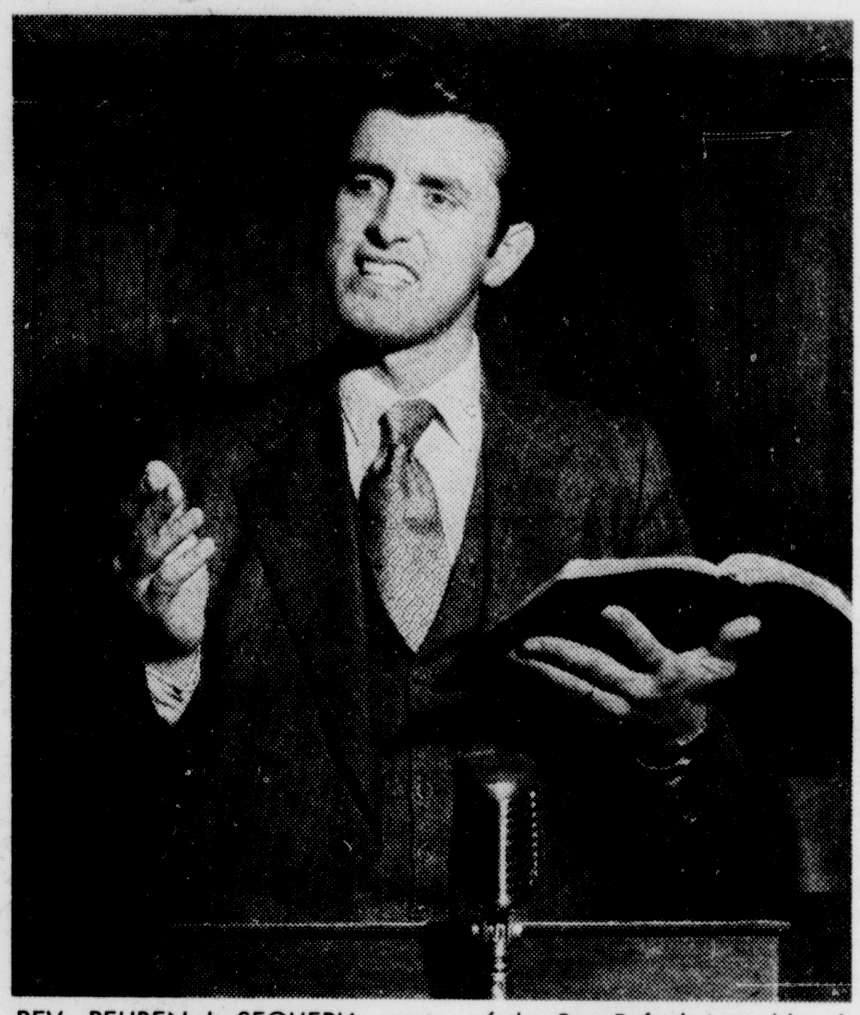
An Easter Message For Our Readers —

"The risen Christ is the Christian's hope. Death is just a passage into the final realization of eternal life. His body will be changed to accommodate eternity and be with Christ eternally. We too declare the risen Christ with certainty."



REV. REUBEN J. SEQUERIA, pastor of the San Rafael Assembly of God Church, 517 D St., is a native of the Azores who came with his parents to the United States during World War II. The son of a clergyman, he is a graduate of Bethany Bible College and the Oral Roberts Graduate School of Theology. He became pastor of the San Rafael church in July, 1969, and also serves as a contract chaplain at Hamilton Air Force Base, as a Marin Juvenile Hall chaplain, and as chaplain for Chi Alpha at the College of Marin while attending the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary part-time.

By REV. REUBEN J. SEQUEIRA

(Editor's Note: It is the custom of the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine each year at Easter time, and again at Christmas time, to bring to its readers a holiday message written by a member of Marin County's clergy. Today's Easter message is from Rev. Reuben J. Sequeira, pastor of the San Rafael Assembly of God Church.)

In the Bible, Job wrote: "If a man die, shall he live again?" This haunting question of the ages continues to plague man.

No amount of nuclear research, agricultural advances, or socio-economic or political philosophy can choke out this one basic question of man: What of the future? Is there life beyond the grave? Can man know for sure?

There can be no room for speculation. If there is life after death, and the soul is immortal, then how can I receive the assurance that my life will be spent eternally with the Creator and Sustainer of the universe?

IT IS NO wonder that the world is full of the pessimistic and unbelieving when only man is considered. Jean Paul Sartre, a French existentialist, said, "There is no exit from the human dilemma."

Donald Kalish, chairman of the philosophy department of UCLA, stated, "You are mistaken to think that anyone ever had the answers. There are no answers. Be brave and face up to it." Ernest Hemingway remarked, "There is no remedy for anything in life," while William James, the eminent psychologist, commented concerning the possibility of absolutes, "Damn the absolutes!"

What a picture! All seems lost and hopeless as the statesman, economist, politician, sociologist, psychologist and educator look to man alone to find the answers of the ages.

JESUS CHRIST breaks through all the pessimism, all the gloom, all the hopelessness, doubt, fear, racism, anxiety, purposelessness and despair of humanity with the answer, "I AM THE WAY, THE TRUTH, AND THE LIFE." Can anything be more plain? Can Easter by made any clearer than from the Person who has made Easter a reality?

While at the graveside of Lazarus, Jesus responds with the clarity and authority of deity, "I AM THE RESURRECTION AND THE LIFE. He that believes in Me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."

Easter — the celebration day of the literal Resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ. Otherwise, Easter becomes a singing jingle, the ever-loving bouncing bunnies, and the harrowing colored egg-hunt. Let us examine the significance, historicity and experience of the Resurrection.

QUESTIONS ARE still being asked as to the validity and deity of the person of Jesus Christ. The same question plagued Jesus during His earthly ministry.

There were the continual sign-seekers . . . are You really the Messiah, the Son of God? Jesus replying to their constant inquiry said, "For as Jonah was three days and three nights in the fish's belly, so shall the Son of Man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth." Again Jesus reiterated His future, "Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up . . ."

The Biblical narrative continues, "He spake of the temple of His body . . . when therefore He was risen from the dead, His disciples remembered that He had said this unto them."

The significance and crux of Easter and therefore the Resurrection rests in the validity of the Person of the Lord Jesus Christ. It determines if He truly was God incarnate in flesh. To relegate any other proposition to the evidence of the Resurrection is to cast doubt on Him and repugn His testimony, the testimony of the prophets, the Scriptures, and the living witnesses of the present.

THE ISSUE before us is this: If the Resurrection is true, then Christ is the Son of God on His own admission. The abundant prophecies concerning Him in the Old Testament and the sufficiency of supporting evidence indicates that He did really and truly rise from the dead.

The second point of consideration is this: If He is the Son of God, the Savior of the world, then what He said becomes authoritatively conclusive and significant. He made some inescapable statements that rest on His character and personage . .

"Except ye be born again, ye cannot enter into the Kingdom of God . . . I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life; no man comes to the Father except through Me. . . He who believes in the Son has eternal life; but he who does not obey the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God abides on him."

One can see that the necessity of belief preceds Biblical conversion.

BEFORE WE endeavor to embark on the road of evidence, let it be said that any evidence, no matter how preponderate, involves a decision on our part . . . a moral decision of whether to believe and accept His Person and work on the cross, or to discredit it as mere fallacy or speculation.

Hugh Schonfield, in the "Passover Plot," proposed that Jesus fabricated His own death and "Resurrection."

Without further elaboration on this premise, we must ask the question: Could Jesus have controlled an angry mob, directed Roman guards, persuaded a reluctant Pilate, instigated Judas' final betrayal, and initiated the Jewish Sanhedrin? As to the possibility of the disciples stealing the body, the question needs to be asked: Would the disciples have died for a stolen body? What of the guards that we placed there? What of the empty tomb sealed by a wheel of granit, eight foot in diameter, one foot thick, rolling on a groove and weighing more than four tons? And what of the grave clothes that were left behind? Would His followers who stole the body refuse to deny the Resurrection under persecution?

Such was never the case!

BUT WHAT IF the enemies stole the body, some might query? If that were the case, why would they give rise to the Resurrection? Why would they not prove it false when the disciples began to preach and teach a risen Christ? The perponderance of evidence is simply the reverse. Strauss, a famous Biblical critic and an unbeliever, denies the theory of Jesus being in a "swoon," holding it to be incredible.

Still others claim that the Resurrection was just an hallucination . .. that what more than 500 people saw was just a figment of the imagination.

However, experts in the field of psychology tell us that hallucinations occur only when expected under prolonged situations and in prime circumstances. This evidently was not the situation as Christ appeared 10 different times under varied circumstances, to very different people, and to those who were definitely unprepared and unwilling to see a dead Christ raised from the dead.

THOUGH THE minds of men still ponder the credibility or non-credibility of the Resurrection, the evidence for it continues to abide . . . the tomb is still empty! The records are credible, substantiated by honest men who were first-hand witnesses. Along with their testimony is their moral transformation that establishes abundant evidence for this historic event . . . from timid and backward men who forsook the Lord to bold and stalwart proclaimers of the Truth they initially refused to believe.

The testimony of Josephus is also important. He states in his "Antiquities of Josepheus" (18:3,4), "He appeared to them alive again the third day, as the divine prophets had foretold these and ten thousand other wonderful things concerning Him."

Here a Jewish historian, who was definitely opposed to such truth, could do no less but record this momentous occasion. Sunday became the Christians' day of worship . . . and for the strictly orthodox Jews, which most of the disciples were, this change had to come about because of a radical event. It did . . . Christ rose from the dead. The Church's existence and message is a direct result of a risen Christ.

ON CONCLUDING the historicity of the Resurrection, we quote former Lord Chief Justice of England Lord Darling:

"We, as Christians, are asked to take a very great deal on trust; the teaching, for example, and the miracles of Jesus. If we had to take all on trust, I for one, would be skeptical. The crux of the problem of whether Jesus was, or was not, what He proclaimed Himself to be, must surely depend upon the truth or otherwise of the Resurrection. On that greatest point we are not merely asked to have faith. In its favor as a living truth there exists such overwhelming evidence, positive and negative, factual and circumstantial, that no intelligent jury in the world could fail to bring in a verdict that the Resurrection story is true."

Can "evidence" prove the Resurrection? The Apostle Paul, that legalist, intellectual, writer, and strict Jew of the Sanhedrin sect, who went about jailing Christians for their faith in the risen Lord, became the dynamic progenitor of the living Christ.

What happened? Six years after the resurrection, Jesus appeared to him on the road to Damascus. Paul experienced this living Christ for himself and left being called "Paul the Persecutor" to become Paul the Apostle."

FRANK MORRISON, a British lawyer who went about to disprove the "theory of the Resurrection," wrote a book entitled "Who Moved the Stone." The first chapter is entitled, "The Book that Refused to be Written." Due to overwnelming evidence he too experienced a living Christ and became a believer and outstanding disciple of Him.

The risen Christ is the Christian's hope. Death is just a passage into the final realization of eternal life. His body will be changed to accommodate eternity and be with Christ eternally. We too declare the risen Christ with certainty.

Yes, the Resurrection is a past event of nearly two thousand years. However, life begins when Jesus comes in. One can know by personal experience, not a dead Savior, but a living Christ Who promises forgiveness, peace, security, joy and salvation in Him. All of nature responds at springtime to the Creator and Source of Life.

Let this Easter be the new beginning of this new type of life — abundant and eternal — found and guaranteed in Christ alone!

IN THE ancient city of Jerusalem, almost 2,000 years ago, there took place one of the great episodes in Christian history — the Passion Week events that culminated in the Resurrection of Jesus Christ. The photograph on the right is a scene from one of the most famous of the re-creations of those historic and sacred events, "King of Kings," the classic Biblical silent motion picture made by Cecil B. De Mille and released in 1927 with H. B. Warner in the role of Christ. The motion picture is to be shown on Easter Sunday on KBHK-TV (Channel 44) starting at 7 p.m. In the story on these pages, New Testament scholar Dr. Fred L. Fisher of the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary faculty describes the place, past and present, where Jesus suffered crucifixion and then was resurrected from the dead.

Scholar's Impression Of Easter Scene

Many descriptive titles have been given to the ancient city of Jerusalem in Israel. One is "City of Peace," which is somehow ironical yet appropriate for a place that has seen conquerors come and go, but her battered people yet rising again.

Israel has been a nation — this time — only since May, 1948. That was a modern miracle. Then came the six-day war in 1967 when the Israelis recaptured the Old City of Jerusalem from Jordan.

Its fortresses and walls would indicate anything but a city with a history of lending itself to peace. Her people are still threatened, yet inside her limits the virtues of three faiths — Judaism, Moslem and Christian — are expounded. Churches, religious orders, and holy shrines abound in the city "of magnificent differences" left by her many conquerors over the centuries.

PERHAPS THE name "City of Peace" can be attributed to a promise of peace made almost 2,000 years ago by a Man who claimed to be the promised "Messiah" the Jews had been seeking for centuries. That claim and promise continues to draw Christians to this ancient spiritual haven.

Millions of people look toward this ancient capital city of Judaism and Christendom during the Easter season to recall the events of Passion Week, when Jesus Christ, according to Biblical accounts, was crucified and resurrected from the dead.

Among the countless Christians who have visited Jerusalem and walked the very routes many claim to be the paths taken by Christ to His crucifixion has been Dr. Fred L. Fisher, professor of New Testament Interpretalion at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary on Marin's Strawberry Point.

FISHER JOINED the faculty of Golden Gate in 1952 and this year is commemorating his 20th anniversary at the seminary. The trip to the Holy Land in 1964 was taken with Mrs. Fisher, and was part of a sabbatical-study tour during which he studied at the University of Zurich in Switzerland.

He recently completed his sixth book titled "Jesus and His Teachings," 1972, Broadman Press, Nashville, Tenn. The book is an up-to-date study of the person and teachings of Jesus, as presented in the three gospels of Matthew, Mark and Luke in the New Testament.

A well-known scholar on the New Testament, Fisher personally regards visits to the Holy Land as more of an eductional experience than a spiritual pilgrimage.

"I'M NOT OVERLY sold on holy places as such," he said in his office at the seminary.

He continued, "I don't think it really matters whether we can put our finger on a particular spot and say here is where Jesus was buried, and here is where He arose.

"The important thing, to be a Christian, is to believe that He died for our sins and, through His death, believe that salvation has been made possible. It's important to believe that He actually did arise from the grave and by His arising proved that His salvation for us was complete and full."

There has been an over-emphasis upon what are called the "sacred spots of the Holy Land," Fisher believes and this overemphasis is basically "unchristian," he said.

But this doesn't mean that going to these places is not helpful and inspiring, he added. "Even in modern times, by just being there in the Holy Land, you get a feeling of the land and of the life of the people.

"THIS WAS especially true before the Arabs and Jews fought in June, 1967. At that time most of Jerusalem was under Arab-Jordanian rule. The Arabs have not advanced as much in modern culture as have the Israelis, and while we may eschew that fact, the Arab culture does preserve the same kind of sense and feeling that you get from the Biblical records."

Looking at Jerusalem from the hills then, one would see it encircled with its massive walls that rise from the terrain then disappear at other points.

As interesting as the shrines and historical sites in the Old City are the hordes of people who crowd the old city's bazaars, Dr. Fisher recalled. "It is said that standing in the narrow streets amidst the city's Saracenic architecture, a person may see "more history in the passing races and faces than could be acquired from scholarly guide books."

Travelers testify of their fascination of hearing the variety of languages spoken in the city.

THE VARIETY of life styles and persuasions are evident as one has only to look at the black-cloaked, bearded priests of the Greek Orthodox Church, contrasted with the Sheiks and Mullahs of Islam, indicated in rank by their turbans. There are the black, white and brown robes of the Latin religious orders, spreading white coronets on deep blue of the Sisters of Charity, and the hooded, black-cloaked Armenian priests.

The dress of the average citizen will differ from the flowing robes of the fellahin (peasants) to the veiled faces of Moslem women and the often less discreet informal western styles of dress and manner. This melting pot of cultures mixes in the crowded shops of Jerusalem, where the odors of spices mingle with the smell of carcasses of freshly slain sheep. Cobblers and coppersmiths still tap out their wares, and the market places are alive with the hawkers who vie for the attention of passersby.

The city is an accumulation of contrasts and is doubly more interesting because of its rich historical and religious heritage.

ON THE EASTERN edge of the city stood the temple built by Herod the Great in 17 B.C. King Solomon's original temple had been destroyed in 586 B.C. by the Babylonians.

The Romans destroyed Herod's Temple in 70 A.D. when they razed Jerusalem and the Jews were dispersed. No trace of the actual temple exists in the old city of Jerusalem now; rather the "Dome of the Rock," a Moslem shrine, stands on the site today.

The area in and around the temple is somewhat like the area of the state government in Sacramento with buildings crowded together in one little area, said Fisher. Cities were put together much the same way in Jesus' time, he added. The Temple precincts covered four or five acres and were the center of life for the Jewish community. That was where Jesus stayed while in Jerusalem to teach the people, and where he debated with the religious leaders.

PEOPLE TEND not to congregate around these areas today. The main city of Jerusalem is an area to the west where the shops and businesses are located.

"That is where you will see the people of Israel," said Fisher.

Fisher said he considers the Holy Land — particularly the old city of Jerusalem — to be quite important historically in tracing the beginnings of Christianity.

There are many places in the old city, and within reach of it, that figured in Passion Week, observed by Christians as the time when Jesus drew near to his death and subsequent resurrection, he added.

"If Christ had been killed and not risen again, that would have squelched Christianity from the beginning. Jesus realized he was called of God to be the messiah of Israel and that part of his messianic vocation was to be accomplished by death," Fisher said.

THOUGH HE knew He was going to die, Jesus did not share this knowledge with His disciples until about six months before His death, Dr. Fisher said.

"I think the reason was that according to their (the disciples') messianic hope, the last thing they would have expected would have been that the Messiah would die. It was necessary for their faith to come in two stages."

The first stage was to identify Jesus as the Messiah, which they seemed to have done completely at the great confession of Ceasarea, Philippi, recorded in Mark, Chapter 8, when Peter said, "Thou are the Christ . . ."

His disciples found it difficult to understand what the messiahship meant in terms of suffering and to understand their own future vocation in the world. The disciples didn't even remember or believe, at least, that Christ was to rise from the dead, until it happened and they saw with their own eyes, as recorded in the Gospels of Matthew, Mark and Luke, Fisher added.

THE FINAL DAYS in Jerusalem before Christ's death on the cross and his disappearance from the tomb, actually began for Jesus and His disciples in an upper room on a Thursday where they commemorated the Jewish Passover and instituted what Christians call the Lord's Supper or the Communion. This room was somewhere in the area of the Temple, about two blocks away, Fisher said.

The exact site of the "Last Supper" is not known, but tour guides in the old city point out a two-story stone building in the old aristocratic section of the city claimed by many to be the house where Christ ate the "Seder" feast of the Passover with his disciples.

That same night Jesus was betrayed by one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot. The setting was the Garden of Gethsemane meaning "oil press" between what is now the Moslem mosque on "The Dome of the Rock," and the Mount of Olives to the east where Jesus often retired at night with his disciples. Jesus had gone to the garden to pray.

There are still a number of olive trees in the area, and one is said to be the tree under which Jesus prayed.

"IT COULD VERY well be the one, because it looks big enough to be that old," Fisher recalled. There is now an interdenominational "Church of All Nations" built on the spot, which serves as a house of prayer, he said.

That was where the Jewish soldiers came at night, and Judas betrayed Jesus with a kiss.

Jesus was then taken under guard about three or four blocks from where he was arrested to the palace of the high priest where a preliminary hearing was held. The Church of St. Peter "du Gallicantu" ("At the Crowing of the Cock") stands there today, northeast of where the temple was.

Christ was declared to be a blasphemer, a charge worthy of death under Jewish law. The Sanhedrin, the Jewish rabbinical court had no authority to sentence and execute, so the next morning (Friday) Jesus was taken to Pontius Pilate, the Roman governor who had come to Jerusalem to watch for possible disturbances during the Passover season when Jerusalem was filled with pilgrims.

AT TOP, the Mount of Olives rises through an archway to the east of where temples, built by Kings Solomon and Herod the Great, once stood. The Garden of Gethsemane, where Jesus was betrayed by Judias Iscariot is just beyond the center arch at the foot of the hill. The Church of All Natjons now stands on the garden site. The view is from the present location of the "Dome of the Rock," a moslem shrine on the old temple grounds. At right, the Damascus Gate, on the northern side of the walled city of Jerusalem is a landmark on one of two routes, over which Jesus is said to have been led to be crucified. The Gate is about two blocks from Gordon's Garden Tomb," one of two sites believed to be the place of Jesus's crucifixion and burial.

The Places Where The Events Of Passion Week Took Place

BIBLICAL HSITORY records that Pilate examined Jesus and sent him to King Herod, who tried to get the accused man to perform miracles. Jesus would not, and Herod sent Jesus back to Pilate. Pilate and Herod became fast friends from that day, according to accounts.

Tradition holds that Pilate was residing at the time in the Antonia Fortress, at the site of the "Arch of Ecce Homo," ("Behold the Man"), near the temple grounds on the northeast boundaries of the city. Christ had already been spit on and mocked by the religious leaders of Jerusalem, and was scourged by the Romans and a "crown of thorns" placed on his head.

It was at this site that Pilate asked the people what they wanted done with Christ, and gave them a choice between the insurrectionist and murderer Barrabas or Jesus. The mob demanded Jesus's death by crucifixion and Pilate submitted to them. Christ then began the walk from Pilate's residence in Jerusalem down the Via Dolorosa (Way of the Cross).

Mark's Gospel records, "And they bring him unto the place Golgotha, which is being interpreted, the place of a skull . . . ." (Mark 15:22) The route is steep and downhill to the west and comes to Solomon Street, where pilgrims tracing the steps of Christ may turn either to the right or left to sites said to be Golgotha and the tomb where Christ was buried.

ONE OF THE routes turns left from Via Dolorosa onto Solomon Street. The path veers downhill to the left through the United Greek chapel and the tomb of St. Veronica, to another cross street, then right about one-half mile where the Church of the Holy Sepulchre stands on the spot said by many to be Golgotha, where Christ was crucified.

Processions follow this route daily in the company of a priest, tracing the Catholic Church's "Fourteen Stations of the Cross."

Another site believed to be a possible site for the crucifixion and burial of Jesus is Gordon's Garden Tomb. If this is accepted as the site for Christ's crucifixion and burial, then Jesus would have been led to the right from Via Dolorosa, going north, up Solomon Street and out through the Damascus Gate. The procession would have proceeded about two blocks outside the gate to a side street corner.

It was on this street that Golgotha may have been.

THERE ARE NO crosses on either site, not even for the benefit of tourists, Fisher said. He added that history records that Christ was nailed to the cross as a criminal would have been.

Fisher said many people debate whether the cross was T-shaped or X-shaped. "I'm not sure that anyone could say what shape the cross actually was. In my own mind, I simply picture it as a T-shaped cross, with a cross piece on an upright piece. Some people insist that the cross was just an upright stake, but there is no way to prove or disprove what shape the cross was."

After Jesus had died, Joseph of Arimathaea, a secret disciple, asked for the privilege of burying Jesus in Joseph's own tomb. It was quite common then for people to prepare their tombs for their families, while they were all still alive. Joseph was a rich man who had a tomb, but no one was buried in it, and so he was allowed to take the body of Jesus down and to lay it in the tomb.

The women who had been followers and friends of Jesus followed to see where the tomb was, but no one actually believed that Jesus was going to rise from the dead. His enemies were among the few who remembered He had predicted His resurrection and asked Pilate to place a guard of soldiers over the tomb so that no one could come and steal the body, then claim Christ had risen from the dead.

CHRIST'S OWN disciples thought that all was lost, Fisher said.

Two disciples with whom Jesus talked on the way to Emmaus after His resurrection were recorded in the Gospel of Luke as saying they had hoped "this was the Messiah." Luke put the statement into the past perfect tense, which meant that their hope was dead and over.

The tomb was sealed with the Roman seal, and it was against the law to break it without authority.

There is still a round stone at Gordon's Tomb that is said to be the same stone rolled over the entrance to Jesus tomb. This stone is about four feet in diameter, Fisher said.

"One man could move it if he was strong and used a pry pole. Most women would have trouble moving it." The tomb was simple a cave with benches hewn in the side to lay bodies on.

The Jews did not embalm their bodies in those days, but wrapped them in clothes with spices to avoid stench of the decaying body and then renewed the spices periodically so the tomb would be fresh smelling. This is what they did with Jesus, Fisher said.

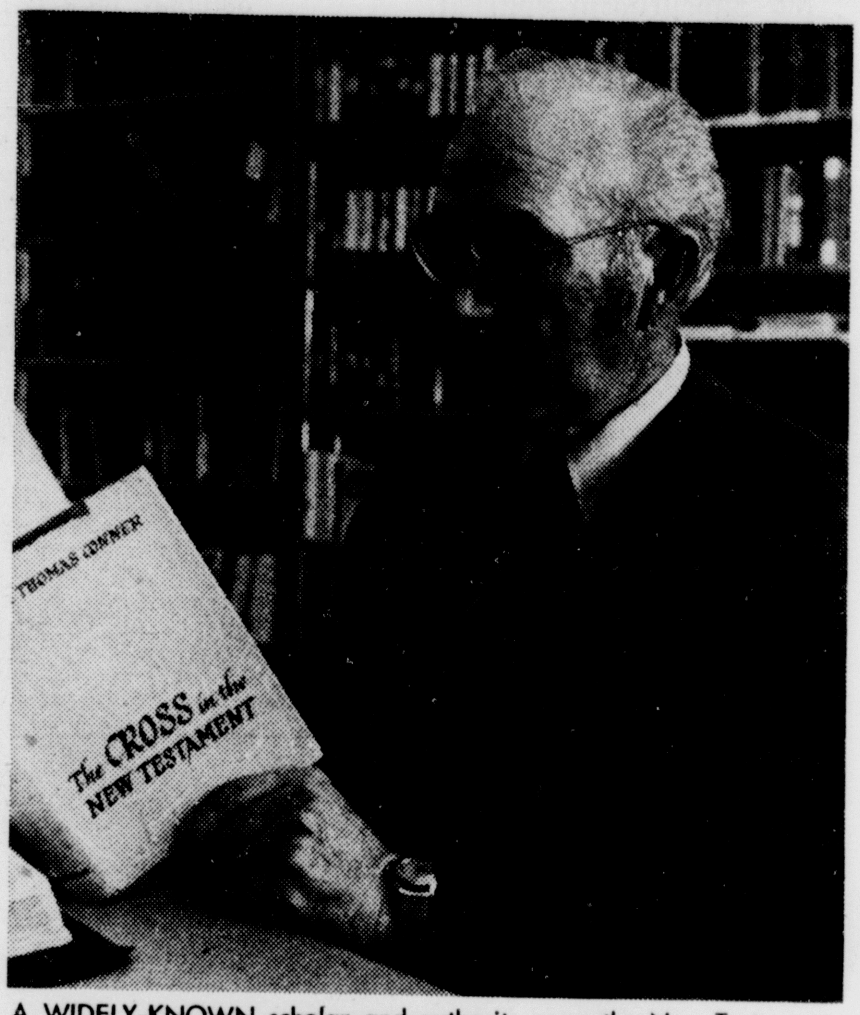
THE WOMEN came back the day after the Sabbath, our Saturday, to finish their job of wrapping him in spiced clothes. On their way they asked who was going to roll the stone away. However, when they arrived the stone was already rolled back.

Matthew records that the Roman soldiers became like dead men, because of the "blaze of glory when Christ arose from the grave," said Fisher. The women found the Resurrection hard to believe.

"I think this is a good reason to believe that you can't explain the Resurrection stories as some have tried to, as creations of the Christians who were trying to palm off a risen Jesus. Christ appeared to his followers in such a way that they recognized him, so that the Resurrection itself has become the primary foundation upon which the Christian religion was built."

Fisher offered three evidences that he said are substantial proof of the Resurrection of Christ.

One was the empty tomb which, he said, has never been satisfactorily explained by the enemies of Jesus or by anyone else who has denied the reality of the Resurrection. Another proof is that an utter change in the disciples took place. From the time of His Crucifixion to the time of Pentecost — a time Christ has promised would come when they would have the "power of the Holy Spirit" of God — they were "skulking cowards," Fisher said. "They became roaring lions and evangelists."



A WIDELY-KNOWN scholar and authority upon the New Testament, Dr. Fred L. Fisher continues to read and to do research that adds to his knowledge of his subject.

"THE FINAL proof to all who love and know Him is the reality of Jesus in our own hearts. We know He is alive because He lives in us. No one could ever really believe in the truth of the Resurrection until he accepts Christ as Lord and unless Christ becomes real in the individual's life."

"That's the reason for Easter and why He came," Biblical scholar Dr. Fisher said. "He died for all of us."

A GUIDING PRINCIPLE of the speech evaluation and therapy program for pre-school children of the Marin Easter Seal Society is that it must be fun — with time even for a lively romp such as the one this small girl is enjoying with Speech Pathologist Grace Almon. Additional Emme Gilman photos on Pages M10 and M11 show other devices and techniques used to make therapy an enjoyable experience for the youg participants.

A Helping Hand For Marin Children From Easter Seals

"Where Did You Go? Out. What Did You Do? Nothing."

Thus ran the title of an essay by Robert Paul Smith, published in 1957 by W. W. Norton and Co.

For a number of Marin County pre-school children, Robert Paul Smith's title might be paraphrased as follows:

"Where did you go? Out. What could you say? Nothing."

These are the youngsters whose speech, unhappily, is unintelligible to their playmates and to others outside their home. Indeed, they are often imperfectly understood within their own families.

THEY ARE BOYS and girls carrying a heavy handicap which, if not corrected, will grow almost intolerable with the start of their school years. Usually they can understand readily enough what is said to them. But in every other way, they are as badly off as if they were foreign children in a country where they do not know the language.

They cannot ask questions, explain happenings or start a friendly conversation.

At this very critical time in their development, just when they should be entering into and getting to know the world beyond their homes, they find they cannot even talk to the "natives."

IT IS these boys and girls handicapped by defective or delayed speech with evaluation and therapy that has been one of the primary functions of the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Marin since 1960.

A paramount premise of the program, under the direction of Speech Pathologist Grace Almon, is that this therapy should be fun for the small participants, as should all learning.

Most of these pre-school children are seen in small groups of three and four for the stimulation they can offer each other. Such stimulation, in turn, encourages a spontaneous, easier flow of speech.

CHILDREN WITH very special needs, however, are accorded the attention of individual therapy sessions.

The Marin Easter Seal Society enrolls between 150 and 170 such children in its speech evaluation and therapy program annually.

"It is important to remember that these youngsters are neither mentally retarded, deaf, emotionally disturbed, nor grossly handicapped neurologically," Mrs. Almon stresses. "But they do require professional assistance in developing the basic tools —speech and language —for social growth and learning."

THE CHILD WHO has mastered speech techniques before entering the kindergarten or first grade classroom is a child far better equipped to cope with that new world than the child unable to express himself. And when the therapy that has enabled him to surmount a speech deficiency has included an introduction to social contacts with other children, and to the fun of group activities, there is an added bonus.

The pre-school speech program is but one of several activities carried on by the Marin Easter Seal Society that also include speech therapy for post-stroke adults, recreation and social development programs for physically and mentally handicapped, an equipment loan program, individual case assistance, information-referral follow-up services, and professional education.

ALL THESE direct service programs rely primarily for their financial support upon the annual sale of Easter Seals, now in thousands of Marin homes.

James W. McClintock, president of the Marin society, in a pre-Easter report, noted that the month-long campaign then was running about even with 1971 returns, but added that receipts equal to 1971 contributions would still leave the Easter Seal Society about 12 per cent short of the $37,000 goal it feels necessary this year to meet the greater costs of providing services for an ever-increasing number of Marinites, young and old, who need the help of Easter Seal rehabilitation programs.

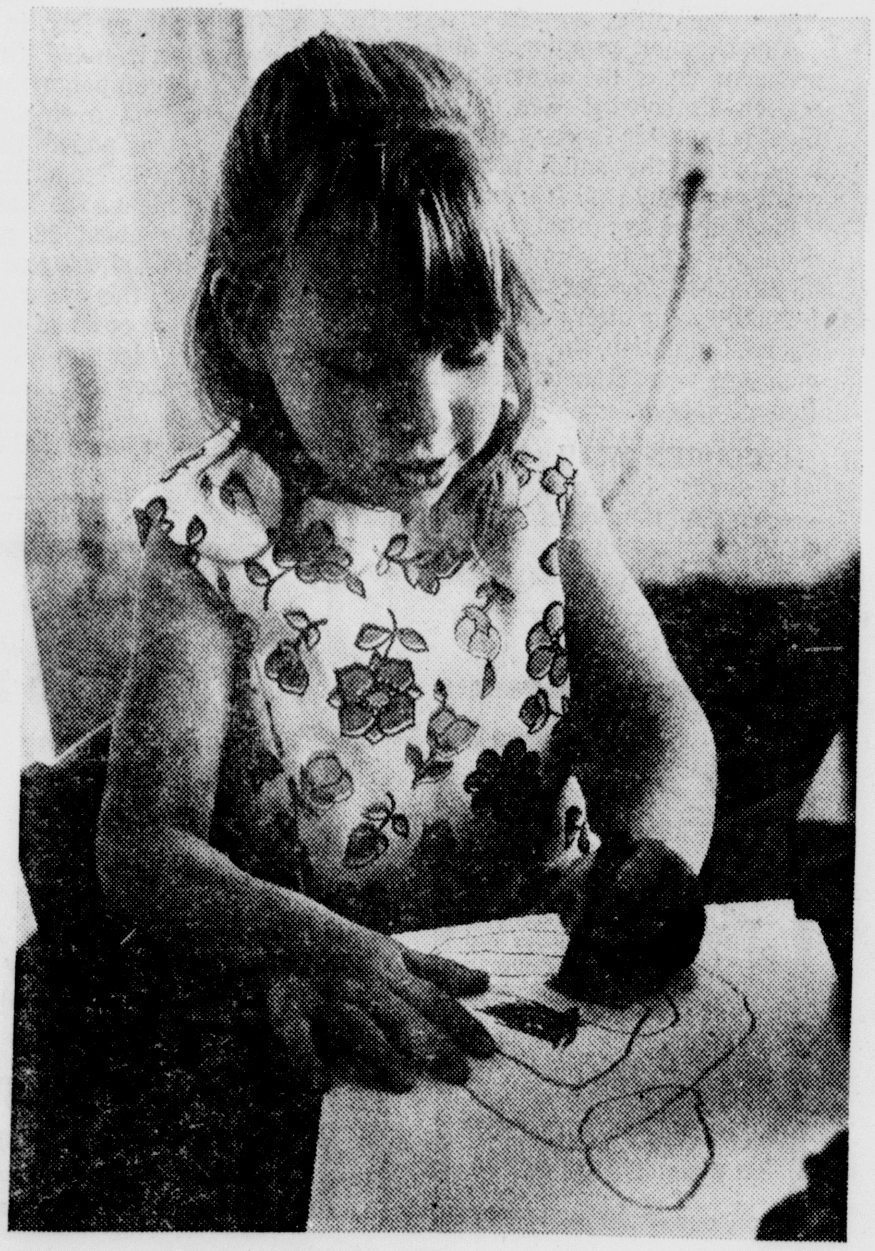
A TEA PARTY, even a make-believe one, requires social conversation. And so these two little girls find themselves speaking frequently and freely as they take part in a lady-like social affair at the Easter Seal headquarters at 1601 Second St., San Rafael.

THE LOOK ON this small boy's smiling face demonstrates the approach that the East Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Marin takes in its work with pre-scho boys and girls with speech problems — that the corrective therapy should be fun for t



AT LEFT, a vital aspect of the Marin Easter Seal speech therapy program for pre-school children with speech difficulties is planning the work to be interesting and fun for the small participants. This little girl is engrossed in a charcoal drawing. And what would be more natural than for her to discuss it with her playmates and with Speech Pathologist Grace Almon, once it is completed? At right, a small boy strives for just the right enunciation as he offers a remark, triggered by his enjoyment of the toy animals before him. The children in the program, Mrs. Almon stresses, are not mentally retarded nor emotionally distrubed, but simply boys and girls who have trouble in making their speech intelligible to others. It is all-important, she adds, that they be rid of this handicap before they begin the great adventure of their school years.

Away From The TV Cameras, Jean Stapleton Is No 'Dingbat'

By JUNE CARROLL
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Jean Stapleton, the irresistible dingbat Edith with the loping trot and glass-shattering voice on "All in the Family" (CBS-TV), lives in a rented pink house in Los Angeles with her husband, theatrical director William Putch, 12-year-old daughter Debby, 10-year-old son John, a cat named Frisky, and a fluffy dog named Rusty.

Rusty just might be a Ttum (mutt, spelled backwards).

As the children and Mr. prepared to leave for a shopping tour, Miss Stapleton doled out the children's allowances, gave a few motherly words of advice, and saw them to the door. They left, and we sat in the sunny living room overlooking the swimming pool.

WHEN I ASKED her about the success of "All in the Family," she attributed most of it to the brilliant writing, direction, and acting of her co-workers.

"We're almost like a little stock company — except we four always play the same parts," Miss Stapleton commented. Norman Lear, the show's producer, saw her in New York and asked her to read for him. She read three different times before she got the part.

"He's a very careful caster," she said and smiled. "I was thrilled at the very first script, of course. It was so fresh and new. We made two pilots and both were dropped by the network. A year and a half later CBS bought the show.

"Now, of course, the pattern of our lives has changed. We spend six months out here while I tape the shows. The children are in school here, and in May, when we finish shooting, we go back home."

HOME, TO THE Putch family, is a comfortable seven-room winterized log cabin in the middle of Caledonia State Park near Gettysburg, Pa. Putch runs the Totem Pole Playhouse, a summer theater a few miles from their home. They have spent every summer there since 1958 when they were married. They became engaged in the box office of the theater when she came to visit him there on her day off from the musical "The Bells Are Ringing," with Judy Halliday, on Broadway.

Their welcome home to Pennsylvania last year was staggering, she said. She had just won the Emmy for her performance on "All in the Family."

A private plane met them at the airport and flew them to the local air strip where they were met with a red carpet, a police escorted motorcade, and a banner proclaiming, "Jean Stapleton slept here," in the courthouse plaza. The high school band serenaded them while planes saluted them from overhead.

"I NEVER realized the enormous impact that television has on the public," Miss Stapleton said. "It really is overwhelming to think that more people see you on a TV show in one night than they do in a whole season on summer stock. Of course, the difference the Emmy made in the attendance at the theater was astounding."

JEAN STAPLETON appears with co-star Carroll O'Connor in a scene in their roles as Edith and Archie Bunker in the popular CBS-TV series, "All in the Family." Off-screen, she's a very different Jean.

Bill Putch's Totem Pole Teater, occupying a former dance hall, burned to the ground in 1969, along with two decades of sets and costumes. For a while he was tempted to return to New York. But neighbors and patrons were so devastated by the loss that they chipped in, and with his help they raised $98,000 for a new concrete-block edifice, two turntables for revolving stages, and a stage 50 feet wide.

Everything was donated by the public, and the new theater was erected in eight months.

JEAN STAPLETON has not made it overnight. She appeared on Broadway in "Damn Yankees" and in "Funny Girl" with Barbra Streisand. She toured with Frank Fay in "Harvey" and in "Come Back Little Sheba" with Shirley Booth. Her motion pictures have included "Cold Turkey" with Dick Van Dyke and "Klute" with Jane Fonda.

When she returns home this summer she will do "Dark at the Top of the Stairs," and one of her favorite plays, "Everybody Loves Opal."

"Opal," she said, "is like Edith. She hasn't a mean thought in her head. Actually, my goal is to get away from that character when I play stock. Last year I did 'Hello Dolly,' which was a departure. This summer I'll also play the mother in 'Butterflies Are Free.' I do feel that all the

THE SISTINE CHAPEL Choir, under the direction of Monsignore Domenico Bartolucci, in selections by Maestro Bartolucci and Giovanni Pierluigi da Palestrina, will be heard in a half-hour program of "Music of the Resurrection" Easter Sunday at 10:30 a.m. on Channels 3 and 4. The special was taped in the Sistine Chapel at Vatican City.

ANTHONY QUINN, standing, as Cardinal Lakota, is overwhelmed to learn that the assemblage of Cardinals has elected him the new Pope, in a scene from "The Shoes of the Fisherman." The three-hour motion picture will be shown Easter Sunday at 7:30 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10.

New On The Stereo Scene —

By JOHN SUNIER

By now most fans of the late Janis Joplin realize that her model was the world's greatest blues singer, Bessie Smith.

John Hammond of Colubia Records has embarked on a massive recording project to assemble the entire recorded output of the "Empress of the Blues." They will be contained on five two-disc albums, of which the first pair are "The World's Greatest Blues Singer" (GP 33) and "Any Woman's Blues" (G 30126).

Every effort was made to preserve the thrilling vocal quality of the original scratchy 78s while cleaning up the sound as much as possible. Rechanneling for stereo was abandoned for the sake of sound purity.

A system built by a Columbia engineer eliminates nearly all scratch and extraneous noise without affecting the sound of the actual music. The result is a greatly improved "presence" over the earlier 1951 series of four Columbia Bessie Smith LPs.

The arrangement chronolgically is interesting as well. The first two sides of the first album contain her very earliest 1923 recording sessions while the last two sides contain her latest sessions in 1931 and 32. When the entire set of 10 LPs is stacked later on the changer in sequence, it will be possible to go through the entire Bessie Smith repertory in chronological order, only turning over the stack once at the mid-point. (You realize, of course, that anyone doing that would have to be totally out of their head! Besides, my automatic turntable only stacks six LPs anyway.)

"CHICAGO' IS one of the best of the rock-with-brass groups. "Chicago II" (KGP 24) is a two-disc set in which the prime work is a suite titled "It Better End Soon," offering Chicago's view on the subject of social change. My favorites were "In the Country" and "Memory of Love."

Though the brass work is seldom as skilled as that of the average jazz big band, most of these tracks have a nice propulsive feel of the kind that also distinguishes the work of Blood, Sweat and Tears.

"THE BYRDS (Untitled)" is the title of Columbia G 30127, another double-disc album and the Byrds' tenth.

This seminal group in the rock phenomenon has endured in one form or another since the whole thing was in its cradle back in 1964. In this package they present recent concert tapes of rock super-classics like "Positively Fourth Street," "Mr. Tambourine Man," and "Mr. Spaceman" on the first disc, plus a 16-minute trip on "Eight Miles High" that tears up the show.

The second disc is devoted to more recent songs, of which "Take a Whiff" is a winner . . . an old Leadbelly number from many years ago in new guise.

SANTANA'S "Abraxas" (Columbia KC 30130 must now be owned by everyone who might possibly want it, but nevertheless I'll note that it's an LP that should be in every rock collection, no matter how modest. The wonderful blend of Latino, Soul, Jazz and Rock that Santana achieves cannot be described in words. Just listen to "Black Magic Woman" or 'Samba Pa Ti," and you'll see.

Again, the album boasts extraordinary cover art.

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

O. J. Simpson, star running back for the Buffalo Bills football team, will play a guest role with Glenn Ford in the latter's "Cade's County" series.

Frank Sinatra returned to greasepaint and sound stage to film several television commercials for the National Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

Gene Hackman, a nominee for best actor in "The Last Picture Show," will make his first appearance on the Academy Award presentations April 10.

Art Linkletter will narrate "A Billion and Three," an hour-long documentary for World Vision International dealing with child care centers.

Walt Disney Productions will release a new children's publication, "Disneyland Magazine," to be published and distributed via supermarkets across the country.

Bud Yorkin and Norman Lear, producers of "All in the Family," have launched a merchandising program with a campaign promoting "Archie Bunker for President" and "Archie Bunker for Prime Minister" of Canada.

Sandy Duncan of television's "Funny Face" has been named Woman of the Year in broadcasting by the Hollywood Radio and Television Society.

THE SAN RAFAEL High School Jazz Ensemble, above, will be one of the musical groups featured in "The Young Sound of Spring" special Thursday at 8 p.m. on Channel 7. It is the 11th program in KGO-TV's much-praised "Young Sound" series presenting youthful Bay Area school and community musicians. Bill Bixby of television's "The Courtship of Eddie's Father" series will host the Thursday show.

Jean Stapleton At Home Is Prettier And Modest

years I've played in stock have prepared me for the role of Edith."

MUCH PRETTIER and younger looking off screen, Miss Stapleton is a modest woman who prefers talking about her husband and children and co-workers. She has none of the egotism associated with actors.

"I do feel that live audiences nourish actors," she continued. "It's one of the reason I look forward to working in the theater in summer. The kids love it, too. They prefer painting scenery for their father's productions to going to camp." She smiled and her eyes twinkled. "Frankly, I don't blame them"

SWITCH FATAL FOR THEATER

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A Baltimore movie house was forced to close two months after it responded to public protests and switched from films rated "X" to family fare.

The Irvington Theater changed formats after local priests and nuns led neighborhood residents on picket lines in front of the theatre.

It closed after the manager said a John Wayne movie drew only $400 business in a week.

Marin Poets' Corner

APRIL SUNDAY

The morning sunlight
was trying to push away the window shade.
Her gentle breathing,
next to me,
the only sound in the world.
The sun was trying,
in envy,
to capture her warmth.
I held her close to me
and knew that the sun would always seem,
somehow,
cold.

REVERIE

Let me live,
The life I want to live
And take not from me
The challenge and force,
(An inborn feeling)
That drives my will,
Fertile with seeds of hope,
Ambition the water of my dreams,
And let these visions bloom
Bright and forever
Till the weeds of age
Choke my flowering reverie.

AT RIGHT, one of the devices used by the Marin Easter Seal Society to encourage pre-school youngsters to forget their speech inhibitions and talk freely is an old switchboard that was transplanted to the Easter Seal headquarters in San Rafael from Arequipa near Fairfax at the time that property changed in use from a tuberculosis sanitarium to a Girl Scout camp. To play telephone, you must, of necessity, talk. And talk that might otherwise be frightening becomes, instead, all part of the fun. At left, a blackboard and chalk serve Speech Pathologist Grace Almon as tools as she works with two attentive lads in the Easter Seal program. Photographer Emme Gilman took the pictures on these pages in 1969 when the children shown in the photos were then enrolled in the speech therapy program.

Busy Cruise Year For The West Coast

Free Folder Lists All The Voyages

Used to be when Californians or folks from Vancouver decided to enjoy an ocean cruise, they hied themselves to New York or Florida.

No more. During the coming year more than 200 pleasure voyages will sail from West Coast ports, undoubtedly a record in the trend that started on the Nile with Cleopatra.

Upcoming cruise destinations include the full spectrum between Capetown and Ensenada, with lengths from five months to three days. Ships range from the time-tested President Cleveland and Mariposa to new entries like P & O's Spirit of London and Norse-flavored Royal Viking Star. These are all passenger liners, cruising on rigid schedules and providing the ultimate in dining, service and entertainment.

THERE ARE also scores of freighters, luxurious enough for Onassis, carrying only 12 passengers and travelling on more flexible timetables to accommodate the loading and unloading of cargo.

Air-sea cruise packages are growing in favor. By flying one way, passengers can fit a relaxing ocean cruise into a relatively short vacation at about the same cost.

The Trans-Pacific Passenger Conference, 311 California St., San Francisco, 94104, has a free folder listing hundreds of cruises off the West Coast. Travel agents and local line offices can furnish more details, including fares, which range from under $20 a day to above $300 depending on ship and type of stateroom.

SHIPBOARD FRIENDSHIPS, old and new, are a highlight of cruises in the vast and varied Pacific. The South Seas will be only one of the destinations for which cruise ships will be departing from West Coast ports in 1972. It is going to be a record year for ocean cruising.

MEALS ARE included in the fares, while drinks and tips are extra.

Following are samples of anchors-aweigh attractions for the balance of 1972 and the forepeak of 1973:

ALASKA: Princess Italia (Princess Cruises) launches her summer two-week excursions up the Inland Passage on June 15, from San Francisco. Monterey (Pacific Far East Line) goes north from Los Angeles June 20. Oronsay (P&O Lines) starts her glacier runs June 25. Additional dates include four each for Italia, Monterey and Oronsay.

CARIBBEAN: P&O offers several one-way cruises to Bermuda with rum-island stops en route. Canberra (12 days to Port Everglades) sails April 14 from Los Angeles, and P&O lists seven more through early '73. Princess Italia ventures a 34-day round trip April 21. Royal Viking Star (Royal Viking Line) debuts with a 31-day "Carib" run-round Nov. 10.

MEXICO: Princess Italia lists four choices of seven, 11 or 14 days' duration between March 17 and May 30, eight more between Sept. 15 and Dec. 29. Royal Viking Star tests Puerto Vallarta, Manzanillo, Acapulco and Mazatlan for two weeks on Dec. 19. Arcadia (P&?) offers a week's cruising Dec. 13 and 21.

EUROPE: P&O tenders nine one-way trips through the Panama Canal and the Caribbean to Cherbourg and Southampton from San Francisco. These take about three weeks. Royal Viking Star suggests a 37-day, one-way cruise via Panama and the West Indies to north European ports on April 29, 1973 (plan ahead!).

HAWAII: More than 30 sailings, and wide choices: steam down and fly back (or vice versa), stop over for another ship, or cruise the whole way and visit the Outer Islands. There's a ship every week or two. PFEL sends Monterey to Honolulu and back for 10 days on April 10, repeats May 29, June 8 and six times July through September. APL has President liners every 21 days or so, starting with the Cleveland April 9. Princess Italia invades Hawaii for the first time on a 17-day pair of four-island hops, Aug. 25 (from San Francisco via Vancouver) and Oct. 10 from Los Angeles, via Ensenada. PFEL's former Matson liners offer 18-day Hawaii cruises Oct. 12 and Dec. 22; 10-day jaunts Nov. 28, Dec. 11 and next Jan. 20.

SOUTH PACIFIC P&O and PFEL ships are scheduling more than 15 cruises averaging 40 days. Try Monterey April 19, Mariposa June 16, or Orsova June 21. Royal Viking Star has a 12-port, 46-day offering next Jan. 2.

CIRCLE PACIFIC (including Orient): These average about two month's duration: Orsova June 21, Arcadia Sept. 14, Monterey Sept. 28, Arcadia Jan. 10, Royal Viking Star, Feb. 18, 1973.

ORIENT: President Cleveland April 9 is the first of APL's 13 Orient loops during the next 12 months. Ten are 43-day roundtrips to Honolulu, Japan, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Manila; three are somewhat abbreviated. Starting April 13, Orient Overseas Line (Oriental Jade, Pearl) has eight sailings on a 65-day schedule with longer port-stops for freight. Brazil Maru of Mitsui-OSK Line makes 23-day one-way trips May 22, Sept. 20 and in January and May next year.

ROUND THE WORLD: Six 121-days circumnavigations by OOL, June 1 through Dec. 14. President Wilson leaves next Jan. 5, visiting 23 ports in 95 days.

SOUTH AMERICA (East Coast): Brazil Maru March 20, July 19, next November and March.

PARTY CRUISES' (three or four days): Princess Italia April 7, May 26, Sept. 12, Oct. 27 and Dec. 1; Oronsay July 23. APL offers overnight runs between San Francisco and Los Angeles about every three weeks, starting April 9.

Outside the Trans-Pacific Passenger Conference, Sitmar Cruises' 25,000 ton Fairsea is currently engaged in a busy Los Angeles to Mexico schedule, and is slated to be joined by her new sister ship, the Fairwind, this July, after which Sitmar service will be expanded to the Caribbean. German Atlantic Line's Hamburg departs April 10 on a Circle Pacific voyage, and leaves June 10 for Europe to North Cape, Russia and other points. And West Tours will be operating three small ships this summer between Seattle-Vancouver and Alaska.

Smith River Claims Title Of U.S. Easter Lily Capital

What do you suppose, Bunny? Ninety percent of all the Easter lilies sold in the Unites States are grown around the coastal town of Smith River, tucked between the redwoods and the surf in the northwestern corner of California.

A score of growers produce an annual harvest of some 10 million of the fragrant white flowers on 500 acres, under conditions which were found to be ideal when Japanese lily exports dried up in World War II. Each July a 12-mile coastal strip blazes with lilies, drawing visitors from all over the world. That's when Smith River has its annual Easter-in-July festival, with floats of white and colorful hybird lilies, bathing beauties and the works.

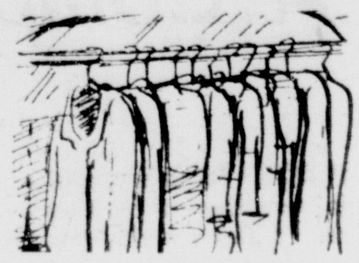
But Easter isn't in July, so the Smith River growers have to improve on Mother Nature's schedule.

Mature bulbs (lilies all grow from bulbs) are dug up in October, shipped to cold-storage depots around the country, and held at 40-degree temperatures for six weeks. Then they are potted and brought to bloom under conditions of controlled temperature. By Easter the creamy white bellshaped blossoms appear in nurseries and florist shops.

Del Norte County, where Smith River is located, has botanical goliaths to contrast with the delicate lilies. In Jedediah Smith Redwoods State Park, for example, vacationers camp and fish in the shade of 350-foot Sequoia Smepervirens, the coast redwood trees which rank as the world's tallest living things.

Smith River, Del Norte County and their delightful neighbors are fully described in a new 48-page brochure, which the Redwood Empire Assn. will send prospective visitors for 25 cents to cover postage and handling. Write them at 476 Post St., San Francisco, Calif., 94102.

A Yosemite Trail A Century Old And Still In Use



By SHIRLEY SARGENT

A century ago an important new trail from Glacier Point to Yosemite Valley was opened. An observer named John Muir recorded that the trail "leads . . . down the face of the mountain by an easy grade to a point back of Leidig's Hotel, and has over half a dozen Inspiration Points."

What Muir considered an "easy grade" was a rise of over 3,200 feet in three and one-half miles! Rocks, roots, trees and brush were replaced by 53 zigzags in a construction and engineering feat that took only five months.

Prosaically, and inaccurately, the new route was dubbed the Four-Mile-Trail rather than being named for either of its builders, James McCauley or John Conway. McCauley (1837-1911) was a son of Erin, a stowaway to America, who had mined in Idaho, Montana, and California. At Hite's Cove, near Yosemite Valley, he had built a wagon road before visiting Yosemite in the spring of 1870. James M. Hutchings hired McCauley as a tourist guide and later persuaded him to undertake the trail construction.

IN THE FALL of 1871, he and John Conway (1830-1917), a massive Pennsylvanian with experience in trail and road building, surveyed the route. Both men were rugged and constructed over a mile of the trail before halted by winter storms. Early the following spring, McCauley borrowed money from miner friends, hired men, and pushed the work. His crew consisted of "seven nationalities . . . himself (Irish), one Englishman, one Scotchman, a Chinese, two Indians, one American, and a Mexican lad who worked best of any."

As soon as Union Point, a couple of miles up, was reached, McCauley obtained permission from Galen Clark, the Yosemite Valley guardian, to allow tourists to travel that far. For a toll of $1, they could climb to Union Point, enjoy the view, lunch and have coffee.

McCauley needed every dollar he could raise to pay, feed and lodge his crew, and supply them with tools and black powder. He borrowed $2500, which took him thirty months to repay, and invested $3500 in the trail.

WHILE McCAULEY scrounged for money, Conway supervised the construction until an "accident happened to me imperiling my life." Still the trail was in regular use by June when one of its users was author Helen Hunt Jackson. She reported, "It is broad, smooth, and well-protected on the outer edge, in all dangerous places, by large rocks; so that, although it is far the steepest trail out of the Valley, zigzagging back and forth on a sheer granite wall, one rises up it with little alarm or giddiness, and with such a sense of gratitude that the dollar toll seems too small."

In the one hundred years since its opening, thousands of people have walked or ridden the trail, and thousands of dollars have been spent to maintain and improve it. Many sections have been reconstructed, lessening its steepness yet lengthening it.

If accuracy, rather than tradition, ruled, today the FourMile-Trail would be called the Five-Mile Trail.

Yesterday still lives in Yosemite. The Four- (or Five) Mile-Trail will be climbed by many visitors again this season. Next time you're in Yosemite take a hike on the trail, at least as far as Union Point.

A Complex Of Florida Attractions Beckons Tourists

POSING for a snapshot with one of the jolly denizens of the Country Bear Jamboree at Disneyworld, this country's newest amusement colossus, is Sue MacMillan, a travel consultant with Redwood Travel Advisors, San Rafael. She recently visited northeast Florida and is complex of tourist attractions — Disneyworld, Cypress Gardens, the Kennedy aerospace flight center, etc. — as a guest of Delta Airlines. At right she reports upon her trip and northeastern Florida's potential as a vacation destination for Marinites and other Californians.

By SUE MacMILLAN

One is immediately caught up in the breath-taking vista of floral color in Cypress Gardens, a tropical wonderland of Cypress trees, walls of bougainvilles, and thousand upon thousands of multicolored flowers from all points of the world.

The main attraction of Cypress Gardens is its spectacular water show, but its flora is an integral part of its appeal.

THE KENNEDY Space flight center, about 90 minutes drive from Cypress Gardens, represents the sum and total of our futuristic pioneering attempts. It offers an excellent guided tour of the facilities, and is a "must" for tourists of all ages.

The main point of interest to me, as a California Travel Agent, was how Disneyworld stacked up against "our" Disneyland.

The similarities between the two are simply amazing. The completed portion of Disneyworld (only a fraction of the total 27,000 acres) has all of the present attractions of Disneyland with the exception of the Matterhorn and the Pirates of The Caribbean. It has one thing that Disneyland didn't have until last weekend: The Country Bear Jamboree; a rootin', tootin', swinging combo of mountaineer-type brown bears with banjos, washbuckets, kazoos . . . you name it! As with many other Disney creations, the lovable bears are very realistic machines, filled with Disney charm and elan.

DISNEYWORLD at present is but a forecast of a vast social experiment. When completed, it will have something for everyone: condominiums, hotels-motels and even wild campgrounds for those hardier types. Visitors to Disneyworld will have unlimited access to all transportation facilities: monorails, steamboats, trams and railroads.

In addition, all sports areas are open - golf, sailing, horseback riding, archery and various childrens' activity programs.

The northwestern Florida area: Cypress Gardens/Cape Kennedy/Disneyworld is a very popular destination for residents of the East and an up-and coming attraction for Westerners. Disneyworld is almost completely booked through 1972 as a result of the interest, and many low-cost three and four-day "packages" are available through your travel agent.

A Merging Of Holiday And Studies

What's the best way to combine a vacation with education?

Summer school in Mexico has been the answer for hundreds of thousands of North Americans since 1921 when Mexico City's famed National University opened its portals to foreign students.

Now, schools south of the border host some 30,000 "foreigners" every summer. Students range from pre-kindergarten toddlers to doctoral candidates. Courses range from guitar-playing and folklore to nuclear physics and business law.

Summer sessions usually run from June through August, from one to 12 weeks, with tuition costs ranging from about $40 to more than $500, the latter usually for a full summer including room, board, workshops and extensive excursions. Room and board in private homes selected by schools starts at about $4 daily.

A Mexicana Airlines-compiled list of summer schools in Mexico is available free on request from that airline's office at 275 Post St., San Francisco, 94108.

The Book Pages

"Every senator in this chamber is partly responsible for sending 50,000 young Americans to an early grave. This chamber reeks of blood. . . . It doesn't take courage at all for a congressman, or a senator, or a President to wrap himself in the Flag and say we're staying in Vietnam. Because it isn't our blood that is being shed. But we are responsible for those young men and their lives and their hopes. And if we don't end this foolish, damnable war, those young men will someday curse us for our pitiful willingness to let the Executive carry the burden the Constitution puts on us." — Sen. George McGovern, September, 1970.

The Quiet Senator From South Dakota

McGOVERN: A BIOGRAPHY by Robert Sam Anson; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 304 pages, $7.95.

By DON KEOWN

'Tis the season for campaign biographies of presidential aspirants. And 'tis the practice of all such biographers to begin their books with an assertion that their work is "unauthorized" and thus not the usual polemic to publicize a candidate and to promote his campaign.

Robert Sam Anson, Time magazine correspondent, does the expected in the introduction to his "McGovern: A Biography."

George McGovern, he admits, requested that he write the book, and agreed to submit freely and openly to questioning. But, he adds, the South Dakota senator now seeking the Democratic Party's presidential nomination also relinquished all prepublication censorial rights over the manuscript.

There is more reason to think that Anson is being candid than is true with most such biographers. In the first place, the book reads as a honest, though definitely admiring, study of its subject, and contains a great deal of intimate and critical material that George McGovern, although never a secretive man about either his public or private lives, would no doubt prefer to have gone unmentioned.

Then, too, there is good cause to suppose that George McGovern has little to lose — and possibly even much to gain — from a frank and probing analysis of his actions and his character. His career and his life generally have been conducted upon such a high plane that there was little danger of even the most intensive search uncovering information that would be truly damaging. Indeed, George McGovern seems to suffer, in the public mind, from an image that is too high and too pure — unblemished to the point of blandness.

"Is it possible that Senator McGovern just might win the Democratic nomination and then go on to win the presidency? There is something rather terrifying in the prospect. Good men have made it to the White House so infrequently that the thought of George McGovern's becoming President is positively unnerving. We have had, of course, great Presidents, men of his intelligence, courage, vision, high character, and other admirable qualities, but genuine human decency has not been a common trait. George McGovern is one of the rare good men in national politics. It is difficult to imagine his being vindictive or inconsiderate or indifferent to human suffering. His decency as a human being, let it be confessed, is a distinct liability."

In short, so good and decent a man is George McGovern that he seems dull in this era of demagoguery and flamboyance. He is long on decency — and foresight, as he proved in his early and steadfast opposition to our tragic Vietnamese involvement — and short on "charisma," as that over-used and mis-used term is generally employed today.

Anson comes up with very little in the way of human frailties or misconduct to enliven the McGovern image.

True, he demonstrates that McGovern is a man of greater than normal ambition. But that is hardly a flaw in a political figure. He makes the point that McGovern, for all his deep and idealistic commitment, is a man who rarely displays or shows emotion, a trait that is at the heart of his difficulties in selling himself and his programs to the public. Many voters have become more enamored with the sizzle than the steak. And Anson does take note of certain inconsistencies and shrinking from confrontation that might be regarded as weaknesses in the McGovern record, but these are few and minor in comparison with the performances of most politicians.

What Anson, his readers, and the McGovern campaign is left with is the biography of a man so totally honest, so very considerate of others, so abhorrent of anything that smacks of demagoguery that his record for taking early and unpopular stands and fighting them through courageously to victory or defeat is largely overlooked and unrecognized. A commonplace appearance and a soft voice contribute to the impression of a quiet and ordinary man, when is actually eloquent and extraordinary.

Anson, who has a special, personal reason for identifying with George McGovern's stand on Southeast Asia, having himself as a war correspondent been captured and held prisoner by Cambodian guerrillas and North Vietnamese, has written a plain-spoken, direct, unsensationalized biography of the kind that George McGovern can appreciate. It does explain the man even if it does not dramatize or really "humanize" him.

We meet George McGovern, minister's son, debate star student, war hero, young minister, college teacher, unorthodox bureaucrat, politician, legislator, humanitarian and candidate.

As for the McGovern candidacy, Anson says it will "depend upon the country's perception of itself. In their relatively brief history, Americans have chosen a variety of men to lead them, both the brave and the weak, the knight and the knave. Not often had they chosen a quietly decent man who offered nothing so much as the promise of belief."

In other words, George McGovern's hopes rest upon the possibility that Americans in 1972 will overcome their immature preoccupation with charisma, television images, grandstanding, racial, class and generation fears and hatreds, etc., and vote instead upon the basis of the man who has most consistently been rightupon the issues, most forthright in making known to the public his stands and his views, and most consistent in adhering to these.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE SCENT OF DANGER by Elisabeth Kyle; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 185 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Newgate Callendar, the New York Times pseudonymous reviewer of crime fiction, becomes especially annoyed over a style he calls "lady prose." Elisabeth Kyle's novel should drive him to distraction.

Along with an insipid writing style, the author combines a tangled and unlikely plot relying heavily upon coincidence with some paper-thin and uninteresting characters. The result is a simply awful book which can claim as its only possible redeeming feature its setting — in the French Riviera region where the flowers for the perfume industry grow.

Young Serena Fern, who seems a particularly stupid English girl, is employed by the domineering and unpleasant American owner of a beauty salon chain, to accompany her to France where Madame Lilith is determined to find and own a long lost and valuable scent formula. To add to the boredom, Serena is being followed by a mystery man whom she might identify as a London murderer. Miss Kyle ties these two plots together through the cheap and easy device of coincidence. And the whole thing drags on to an unexciting conclusion.

OUR FRIENDS in the Marin mineral society should be interested in the sterling-published "Colorful Mineral Identifier," a handy-sized 224-page field manual compiled by Dr. Anthony Tennissen, Lamar University professor of geology, and illustrated beautifully with color photographs by the widely-known German Werner Lieber. Both familiar and rare specimens are included among the 120 plates, and Tennissen's accompanying material is concise and authoritative. The book sells for a bargain $3.50.

New Adventures Of Sir Francis Up To Standards

THE ROMANTIC CHALLENGE by Sir Francis Chichester; Coward McCann and Geoghegan, 255 page, $7.95. Reviewed by Richard B. Lyttle.

The master yachtsman has done it again — taken another venture and written a book about it. Followers of Sir Francis Chichester will be happy to learn that both the venture and the book are up to standards set by previous efforts.

There may have been some who feared anything after "Gypsy Moth Circles the World" would be anticlimactic. Not so. At age 69, the remarkable Sir Francis attempted to sail a 4,000 mile course across the Atlantic in 20 days. Of course, to average 200 miles a day, he felt the job had to be done in winter when winds blow hardest.

There are plenty of adventures in the attempt at his goal. The lean skipper rigs a spinnaker pole out of two broken ones. His Gypsy Moth V is knocked down and Sir Francis suffers a painful leg bruise. He radioes for help. No one answers his call, so he sets things right again and sails on.

Sir Francis is happier with his ship, a 57-foot stay-sail ketch, than he was with the craft he sailed around the world. "The Romantic Challenge" thus avoids much of the cranky and detailed comment the skipper unburdened in opening his circumnavigation book.

In this latest book, Sir Francis confesses that his quest for speed under sail is "almost an obsession," an understatement in the best British tradition. His is full obsession, but it could not take hold of a better man. Who else with the means for such ventures can match Sir Francis in skill and spirit?

One thing misleading about

FRANCIS CHICHESTER
An Atlantic crossing

"The Romantic Challenge" is that it is not romantic. Sir Francis is a technician trying to master a difficult problem. Those expecting the Chichester of "The Lonely Sea and the Sky," the story of his youthful ventures, including the attempted 'round the world flight, will be disappointed here. But while "The Romantic Challenge" may not appeal to the general reader as much as the early book, there is enough in it to warm the blood of any boatman.

An Agent Who Changed Bosses

GEHLEN: SPY OF THE CENTURY By E. H. Cookridge; Random House, 365 pages, $10. Reviewed by D. R. Henriksen.

Espionage is the name of the game in this book. Informative and fast-moving, it is a history buff's delight, covering 50 years of action-packed life of a remarkable man.

The book is about Reinhard Gehlen, a German agent who because of his knack for espionage worked his way up to become Hitler's chief intelligence officer during World War II. He remained in this capacity until the end of the war,but, realizing the Third Reich was failing, made plans for his future after the war. He had all the valuable documents available to him microfilmed and buried the film in steel cannisters. After being taken prisoner by the Americans he offered his valuable archives to them to aid them with their checks on Communism.

So grateful were the Americans for the assistance of this ex-Nazi that they set up a German-run intelligence headquarters at Pullah and put Gehlen in charge. Its main objective was to train and send agents into East Germany and the Soviet Union.

Gehlen assisted G-2, the American Army intelligence in Europe, and later was instrumental in setting up NATO intelligence.

Among the many operations he became involved in was the successful tunnel under the Berlin Wall in 1955-1956, which was put out of operation after nine months. After, it had played a major role in gathering much needed information it came to its end because of a counter-agent in Gehlen's organization.

During Dwight Eisenhower's terms of office in the 1950s Gehlen provided valuable services in setting up intelligence operations in the Mideast.

Naturally he had many enemies, so to keep from being killed he rarely was seen in public and shied away from photographers. At one time the KGB, the East German espionage organization, offered a reward of $100,000 for his assassination.

In 1968 he was asked to retire before he reached his goal in life — to become the chief intelligence officer for NATO. In his view his life work was directed against the spread of Communism, during World War II and later during the Cold War. He is in retirement now somewhere in the Bavarian Alps living in a chalet that he bought with funds from the CIA.

E. H. Cookridge's book contains many inside glimpses of spies, counter-spies, and defectors, and the different methods they employ in their work. Included are accounts of unsuccessful attempts at parachuting agents behind the Iron Curtain and of telephone line splices called "sluices," a technique Gehlen devised. Even remote controlled toy boats were used to lay vital cables across rivers to the communist sectors. Although these failed, it demonstrated the cunningness of Gehlen.

He was born in Eufurt, in 1902, the son of a Prussian book publisher of the upper class minority. In the Army during World War I he served as an artillery gunner, but was introduced to what was to become his life's work when he volunteered to make reconnaissance forays into Poland.

This book, whether it be read for its historical value or sheer reading pleasure, is one of the best books of its kind to be published in quite some time. The author has undoubtedly researched his material beyond what is revealed in his book, so that he retains the upper hand. Maybe it is because Cookridge was himself a victim of Nazi concentration camps that he is able to present this man in such fascinating detail.

A point to be remembered is that Reinhard Gehlen was truly the one man most responsible for the shaping of undercover and clandestine operations in the Cold War.

China Turmoil: Mao's Motive

CHINA RETURNS by Klaus Mehnert; Dutton, 322 pages, $10. Reviewed by Larry Kramer.

Hurray! It's no longer subversive to be interested in mainland China.

At the highest political and diplomatic levels within the United States we now hear references to the People's Republic of China rather than to the Chinese Reds. In the months to come, all things Chinese from politics to porcelains will continue to be topics of conversation and speculation in the United States.

Today it is important that the American people look critically at what the leaders of the People's Republic of China are trying to do.

Klaus Mehnert's new book, "China Returns," makes a significant contribution to such a central understanding. Mehnert does not see China in isolation, either historically or politically.

He is a German journalist who has lived and worked in the Soviet Union, in the United States and in China. Most recently he spent a month in China in the spring of 1971, but unlike many other recent visitors, this was not his first trip. Previously he had been in China in 1929, 1936, 1941-1946 when he taught in several Chinese universities, and in 1957.

Because of his unusual background he is able to present China in terms comprehensible to Americans and he is also in a position to contrast some of the post-revolutionary upheavals in China with events in the Soviet Union in the decades after the October Revolution.

Mehnert is primarily concerned with the Cultural Revolution which rocked China during 1966 and 1967. The German title of his book, "China nach dem Sturm" (China After the Storm) is much more appropriate than the title of the American edition. He provides us with a good deal of insight into the reasons for the Cultural Revolution, what happened during it, why it was suspended, and what the results have been thus far.

Mehnert feels that the Cultural Revolution was initiated by Mao to revitalize the revolutionary spirit in China. Mao sought to avoid what happened in the Soviet Union where revolutionary experimentalism has been replaced by an unbelievably rigid bureaucracy.

Mao could see the same stratification taking place in China. The Chinese tradition of hierarchical organization is so strong that, as Mehnert points out, "by 1956, seven years after the founding of the People's Republic, there are already 30 grades of officialdom, differentiated by a great deal more than title alone. . ."

Mao not only wanted to reverse the bureaucratic stratification process — he wanted much more. According to Mehnert, Mao's goal was to prevent the revolutionary arteries from ever hardening by ". . .creating a new man, a man such as never before existed, either in the West or the East, in Russia or in China. . .And were this new man to be born, then once again the old laws would surely have to be overthrown, and still newer concepts of mankind would arrive to wipe out the old. So in truth the revolution can never end. . ."

The idea that "the Cultural Revolution was first of all a blow against hierarchy and hierarchical thinking" is Mehnert's most significant insight. It clarifies much of the political turmoil and changing leadership picture in China for us. For example, it explains why Liu Shao-chi has been stigmatized as a "revisionist," as "the Chinese Khrushchev."

Liu was neither traitor nor fool. His organizing genius played a vital role in China's development during the 1950s and early '60s. But when Mao came to feel that stability was turning into organizational rigor mortis, then the creator of that stability turned from hero to villain overnight.

Against this larger picture of Mao's objective, Mehnert's description of his visits to communes, brigades, factories and schools takes on new meaning. On every level under Mao's leadership, there has been a concerted effort to prevent the entrenchment of any leadership cadre. Constant demotion of present leaders and promotion to leadership of new faces from the ranks of the Army, the workers and the peasants, is Mao's key to keeping the society fluid and the revolution alive.

Mehnert raises some interesting questions which he cannot answer about what has happened to the Chinese intelligentsia. He was not allowed to visit the universities, many of which were closed during the Cultural Revolution. Those that are now open are much reduced in enrollment.

The intellectual tradition in China has already given the Communists much difficulty. Mao is trying to substitute trained technicians for questioning intellectuals. We should be watching very carefully to see how successful he is in this attempt, because this cuts more sharply against the grain of Chinese tradition than any other aspect of Maoism.

Mehnert has not only written a provocative study of contemporary China, but he has organized "China Returns" in a unique and useful way. The book is divided into four sections. The first section details his observations on his visit, the second is made up of his analysis of the meaning of what he saw, the third provides background for the Cultural Revolution, and the final section is a sampling of current Chinese directives, theories and propaganda.

This structure, separating out the descriptive, interpretive, historical and documentary components, makes it possible for the reader to draw his own conclusions, based on the same data available to Mehnert.

IF YOUR YARD IS SMALL

Jack Kramer, Marinite and the world's busiest author of gardening books, has added another title to his lengthy list of volumes for Charles Scribner's Sons' Garden Library series.

The new book is "Garden Planning for the Small Property," and it is a manual that should have a strong appeal here in Kramer's home county where once roomy estates are now practically extinct and most of us are confined in our gardening to suburb-sized backyard plots and even apartment house terraces.

Kramer wastes no space in getting into the meat of his subject by leading off with a discussion of landscape planning for today's smaller-scaled properties. Such special topics as surfacing, enclosures, canopies, plantings and containers are discussed in detail. So are such still more specific subjects as terrace and doorway gardens herb gardens, rose gardens, planter boxes, problem areas.

And there is a good, informative chapter on basic, general maintenance.

Kramer appends a bibliography, a list of plant sources by mail order in the unlikely event you can't find what you want locally, and the addresses of state offices of the agricultural extension services.

The book, like its predecessors in this well-done series, is nicely designed and generously illustrated with photographs and drawings. Here a second Marinite figures in the finished product, Charles Hoeppner having shared the drawing assignment with Frank Chin Loy. M.K.

Get Back To Nature With Your Own Backyard Vegetable Plot

A desire to return to nature is in evidence throughout the land, and included in this trend is a marked increase in home vegetable gardening. Marin County is no exception to this trend.

There are sufficient reasons to grow vegetables at home, whether it be a motivation to return to a simpler life, the savings to be enjoyed over supermarket prices, or the taste of just-picked produce.

It isn't necessary to have acres of space to grow vegetables. Suburban gardens will accommodate several good crops. And from a time standpoint, no gardener is too busy to indulge himself, at least briefly, in the pleasure of home-grown vegetables.

SPACE-WISE, how much room do a few pole beans take? Actually, these can be grown against a boundary fence where little space is available. Just a few plants will supply a good number of succulent bean dishes.

If the need to conserve space exists, a few tomato plants can be trained up a garage wall, or on a lattice against a back fence. Also, there are semi-dwarf tomatoes which can be grown in pots while other varieties can be grown in tubs with a framework to support the branches.

Nurseries have the tomato varieties recommended for our conditions. These will yield great, edible, returns.

A MOUND OR two of summer squash will provide all one family usually wants. Onions can be grown in any sunny bed — just like a bulb. And how much space does a row of Swiss chard demand?

Unless you're "farming" on a large scale, tending the vegetables should require little time. Pole beans and tomatoes need staking and tying, but that takes only a very little time for a few plants. When you plant onion sets, you don't even have to thin them.

At this time of year, nurseries offer ready-to-plant seedlings of tomatoes, peppers, eggplant. Often cauliflower and celery transplants are available. Some nurseries may have larger-sized, container grown vegetables for setting out in gardens.

Shopping for vegetable transplants and seeds is a fun experience for the entire family. But, then, even more so is the eating of home-grown produce.

There Is No Such Things As Climbing Strawberries

The State Agriculture Department has issued a warning to consumers against the purchase of "climbing strawberries" nursery stock being advertised in California by out-of-state nursery firms.

E. H. McEachern, chief of department's Nursery and Seed Services, described climbing strawberries advertisements as "grossly misleading."

"We have received complaints from people who have planted this nursery stock expecting to have trellises covered with healthy strawberry plants bearing large berries, and who have been bitterly disappointed," McEachern said. "The University of California's experimentation with climbing strawberries has found them very unsatisfactory.

"In fact, Dr. R. S. Bringhurst of the University of California at Davis, one of the nation's outstanding strawberry experts, has also pointed out that in his many years of breeding and testing strawberry plants in California, he has never found a strawberry variety of out-of-state origin that performed well here.

"This is because strawberry plants are very climate-oriented, and those from other areas do not adapt well here."

Plant scientists in California, Oregon and Washington, McEachern said, have determined that there is no botanical basis for applying the term "climbing" to strawberry plants, because a strawberry plant sends out runners, which must root in order to produce a crop of berries.

GARDENER'S CHECKLIST

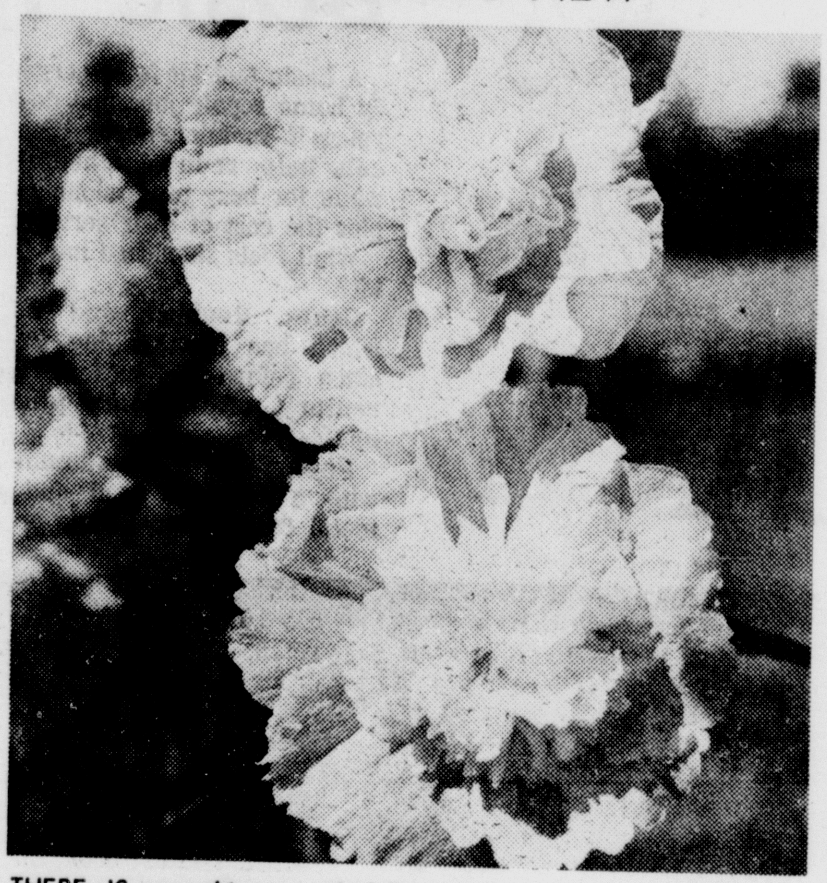
Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓Many Rhododendrons are blooming in April — or soon will be — which means it's a good time to shop for these magnificent shrubs.

✓When selecting flowering annuals for the garden, get enough of the same color and variety to give a showy effect. Twice as many plants will give 10 times as much impact.

✓Set-out herbs now. Certian ones make excellent shrubs and ground covers; ask your nurseryman to recommend some that will ornament as well as season.

SOMETHING NEW



THERE IS something wonderfully old-fashioned about the mere name Hollyhock. And the sight of one in bloom invariably inspries nostalgia. Yet there are Hollyhocks today that certain were not around in our childhood or grandmother's day — new ones that have just come onto the market. One of the finest is a 1972 introduction from Japan, the Summer Carnival, which grows five to six feet tall, with a foot or two feet of that length in flower at one time with four-inch blooms that are ruffled and waved like the pompon on a French sailor's beret. The Summer Carnival comes in many colors, and will repeat itself year after year after only one sowing.

Famous University reports —

"Use of Miracle-Gro increased the general vigor of rose plants considerably, with many more stronger, longer shoots and branches, much more and greener foliage, as well as double to triple the number of more beautiful blooms."

University test proves 30-second "instant action" in 5-ft. rose bush

Famous University scientists added tiny quantities of radioactive tracers to test solution of Miracle-Gro. They then applied this solution to the roots of a 5-foot rose bush. Within 30 seconds, Geiger counter registered definite activity at top of bush —proof of how fast Miracle-Gro works.

Basic Tool Kit For The Home

A basic tool kit for emergency home repair jobs and do-it-yourself maintenance projects can help reduce scheduled waits for busy professionals — plus the cost of their service.

What tools should go into the kit?

Sears, Roebuck and Co., which has been selling tools since before the turn of the century, offers some guidelines:

First, select a claw hammer with a 16-ounce head and a metal composition handle or a wooden handle with non-slip features. The 16-ounce hammer is a good, all-around tool for most jobs —from setting fences to repairing a roof to hanging pictures.

A 14-inch jack plane for trimming and smoothing edges of dimension lumber, doors and trim is a wise buy. The long "bed" or bottom of the plane permits shaving without rocking and dip-cutting materials.

OTHER BASIC tools should include a twist drill set, up to a quarter-inch, for boring holes in both metal and wood; a quarter-inch hand drill to operate the twist drill set; screwdrivers with four and eight-inch blades and one-eighth through three-eight inch tips for removing and driving screws in small appliances, hinges and locksets, and a medium-size No. Two Phillips' screwdriver. The Phillips' screwdriver can be used for mechanical repairs such as small appliances, electrical systems, and on autos.

For cutting, an eight-point saw is best. It can be used for both ripping and cross-cutting fiber and wood materials. It provides fairly smooth sawn edges, eliminating planing and sanding labor.

ALSO HANDY for cutting purposes are a utility (razor) knife for wood, paper and fiber materials; a single-cut eight-inch shoe rasp file for smoothing wood and fiber materials; and a combination oilstone for sharpening planes and other cutting edges.

In basic tools, an adjustable locking plier-wrench is a good buy since the tool can be used for both loosening and tightening stubborn bolts and screws. An Allen wrench set is necessary for driving socket set-screws in small appliances and autos.

For general use —from plumbing repairs to tightening and loosening bolts on bikes and washing machines — six and 10-inch adjustable wrenches are a must. To turn pipe and couplings on large plumbing lines, a 10-inch pipe wrench does the best job.

For holding purposes, two or more C or spring-type clamps go into a basic tool kit. Also needed are a combination square with a 12-inch blade for measuring and marking accurately, and a spout can of light oil for motor maintenance.

AFTER YOU purchase the basics, consider buying additional equipment in "project" form.

This might include a home painting kit, home plumbing kit and concrete patching kit.

Book Wall Is Mighty Useful In Family Room

A family room is where soggy children dry out on rainy days, working on stamp collections and art projects.

It also welcomes piano lessons, gift wrapping, cub scouts and visiting babies.

Reflecting the individualities of its inhabitants, this chameleon space tries to be all things to all people. Among the variables are a few constants, most important being plenty of storage to support all its activities.

A FAMILY ROOM has to be clear for action, because action is what it gets. Wall units — shelves for books and closed cabinets for stacks of everything else —provide the most storage from the least floor space.

Smooth flooring such as hardwood or a neutral tile is attractive and easy to clean. Bright, thick area rugs can be spotted around for color, rolled up for ballet practice or dance parties.

Casual furniture and sturdy, no-nonsense fabrics underline a light-hearted decorating approach. For versatility, the best things are foldable, stackable, or portable, and it's also fun to try a faddish piece such as a colorful corrugated chair or one of molded plexiglas.

Paneling walls with solid wood, such as the one-by-10-inch western hemlock seen in one comfortable family room recently, is both stylish and sensible.

SMUDGES FAIL to mar the clear finish of wood, so the room is easy to live with. Upkeep requires no more than dusting and occasional wiping down. Naturally warm, wood complements the bright accessory colors that make a room cheerful.

Storage is the heart of the active room, though, and for good reason. You can't use something if you can't find it. In this case, a wall of built-ins does the job.

Base cabinets, faced with the same hemlock boards hold bulky items such as television, stereo, camera gear, and hobby supplies.

The family reference library, not really a pretentious term, fills shelves above, framed in two-by-10s to sharpen the design.

Natural light flows in from a window wall, and soffit lights focus on counter space created by base cabinets. Dark-stained Douglas fir beams accent a light ceiling.

A Heated Tub Is Ultimate In Luxury

If you are planning to modernize your bathroom this spring, remember that nothing is so modern — and so practical — as a heated bathtub.

According to the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, it is especially simple to install a "heated" bathtub when remodeling the bathroom if your home is equipped with a hydronic (modern hot water) home heating system. Before the new tub is set in place, your heating contractor places a length of tubing or heating element underneath the tub; then he connects this tubing or heating element to the heating system itself.

When the thermostat calls for heat, the tub will get warm along with the rest of the house.

The council offers another tip. Have your heating contractor install a baseboard heating panel in the bathroom (if there isn't one there now), and place the towel rack above it. This will help to keep your towels warm and dry.

Tap All That Energy

By CAROLYN S. MURRAY

How often do you encourage the younger members of the family to participate in home-oriented improvement projects?

Or are you too busy with self-fulfillment to notice the creative energy and talent wasting away in pre-teen and high school-age progeny?

We almost never hear youngsters telling the story of how they helped make new living room curtains, painted their bedrooms or laid kitchen flooring. In this do-it-yourself world, why are only the oldsters doing it?

OLDER BROTHERS and sisters can certainly be invited to help dress up a tot's bedroom as well as their own. And if parents just stay in the background, sharing labor and advice only when required, the project can turn into a lesson in homemaking for both boys and girls.

The talents and abilities do exist.

A visit to the art department of any high school or college would provide sufficient proof that talent doesn't flower overnight. It obviously could bloom at any time. All that's needed is the opportunity and incentive, which parents can provide.

The room shown here is full of ideas that could easily be developed by a team of talented family mates. If dad has some workshop equipment, furniture could actually be designed and constructed on the job. Even if there is no real carpentry equipment at home, a nearby school may have an adult evening class in woodworking.

All the equipment in school workshops has been paid for by your tax money, so join the class and use those planers, jointers, electric saws and lathe machines. Get your interested youngsters to do the same, if a class is available in their school.

BETWEEN THE two types of classes you should be able to execute an exciting array of handsome and fun projects.

For walls similar to the ones shown in the room designed by Claire Upton, pre-finished paneling can be bought at the lumber dealers. These are a rough-textured type in a shale-white color and they are made by Masonite.

Most pre-cut panels come in four feet by eight feet sections. So if your child's room is higher, plan a dropped ceiling, then get the youngsters to plan the decoration. They might want to paint a blue sky with clouds and stars, or do it in posters or something more unusual! On the other hand, they may be more conservative than you'd expect.

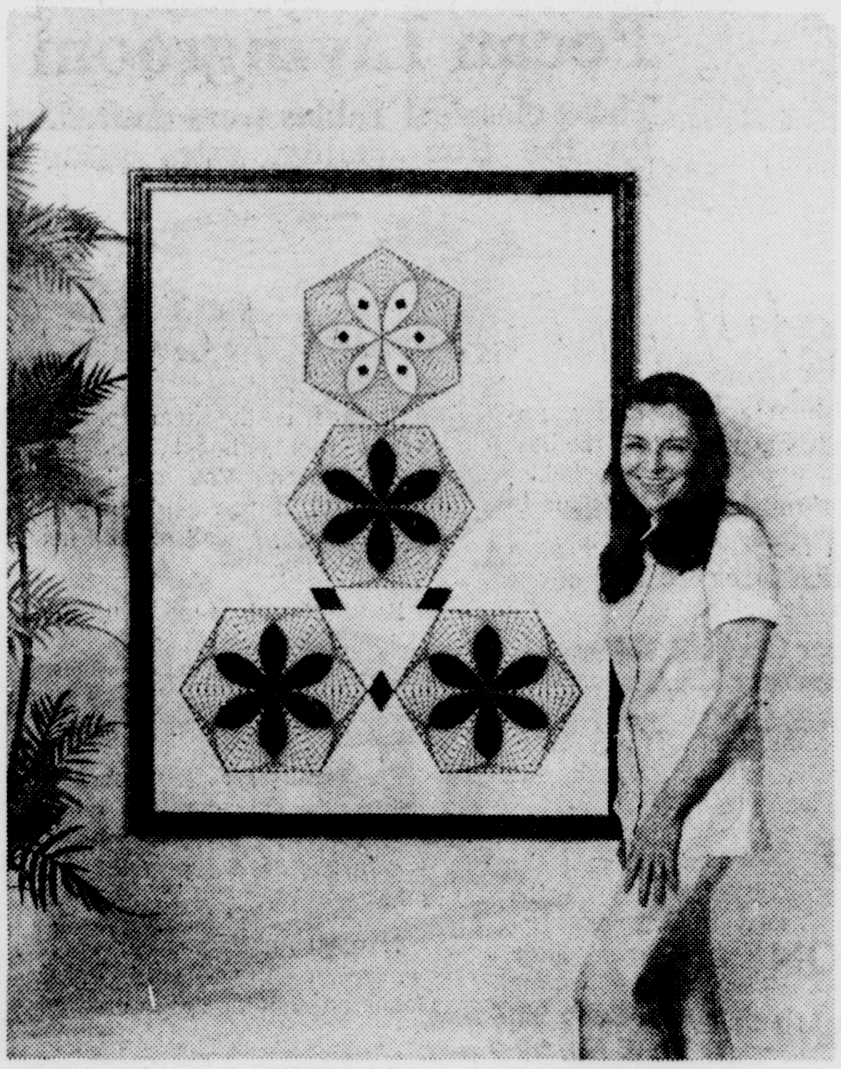
THE STORAGE unit is also made of a Masonite product called Presdwood. One panel was used as a fascia, or face, and the shape of the exposed storage area is cut out of this panel. The back wall holds the shelves. The Presdwood was painted a bright red.

The locomotive decoration on the bed wall is actually a Pegboard cutout designed to hold hats, baseball gloves and sweaters. Even the headboard and footboard on the bed were homemade, using the same Presdwood.

IF THERE IS young talent and energy in your home, don't let it go to waste. Put it to work at a family project such as this boy's room designed by Claire Upton. Masonite panels were used on the walls in an interesting texture, and for storage as well. The bed has a flat, Presdwood finish that takes paint easily. Every member of the family can demonstrate his and her creativity in this one project.

DOING YOUR OWN ARTY THING WITH TACKS, YARN AND PLYWOOD

THERE IS a kind of special satisfaction derived from a contribution to your home decor that you have made with your own hands. And that pleasure is doubled if your materials are unusual and economical. The picture at right shown with its proud creator, recording star Kathleen Emery, was fashioned entirely from yarn, map tacks and plywood, working with the help of a Steve Ellingson-created pattern. For Flower Picture Pattern No. 490, send $1 to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409. All you will have to do then is trace the full-size pattern onto plywood, insert tacks as directed, and string the yarn from tack to tack. The instructions are complete and easily understood. And you will wind up with a wall picture just as colorful and attractive as the one created by Miss Emery. Ellingson has other art picture patterns including a yacht from yarn (No. 452, $1) and a Monterey pine wall mural (No. 308, $2).



For Safety, Plexiglas Instead Of Glass

The National Commission on Product Safety reports that 150,000 people are injured annually in accidents involving glass breakage.

Of these victims, more than 75 per cent are injured as a result of the breakage of glass in outside doors. The commission's report also revealed that youngsters in the 5 to 14 year-old age group account for one-third of glass-injured persons each year.

MOST — IF NOT all — of these mishaps and tragedies could be prevented if a safety glazing material such as Plexiglas acrylic plastic sheet were installed in locations considered potentially hazardous, for example, storm doors, and windows in high traffic areas or where children play, and bath and shower enclosures.

Plexiglas is safe and economical because it is up to 17 times more breakage resistant than glass and can be cut to size when installed by the home owner.

If this optically clear material is subjected to blows beyond its resistance, it generally breaks into relatively dull-edged pieces and does not shatter at a high velocity like glass.

THIS MATERIAL in one-tenth inch thickness can be installed in standard storm door frames as a safe replacement. However, Rohm and Haas Co., the manufacturer of the material, recommends that for greater resistance to impact and ease of installation, the do-it-yourselfer install a quarter-inch thick sheet right into the door, unframed, following the simple instructions.

This acrylic sheet meets the reuuirements of a safety glazing material as defined by the American National Standards Institute and is also an approved material under many state statutes and building codes which require safety glazing in hazardous areas.

Checkered Deck

Checkerboard decks are easy to build. Individual three-foot squares can be assembled indoors, installed later on a frame or directly over a sand and gravel base.
